Fleets of Mexican and U. S. Navies Compared

Washington, April 23.—The formidableness of the American fleet of merican naval vessels compared with those of Mexico now in Mexican waters is strikingly brought out in statistics made public by the Navy Department to-day.

three fuel ships, two transports, one supply ship, one hospital ship, and one mine depot ship. Mexico has five vessels on the Atlantic coast and six on the Pacific. Of these on the Atlantic two are gunboats, one a transport, one a training ship, and the other is characterized as a "hulk of no fighting value." Those on the Pacific coast consist of two gunboats, a transport and three " hulks of no fighting value."

Another Cruiser Is Enroute to Mexico

Berlin, April 23.—The small German cruiser Karlsruhe, which was recently put in commission, has been ordered to proceed to Mexican waters to relieve the cruiser Dresden.

Hold Up Movement. The situation on the Mexican border was the subject of all the day's conferences. Any contemplated movement of the army to Vera Cruz by transport, it was reported, would be held up as a result of the Carranza message of last night until border conditions would permit withdrawal of troops there.

Suggestions were made that before any extensive army movement could be ordered, the military route to be called out by congressional action and money supplied for the mobilization of a large army. Word was received at the Navy Department that the destroyer fleet from Vera Cruz had reached Tampico and another report said that the revolutionist troops about Tampico had formed an alliance with the Huerta forces in the city to withstand any attack by the American forces. The department staff conferred as to conditions at Vera Cruz, and it was understood that the next move by the forces under Admiral Badger would be the seizure of the railroad from Vera Cruz to Mexico City.

This road, controlled by two bridges which, if destroyed, would be difficult to replace, would be absolutely necessary, if Vera Cruz is to be made the base of further aggressive operations. No Quarrel With Mexico. The President, in his statement of comment on Carranza's note which had asked this government to withdraw from Vera Cruz and recognize the Constitution, said that the Washington government would be continued in the direction of General Huerta and his adherents, but that the United States had no quarrel with the Mexican people as a whole.

As yet the Washington government does not expect open hostilities from the Constitutionists, hoping that they will remain neutral. Carranza's request for the withdrawal of the American forces from Vera Cruz on the ground that "was a violation of the national sovereignty of Mexico," and a hostile act to the Mexican nation, gave the President and his Cabinet advisers with whom he was in conference much concern. In consequence the White House statement was issued to inform General Carranza that the United States could not recognize him or seek separation from him as he requested, but must deal with the authorities in control of the territory where offenses were committed. This has been the consistent course of the Washington government during the present administration.

Is Given Passports. The fact that Charles O'Shaughnessy had been handed his passports by General Huerta added an acute aspect to the situation, but has been more or less expected. The interests of the United States will be looked after by one or two of the other foreign legations, as was the case in Spain during the last war. Secretary Bryan said that the mere withdrawal of the Charges d'Affaires did not necessarily mean war. He referred to the fact that precedent showed instances where war did not follow the departure of a minister or charge with his passports.

Reports that Mr. O'Shaughnessy had reached Vera Cruz were not credited by the State Department. It was stated that he had not had time to reach the coast since his last dispatch from the Mexican capital. The department said that from 800 to 1,000 Americans were in Mexico City and that they would be protected by the guards of the other legations, numbering about 100 soldiers. No American marines are in the Mexican capital.

Mann Sees No Glory in War With Mexico

Washington, D. C., April 23.—"Mr. Speaker, I think I have never indulged in partisanship in this House in any matter affecting our relations with foreign countries," said Representative Mann, the Republican leader, on the other side of the House, in my opinion, has been extremely loyal to the President during the past year and more while the Mexican difficulties have been under attempted solution. We have refrained from criticizing a course in which we did not believe.

Algar's Passports Will Be Delivered to Him Late To-day

Washington, April 23.—Charge Secretary of State Bryan, said that he had made formal demand for his passports and expected to receive them late to-day. He said he would leave Washington to-night and probably would go to Europe. Algar said that no foreign representatives here had yet been designated to handle Mexican affairs but that the situation would probably be turned over to the French embassy. Secretary of State Bryan, just by being going into conference with the President said that Charge Algar's passports were being prepared in the State Department and would be delivered to him late to-day.

ger, to talk about the glory of the flag and about war. War is a reality. Knowing the results of a war with Mexico, knowing that in the end it will be successful, we should be more cautious about producing war, and I have been surprised that gentlemen in the House should talk for peace and vote for war."

Change of Plans Made Necessary Because of Rebel Leader's Attitude

Washington, D. C., April 23.—A complete change in the plan if military campaign in Mexico may be necessitated by the menacing attitude of the Constitutionists and that subject is under discussion by the joint board of the army and navy and the secretaries of the two military departments. Predicted upon the belief that the Constitutionists would observe an attitude of strict neutrality during the settlement of the issues between the United States government and General Huerta, no arrangements have been made in regard to the disposition of American military forces on the northern border beyond those necessary to meet possible small local disturbances.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I am just 52 years of age and during Change of Life I suffered for six years terribly. I tried several doctors but none seemed to give me any relief.
