Kavanaugh Is Not a Tramp; Has Tiger Squad Guessing

Refutes the Slurs Handed Up to Him With Real Baseball Playing

When Marty Kavanaugh, last season's best hitter in the Tri-State and crack infielder, broke into the fast game there were whisperings. Stars in the major game looked upon Kavanaugh as a tramp. He was stung by the remarks he heard, but went to work to make good. Now he has many of the Jennings squad looking like a deuce spot.

Two years ago Kavanaugh was introduced to Joe McGinnity when the latter was manager of the Newark club. Kavanaugh tried catching, which he had been fairly successful in as a semi-pro. He was used in utility roles and showed well at first base, but was not strong enough to displace Harry Swacina, now with the Baltimore Federal League club.

Last Spring the Newark club owners decided that Kavanaugh was too awkward in the field to make his natural batting ability of worth to a class AA minor league team, so he was released to York, Pa., in the Tri-State League.

Kavanaugh's declaration at this time shows the kind of an athlete he is.

"You fellows think I'm a tramp, but I'll show some of you up yet," Kavanaugh was used at first and second base and in the outfield, too, with Tigers it had been intended to use him on first or in the outfield during the Spring training trip. Paddy Baumann, regular second baseman of the Tigers, was injured while in the South and Kavanaugh was called upon. He began to hit, field and show "pep" in large quantities, with the result that he has remained at second and is one of the most active aids on the coaching lines. Baumann was sent to the Tigers' farm at Providence. Hugh Jennings considers Kavanaugh the richest prize he has gathered in recent seasons. The cost was $1,200.

The playing of Marty Kavanaugh at second base continues to be the sensation of the Tigers' work, and now that the team is winning Ty Cobb has begun to bat fearfully hard and cut up on the base paths with all his old-time dash and seeming disregard for set rules of progress. Kavanaugh is a Harrison (N. Y.) youngster whose rise has been remarkable when viewed from all angles.

READING MAKES HAY HARRISBURG LOOKS ON

O'Neil Was the Weak Spot in Yesterday's Harvest For the Pretzels

Rather early for cutting hay, but there was some moving at Reading yesterday. Reading raked up Harrisburg, score 8 to 3. Southpaw O'Neil was the tender blade that proved a good morsel with Izzy Hoffman's Pretzels.

Reading's harvest ended in the third inning. There was very little left for Harrisburg to gather, but by persistent efforts the senatorial crowd managed to gather three runs from the stubbles. Phillips, one of Cockill's youngsters, went to the relief of O'Neil, who had been touched up for five runs in the first inning.

After getting thoroughly acquainted with the Reading bunch, Phillips settled down and pitched a good game. There was some fielding by Harrisburg that helped in the run getting, but it was the icing in the first period that gave Reading the big lead. Beaver, an Albright College boy, had the goods and for a time puzzled Harrisburg hitters.

Sensational work was in order, Manager Hoffman showed he was still in the game. Reading also pulled off two fast double plays which put a crimp in Harrisburg's chances when prospects were bright. The score follows:

HARTMAN EASY PICKING—Wilmington, Del., May 15.—Allentown won from the Chicks yesterday, score 8 to 1. The Teutons found Hartman's curves easy to solve. "Kid" Swoyer was a star. NO CHANGES IN FEDS—Chicago, Ill., May 15.—James A. Gilmore, president of the Federal Baseball League, denied there would be any changes in the Federal League circuit this year.

There is absolutely nothing in the report that we intend transferring the Kansas City team to Bellevue, Ky., on the Ohio river opposite Cincinnati, or to Cincinnati, said Gilmore. A report from Cincinnati last night said the Kansas City club would be transferred to that city within the next month, and that a deal for a ball park would be closed there to-day.

CENTRAL LEAGUE GAMES—The Central Pennsylvania Baseball League schedule for to-morrow includes: Steelton A. C. vs. New Cumberland, at New Cumberland; Middletown vs. Highspire, at Highspire.

BITS OF SPORTS—Wilmington to-day and to-morrow, "Chick" Emerson is expected out of the hospital to-day. Byers says his "charleyhorse" is passing away slowly. President George Graham was in Harrisburg a short time yesterday. He said "all is well in the Tri-State, and Harrisburg has a winning team." The Redheads were victorious over the Pintails in the Duckpin League last night, margin 50 pins.

HIGH SCHOOL MEET IS IMPORTANT EVENT

Close Competition Is Expected in Each of the Fifteen Events To-morrow

Interest in high school athletics will be centered in Harrisburg to-morrow. Championship honors will be at stake in the eighth annual Pennsylvania high school track meet at Municipal Field. New records and new stars are looked for.

With rollers, picks, shovels and brooms an army of winners in excellent condition to-day. Recent rains helped to pack the cinder and a fast track can be expected. With the addition of two more points to settle in each event the smaller high school, sending only a half-dozen athletes, promises to be a factor in the final result.

Tech High has been picked by close observers to win the meet to-morrow, but within the past three days the work of the Central squad has been of a sensational character and there is every indication that Central may spring some surprises. Steelton won the meet last year and with the exception of three of their stars will offer the same team this year. Under Coach Tom Gaffney some promising new material has been developed. Steelton will be prominent, say reports.

In all thirteen high schools will mix up in to-morrow's annual battle. Altoona is a newcomer this year. There will be Carlisle, Bloomsburg, Elizabethtown, Lykens, Millersburg, Milton, Phillipsburg, Waynesboro and last, but not least, Reading. The latter team anxious to settle the question of permanent possession of the championship shield, will have a large bunch of fast men in all events.

A popular feature this year will be the starting of the dashes and running events at different points on the track. This will give everybody an opportunity to see events started and finished. Heretofore only those on the grandstand have enjoyed the get-away and wind-up spurts. Arrangements for the field events will also permit spectators to see the young athletes at work and at the same time take in the distance events.

With A. H. Hull as the clerk of the course it is certain that all events will be started on time. Athletes who do not answer the calls promptly will be barred. The plan to have all athletes seated on one section of the grandstand met with a hearty approval. This will keep the view over the field clear and permit the big crowd to see everything that is going.

The meet will start promptly at 2 o'clock. Seats are on sale at Tunis' bookstore, North Third street and the sale will continue until noon to-morrow. Already the advance sale has been large. No admission will be charged to the field. The only charge will be for reserved seats.

YOU ASK WHAT'S THE USE OF LATIN?

Go to Central High School and Take Peek at Exhibit There

What's the use of Latin? Miss M. Katherine McNitt's pupils of the Central High School have answered this question in a concrete way. They have prepared 125 large charts which are on exhibition in the halls of the second floor of the Central High School.

The first half illustrates the benefits of the study of Latin to a student of English, French, Italian, Spanish, German and science, including physiology, zoology, physics, chemistry, medicine, and modern inventions.

The second half contains (1) manuscript letters from prominent citizens, emphasizing the advantages of Latin; (2) a comparison of ancient and modern thought in such topics as the high cost of living, woman's suffrage, municipal elections, and divorce; (3) cards tracing the origin of the ideas of our finest architecture, sculpture, paintings, mural decorations, etc., to ancient Greece and Rome.

The classical boys and girls have invaded the domain of manual training.

ing, for they have constructed a model of Caesar's bridge, a scorpion, vine, assaulting tower, a plume, a roll of papyrus (liber), a Roman temple, an agger, a Roman camp, and relief maps of ancient Rome and "Omnis Gallia."

An hour spent at this exhibition will convince the most skeptical that Latin is by no means a "dead language."
