

Women and Their Interests

THE GIRL WHO IS SLOW

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"We are three young girls," write Helen, Margaret and Rose, "ages from eighteen to twenty-one, good looking and well educated. Our parents won't allow us to go to public dances, nor can we go out after half past nine, unless accompanied by an older person. Why is it that all our boy friends get the girls who can go to dances anywhere and whenever? These girls always get the best fellows. Our girl friends say that we are 'slow,' and advise us to pick up acquaintances. They say, 'Oh, please! If you heed that advice, you'll surely be an old maid.'"

Now let us put our heads together and start over with the beginning of your letter. The rules your parents make are for your safety; they are not too severe; they do not put you beyond the pale of present enjoyment for future happiness; they will not make "old maids" of you, and better, oh, infinitely better, neither will they make of you women whose names are taken lightly and whose acquaintance is as easily picked up as a pebble on the street. Let this fact sink into your brains and hearts as a foundation for the facts we will build on top.

"These girls (meaning the free and easy kind) always get the best fellows. They don't. It is a story the ending of which isn't told in one's youth. The main thing is the best dancer, the most persistent escort, as well as the most generous in his expenditures of time and money. The bedraggled, woo-begone, and destitute appearance of a woman whose husband was once such a "best fellow," tells the end of the tale.

The Best Fellow

The "best fellow" is the man who tries his level best to limit his acquaintance to the girls he can respect, and who neither seeks nor welcomes any friendship that begins with a street flirtation. The "best fellow" is not in evidence at all the dances and parties because he has a working knowledge of the value of time and an ambition for a program through life that neither begins nor ends with a dance.

"Our girl friends say we are 'slow' and advise us to pick up chance acquaintances." I am afraid, my dear, you have neglected your wedding. From the garden of friendship every friend who gives such advice should be religiously weeded. Do it before her kind spreads, choking out the kind of friends who are worth while.

As for being an old maid: Go to every married woman you know and ask her if to be an old maid is such a misfortune. Go to the married woman; they know!

The man to whom you will not speak without an introduction charges you with being proud, that is a compliment which he has been forced to pay you against his will. You gain his respect, his admiration and his love in the same way.

AMUSEMENTS

MAJESTIC
To-morrow, afternoon and evening—Montgomery and Stone in "The Lady of the Slipper." Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday—Richard Carle and Hattie Williams in "The Doll Girl." Thursday afternoon and evening—"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine."

ORPHEUM
Every afternoon and evening—high-class vaudeville.

COLONIAL
Daily—continuous vaudeville and pictures.

MONTGOMERY & STONE TO-NIGHT
"The Lady of the Slipper," in which Montgomery and Stone are playing at the Majestic Theatre, is a new piece which has been sixteen years in the making. The story is of a young girl, whose name is Marie, who is betrothed to a young man, whose name is Jean, who is a member of the French aristocracy. The story is a love story, and is a very interesting one. The play is a very good one, and is a very interesting one. The play is a very good one, and is a very interesting one.

"THE BLINDNESS OF VIRTUE"
Founded on a subject which is now being discussed in every civilized home in which there are children, Charles Hamilton's great play, "The Blindness of Virtue," which drew full houses in London for two years, was presented in Chicago four months, ten weeks in Boston and two months in New York, will be the attraction at the Majestic Theatre, Monday and Tuesday evenings, with Tuesday matinee. The company is composed of English players, under the direction of William Morris, personally selected by the author. The play was first produced at the Little Theatre in London.—Advertisement.

RICHARD CARLE AND HATTIE WILLIAMS
Leo Fall, the composer of the music of "The Doll Girl," a new piece which Charles Frohman is to present at the Majestic Theatre, Wednesday afternoon and evening, Richard Carle and Hattie Williams as its co-stars, will be remembered for the charming melodies in "The Doll Girl." The play is a very good one, and is a very interesting one. The play is a very good one, and is a very interesting one.

"THE TRAIL OF THE LONESOME PINE"
"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," which appears at the Majestic Theatre, Thursday afternoon and evening, is the story of a big human, big heart and big purposes, beyond all the futile effort of feudalism there is the story of a man who is a very good one, and is a very interesting one. The play is a very good one, and is a very interesting one.

ANOTHER LASKY PRODUCTION
To-night witnesses the grand finale of the Orpheum's best bill. The best because it is headed off by Jesse L. Lasky's miniature musical comedy, "The Trained Nurse," easily the most popular of the Orpheum's recent offerings. This time it is his gorgeous production known as "The Beauties," that this week is creating a furore at the Orpheum. The play is a very good one, and is a very interesting one. The play is a very good one, and is a very interesting one.

