

Spring Sickness

Comes to Everyone

Spring sickness comes in some degree to every man, woman and child in our climate. It is that run-down condition of the system that results from impure, impoverished, devitalized blood. It is marked by loss of appetite and that tired feeling, and in many cases by some form of eruption.

The best way to treat spring sickness is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Ask your druggist for this all-the-year-round medicine. It purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood.—Advertisement.

GREY HAIR FOLKS
LOOK YOUNG AGAIN

Let Me Tell You Free How I Restored My Grey Hair to Natural Colour and Beauty of Youth

Results in Four Days Without Dyes or Other Harmful Methods

At 27 I was prematurely grey—and a failure, because I looked old. To-day at 33 I have no trace of grey hair and I look younger than I did eight years ago. I restored my own grey hair to its natural colour and beauty of youth and am a living example that grey hairs need no longer exist. No dangerous dyes, stains or other forms of hair paint are necessary to keep your hair young.

My friend and I were formerly grey and old-looking but we shall never be grey again.

Let me send you full information that will enable you to restore your own hair to youthful colour so that you need never have a grey hair again, no matter what your age or the cause of your greyness, or how long you have been grey or how many things have failed. My free offer is open to men and women alike for a few days longer. Send no money. Just write me today giving your name and address plainly, stating whether Mr., Mrs., or Miss, and enclose two-cent stamp for return postage and I will send you full particulars that will enable you to restore the natural colour of your hair to your hair, making it soft natural and easily managed. Write to-day. Address Mrs. Mary E. Chapman, Suite 324 W. Exchange St., Providence, R. I.

DANDRUFF SOON
RUINS THE HAIR

Makes It Lifeless, Dull, Dry, Brittle and Thin

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of Sargol and apply it to the scalp when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid Sargol at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Advertisement.

What Thin Folks Should Do to Gain Weight

Physician's Advice For Thin, Underdeveloped Men and Women

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves, and feeble stomachs, who having tried advertising flesh-matters, food-fads, physical culture stunts and rubber creams, resign themselves to life-long skinniness and think nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently discovered regenerative force makes fat grow after years of thinness, and is also unequalled for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable discovery is called Sargol. Six strength-giving, fat-producing elements of acknowledged merit have been combined in this peerless preparation, which is endorsed by eminent physicians and used by prominent people everywhere. It is absolutely harmless, inexpensive and efficient.

A month's systematic use of Sargol would produce flesh and strength by correcting faults of digestion and by supplying highly concentrated fats to the blood. Increased nourishment is obtained from the food eaten, and the additional fats that thin people need are provided. George A. Gorgas and other leading druggists supply Sargol, and say there is a large demand for it. While this new preparation has given splendid results as a nerve-tonic and health-builder, it should not be used by nervous people unless they wish to gain at least ten pounds of flesh.—Advertisement.

THRILLING STORY OF FIRST BATTLE

continued to give considerable trouble to the Americans from the battered Benito Juarez tower. After they had been silenced and removed from the tower it was discovered that the soldiers had continued fighting for lack of ability to do anything else. The shells from the warships Tuesday had to be hurled at the tower and the men had been compelled to remain in it.

Another Surprise
At 10 o'clock Wednesday morning the Americans were in undisputed possession of the city except the southwest quarter, in which the barracks are situated, and a few outlying districts. At noon they had taken the barracks. When the city prison, which faces the main plaza of the city, was captured, Lieutenant Commander Buchanan, of the Florida, made an inspection tour through it. There was great surprise among the Mexicans who had gathered there that the prisoners were not released. They had been accustomed to see the victor always release prisoners and then impress them all into his army.

Chief of Police Antonio Villavicencio was taken prisoner by the Americans shortly after they had occupied the Mexican plaza of the city. It was suggested to him that he continue in his official capacity to direct the city's protective system. He took the offer under advisement. Had the frightened mayor made up his mind to accede to Admiral Fletcher's suggestion, which was made through Consul Canada, the Mexicans might have been spared the humiliation of being forced from their positions and undoubtedly a number of lives would not have been sacrificed.

