REV. BASSLER DOES NOT PREACH HIGBROW SERMONS

THE REV. HARRY N. BASSLER

This is the eleventh year of the pastorate at the Second Reformed Church, Verbeke and Green streets, of the Rev. Harry N. Bassler. Which speaks a history all in itself. Add to this fact that the Rev. Mr. Bassler is still comparatively a young man and you arrive at a good place to get off in laying a metal railroad into the future in order to glimpse the probable physical and spiritual condition of the Second Reformed Church. That it will continue to grow and advance has in the past is certainly a strong probability for its pastor, the Rev. Mr. Bassler, is ranked as a "live wire" secularly as well as ecclesiastically.

them. They feel his friendly influence, behave naturally, and don't have to feel as if they were in a guadhouse in his presence. It's the same when the Rev. Mr. Bassler gets out with the boys of the Hope Fire Company, of which also he is chaplain. And yet all this worldly good fellowship can be laid aside in an instant when the clergyman mounts the pulpit. Forceful, energetic, sincere, Mr. Bassler has earned another side of his popular appeal, the dynamic quality of his sermons. A wide experience of life, and a simple and direct appeal are the main features. The Rev. Mr. Bassler preaches highbrow sermons. He does not profess to be a scholar or a higher critic, but versed as he is in the necessary biblical lore, he confines his message within limits which make it understandable to all who open their ears to hear in the congregation. In touch with the brethren in touch with the soldiers, the Rev. Mr. Bassler had, for a month of his career, the experience of being in touch with the politicians. The Rev. Mr. Bassler held the post of chaplain to the State Senate during a month of the session of 1910. The Rev. Mr. Bassler was born in Millersburg, Dauphin county, March 9, 1867. He was graduated from the high school there and then went to Franklin and Marshall College at Lancaster. In the city of Lancaster he remained seven years, his mother removing there also. His seven years' stay was necessary because while at the theological college Mr. Bassler had to turn aside a couple of years in order to annex sufficient coin of the realm to complete his studies. It would not be historically accurate to say that the Rev. Mr. Bassler said "I should worry," when confronted with this situation. Yet if the phrase had been invented at the time he probably would have said it for he has been through life no trubbler, and the fact that he doesn't worry, but is able to laugh just like a human being, places him in his present high reaches. So then, as it was necessary to annex some coin of the realm, the student got a connection with the New York Tribune, where he was able not only to make money, but to do good at the same time. After covering hundreds of east and westside youngsters into comfortable country homes for a summer. Returning to Lancaster, the Rev. Mr. Bassler completed his course at Franklin and Marshall, and then accepted a charge at St. Thomas, Franklin county, where he remained ten years, coming here in August, 1903.

To Tell Hill Men of St. Paul's Club Work

The speaker at to-morrow's "Pleasant Sunday Afternoon" meeting of the Allison Hill Men's Christian Association is Frank J. Price, of Audubon, New Jersey. Mr. Price is a well-known newspaper man and political writer located temporarily in this city for a Philadelphia daily in connection with the primary campaign. Outside of his regular profession, he is best known for his work in connection with old St. Paul's Club, Philadelphia, which he organized and which he is one of the vice-presidents. This club is a self-supporting institution for the reclamation of inebriates, and has done a tremendous lot of good in the Quaker City. Mr. Price is likely to tell of this club's work and the managers of the Hill Association anticipates a good attendance at to-morrow's meeting. The meeting will be held as usual in Lenney's Theater, Thirteenth and Market streets, opening with a song service at 3:30 and the regular exercises at 3:45, the meeting closing at 4:45. E. F. Weaver, president, will preside, while the singing will be under the direction of Secretary R. F. Webster.

TO HOLD APRIL SOCIAL

The Men's Club of the Stevens Memorial M. E. church will hold its April social in the church parlors Monday evening. Arrangements are being completed whereby two hundred men will be served with a buffet luncheon. James W. Barker will preside at the meeting. The High School Mandolin Club and Ross K.