AT THE COLONIAL
There is no denying the fact that the bill appearing at the Colonial for its last engagements to-day, is far and away the most clever that has been seen there for a long time. For a pretty scenic act called "Girl Aboard," with four talented players, would be a pleasing addition to any "big time" offering. It is artistic and clever, and well played. The play is a very good one, and is a very interesting one. The play is a very good one, and is a very interesting one.

SOFT SILK BLOUSE

IN LATEST STYLE

Pointed Collar With Tassel at Back Gives a Smart Touch

8216 Fancy Blouse, 34 to 42 bust.

The season shows no smarter blouse than this one. It can be made from the fashionable silk, crepe and the like and it also can be made from cotton voile and similar materials. The color can be one throughout or the trimming can be of a contrasting one. As shown here, the entire blouse is made of silk and the vest, collar and sleeves are finished with picot edge but a very smart effect could be obtained by using white crepe de chine, under-facing the vest portion with color and making the collar and sleeve portions to match and, for such purpose, bright orange, cerise or old blue could be used, for the note of bright color on a white blouse is exceedingly smart. The sleeves can be made shorter if liked and finished with cuffs but the pretty long ones with frills over the hands are fashionable. The collar is unusual, too, with a point at the back for which a tassel seems to make the appropriate finish. For a simple blouse showing the color note, white voile could be used for the main portions with colored lawn for the vest and trimming.

For the medium size, the blouse will require 3 1/2 yds. of material, 27 1/2 yds. 36, 1 1/2 yds. 44 in. wide, with 3/4 yd. 21 in. wide for under-facing for vest, 3/4 yd. 27 in. wide for the collar and cuffs shown in the back view.

The pattern of the blouse 8216 is cut in sizes from 34 to 42 inches bust measure. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

PALACE THEATRE

J. Warren Kerrigan, George Periolat and Cleo Madison will be featured on Monday at Palace Theatre in a Victor two-reel drama entitled, "Sealed Orders." This story was written by Eugene Manlove Rhodes, and appeared in The Saturday Evening Post. It has the atmosphere of the slums painted with precision—it has the rich, red blood of romance—it has one of the best free-for-all man fights ever screened, a pistol fight that develops into a light that simply leaves you gasping with excitement and anticipation. It is a condensed bundle of suspense, excitement, thrills and a totally unconventional ending. Also Warren's three-reel absorbing detective drama enacted by the stars of the stage, entitled "Tito and Terror." This striking production combines unusual scenic effects with a plot, plot, plot, etc., yet easy to follow. The remarkable adventures of the detective who risks his life to run to earth the clever thieves who have robbed Mrs. Tarzova of her jewels, are scenes that you will not soon forget. The climax in the third part where the detective jumps from his aeroplane, and captures Tito, the king of the slums, is a startling one, no less surprising than realistic. Our closing Crystal comedy, "Auntie's Romantic Adventure," is a comedy of domestic humor, full of amusing scenes with a laugh in every foot.—Advertisement.

WHEN IN DOUBT FEED STOCK CASTOR OIL SOUR MILK AS AID TO RAISING CHICKS

It Is Said to Cure Nine Out of Every Ten Cases of Disease

It is frequently pretty difficult for poultry keepers, especially those who do not specialize in poultry, to make the proper diagnosis when the chickens sit around, do not eat and have a mopey appearance generally. A valuable hen is often allowed to die simply because the symptoms of many poultry diseases are much the same and the owner cannot determine upon a remedy.

Modified Trap System For the Smaller Farm

The ordinary commercial egg farm, carrying from 1,000 to 5,000 layers, cannot afford to trap-nest the entire flock during the pullet year. An equipment of trap-nests and labor incident to their proper care will not warrant the expense except in rare instances. A system, however, which will build up the general average of the flock and one which may be practiced by all breeders is to equip a small pen with trap-nests. If the plant carries 1,000 layers a pen to hold 50 birds and ten trap-nests is ample. In September or October, when the pullets are gathered from the range, place 50 of the best-developed birds in this trap-nest pen. By March 1 the records will show from five to fifteen birds that are heavy winter layers. Select the finest cock bird and save a setting of eggs from the most vigorous pullet of the fifteen.

Growing Hens Are Also Benefited by Its Use in the Diet

Sour milk is of great value alike for the growing chick and the laying hen. Locally its use is becoming general and wherever tried the results of experiments reported from agricultural colleges are being confirmed. The Connecticut station's experiments cover a number of years and in that time there has been little variation in the results.