Pleads With Chief
Coincident with the orders for the general advance of the Americans, an aged white-haired Mexican, carrying the white flag of truce, came down a street from the center of the city. He carried a letter to the chief of police, the only authority he hoped to reach, and desired Consul Canada to read it. It was an urgent appeal to the chief of police to call on the snipers and prevent the bombardment he believed would follow if they continued their execution. Even before the messenger had climbed the stairs into the Consul's office Captain Rush was informed of the contents of the note he bore and immediately sounded "cease firing" and "halt." But it was too late. The action had been begun all along the line and the Mexicans considered wise to attempt further measures to stop it. The commanders ordered their men forward at double quick, which they carried out with a vigor that afterwards gave them the city.

Gruesome Scene
Blood-bespattered sidewalks, broken windows and bullet-scarred walls gave the plaza a ghastly aspect. Within the Diligencia Hotel there were forty Americans, most of them women, who had been there since the commencement of hostilities. When the square was taken they were immediately notified that they might go to other places if they so desired, but that they probably would incur no further danger by remaining in the hotel.

It was not until late Tuesday that the last of General Maas' men on the top of the hotel received written orders from outside the city to vacate their position. The Mexicans obeyed by a portion of the hundred men who were occupying the roof and vantage points in the interior, but a small portion of the band determined to disobey the order and fought a desperate fight to the last. These men, however, surrendered Wednesday morning. A lieutenant, who was in command of the Mexicans, was led out as a prisoner, and although he fought desperately he trembled and turned pale in the belief that he would be summarily executed.

None of the American women were in any manner distressed by the Mexicans during their occupation of the building. A few of the women assisted the Mexicans in caring for their wounded.

Mexican Flag on Fortress
In the fighting in the center of the inner harbor, San Juan De Uloa, an ancient stone fortress, flew the Mexican flag throughout the attack. The commandant and sixty armed men and 300 workmen in the navy yard peered from the embrasures at the Prairie, lying 500 yards away and the other ships shelling the naval academy. In the dungeons remained 500 prisoners, the echoes of the guns on the ships reaching them through a sixteen-foot stone wall.

Captain Stickney, of the Prairie, went through the fortress several days ago and found some heavy guns, five torpedoes and a torpedo tube in a corrugated iron shed outside the wall of the fortress. When the landing of the Americans was ordered, Captain Stickney sent word to the commandant of San Juan De Uloa that he would blow him to pieces with the Prairie's guns if he opened fire against the Americans, but that otherwise he would not be disturbed. The commandant replied that he would answer with his cannons if fired on, but that he would not commence hostilities. When the commandant's ashore began the commandant hoisted a brilliant new Mexican flag, which flew all day long.

Spanish Commander Refuses
Rear Admiral Fletcher instructed the Spanish cruiser Carlos V to go outside the breakwater in order to give the Prairie room to fire her guns. The Spanish commander refused, saying that he dared not maneuver his boat in so small a space at night. He also declared that he needed to take on a supply of fresh water. Admiral Fletcher insisted yesterday that his order be carried out and the Carlos V moved outside just before the attack on the center of the city began.

When Admiral Fletcher directed that battalions of bluejackets and marines be landed from Rear Admiral Badger's ships before dawn and drawn up in the plaza before the railroad station and then proceeded to take the entire town, he acted only after warning and after fifteen shells from the Prairie's three-inch guns had been thrown into the steel framework of the new market which faces Market Place. A persistent but scattered fire came from rifles in the upper windows of the college and along the roof. The Jackies stood their ground pluckily. Some of them huddled close to the steel framework of the market, while others dashed about in small open spaces directly in front of the building. These

Pluckily Stand Ground
Suddenly a spatter of rifle firing broke out. Flashes from the rifles were plainly visible in the upper windows of the college and along the roof. The Jackies stood their ground pluckily. Some of them huddled close to the steel framework of the market, while others dashed about in small open spaces directly in front of the building. These bluejackets dropped on their stomachs and lifted their rifles high in order to get a range on the windows above. Finally the American officers hustled their men either forward or backward until they were in shelter of nearby buildings.

LINCOLN'S "FUNERAL TRAIN" PASSED THROUGH
HARRISBURG JUST 49 YEARS AGO YESTERDAY

Old residents of Harrisburg will recall that just forty-nine years ago yesterday the Lincoln "funeral train" passed through the city. From the black draped coach in which the body of the martyred President was lying, the victim of a fanatic's hatred was carried into the corridor of the old Capitol building where it was viewed by thousands. The special then took the body to Philadelphia and the etching above shows the train just about to pull out of the Pennsylvania railroad station. John Miller, an engineer who died several months ago, was the man who drove the train. Robert E. Williams, of 1609 Penn street, was the trainmaster who cleared the tracks for the special.