This station did not start out primarily to learn about the use of sour milk except in so far as it was hoped it would prevent or cure white diarrhoea in little chicks. In the hope of making its experiments fairly conclusive the station has used large numbers of chicks in the first place; they have used several breeds, such as Rhode Island Reds, White Plymouth Rocks, White Wyandottes, White Leghorns. It has conducted its experiments not only one year, but repeated them another year, and still another, and it has tried its experiments in brooder houses, in outdoor brooders and in natural brooding, and it has tried the experiments with chicks hatched in March and in July and in October, so that the Connecticut station feels at least reasonably certain that sour milk is of value because it has found it so with all of these breeds of chickens each year that it has tried it and in any way in which they were brooded and at all seasons of the year.

Various results follow the liberal use of sour milk, among the more important of which are these: The chicks eat more, they grow faster, fewer die, the cockerels grow sooner and the pullets lay earlier. With all these advantages to commend it, poultry keepers very generally will feel warranted in giving sour milk a trial. To be sure, the first question to arise in this connection will be "How much can one afford to pay for sour milk to feed to poultry?" This question cannot be readily answered definitely, but to be indefinite one can scarcely afford to be without it.

Professor Horace Atwood, of the West Virginia Experiment Station, has estimated that one can afford to pay from 1 1/2 to 2 cents a quart for skim milk to feed laying hens when eggs are selling at 25 cents a dozen. This means, of course, that if eggs are worth 50 cents a dozen the poultry man will be warranted in paying from 3 to 4 cents a quart for skim milk. Sour milk chicks will at eight or ten weeks of age probably weigh an average of a quarter of a pound each more than chicks which have not received the milk.

INTERNATIONAL EGG LAYERS ARE HUMMING THEMSELVES
The hens in the international egg-laying contest at Storrs continue to make new high records. On the last day of the twenty-third week they produced 536 eggs, or 12 more than any previous single day's production since the contest began. The total yield of 3,607 for the week is less by 39 eggs than the yield of the preceding week. This loss is small, however, and would seem to be negligible when it is remembered that all the heavier breeds are now showing more or less marked signs of broodiness.

Says Intestinal Fermentation a Common Source of Bad Breath

THE BREATH—Part II.
A disordered stomach is often referred to as a common cause of offensive breath, but, in truth, the trouble generally lies not in the stomach but in the lower intestine. Constipation lies behind most cases of bad breath of this sort. The gases arising from fermentation are quickly absorbed by the blood, carried to the lungs and from hence thrown off by the breath. If constipation is present, it is almost a certainty that the breath is more or less tainted.

The causes for constipation are so many and vary so with the individual that it is impossible to go into this subject further than to point out some of the simpler means of prevention. Nervousness, a sedentary life, eating too concentrated food and lack of exercise are the most common causes and they can all be overcome by some change in the manner of living.

CAVALRY BRIGADE CAMPS

Orders About the National Guard Expected to Be Issued Within a Short Time

Pennsylvania's cavalry and other auxiliary organizations will be divided between the two brigade camps which will be held in July, only the First Squadron of cavalry being detailed to participate in the campaign of maneuvers in the vicinity of Washington with the First and Fourth Brigades. This will leave four troops of cavalry, two batteries, two engineer companies, a signal corps company and a field hospital to be divided between the Second and Third Brigades, and it is probable that the New Castle and Coraopolis troops will go with General A. J. Logan's brigade and the Governor's and Sheridan troops with the brigade of General C. M. Clement, while the Philadelphia engineers will go to the western troops and the Scranton company with the Third. The batteries will be divided accordingly to territory unless they should be sent to work with regular army batteries, as was the case last year.

The locations of the brigade camps will be left to the brigade commanders and it is probable that the Third will go to Selinsgrove again. This is the year for a division encampment, but it will be given up for the first time since the Spanish War because two brigades are going with the regulars. Last year the Guard encamped by brigades and the year before as a division, although one brigade was engaged with regulars.

PSORIASIS ON LEGS ARMS AND HEAD

Also Back. Would Itch Something Awful and Crack Open. In Morning Bed Full of Scales. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

34 Dudley St., Long Branch, N. Y.
"The psoriasis began with an itching when I would scratch it, it would burn. Had this for years. It first started with places about the size of a pin-head and the itching would get bigger all the time until they reached the size of a half-dollar. It did not scratch them they would itch something awful and would crack open and bleed. If I would scratch them they would bleed and burn. The first place would appear would be on the elbows and shins. I remember when I was a small boy it used to come out on my legs then go away and come back again. I had it on my head when I was a boy and it was so bad that I could not go to school. I even had it come out on my face. I had the psoriasis on my legs, arms, back and head; there were very few places that I did not have it. I would go to bed at night and in the morning when I would get up the bed would be full of scales. I tried several treatments but to no good. They said there was no cure for it. I picked up a paper one day and saw about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I tried the Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the morning and after washing I would put Cuticura Ointment on and I would do the same thing at night before going to bed. I got relief from the start. Now I am cured." (Signed) Jack Miller, July 1, 1913.
