

Women AND THEIR Interests

EVERYTHING DEPENDS ON YOU

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

(Copyright, 1914, by Star Company.)
Whatever you are here on earth, whatever you possess, whatever you have in some life earned. And upon you, and you alone, depends your next situation. If you are poor and ill-health and you are determined to improve your condition by industry, economy and sensible living, though you may die before you attain your aim, still you have laid the foundation for a better fortune and a better body in the next incarnation.

If you have longed for education and accomplishment, if you have striven to obtain them, every effort you make will be placed to your credit when you come again.
If you have beauty, talent, wealth and are not making good use of them, it is called good karma. She who leaves the race better off for your having lived—then you will be obliged to return without beauty, without talent, without wealth, and work your way back to divine favor.
This great law of cause and effect is called karma.

We are all making good or bad karma, every hour.
The fair working girl who is turning away from the temptation to wear the apparel at the cost of her self-respect, and who is seeing herself grow faded and careworn while she toils to support an old mother or a little child, is called good karma. She is preparing a beautiful body and fair raiment and a happy environment for herself in the next incarnation.

The companion who laughs at her while she drives by in her "protectors" motor car is making bad karma. She is preparing an ugly or deformed body for herself when she comes again, a body which will not be attractive to vice, and she will have to do the toll she has refused to do here. There is no escaping the law of karma, which is the law of justice.

Fashioning Every Soul From New Material Wouldn't Be Fair

If you have been educated on traditional lines you are thinking that the Creator of this vast universe makes each soul from new material and sends it to quicken the unborn child at a certain period.
If you think anything at all about the matter beyond that, you must wonder why one of these God-made souls is sent into a palace, another into a slum.
If you decide that some are made to suffer and be poor and unfortunate on earth, in order that they shall shine above their affluent brothers after they go to heaven, then you must think the Creator a very partial and unjust being, or He would not show such favoritism.

Any way you reason it out you will find the whole matter incompatible with justice unless you accept the idea of reincarnation.
Briefly told, the idea is that the Great Power which made the universe has always existed and will always exist. And all that exists has always existed, and every soul that animates the body of any human being to-day has animated the bodies of innumerable beings over and over again.

It is, of course, a very vast thought. But the idea is not one which is difficult to grasp than the modern one, that each soul is made out of new material and that the beginning of life was a few thousand years ago. It is easier to imagine a circle without beginning and without end than a straight line which begins nowhere.

The creative power is so vast that it is almost uncomprehensible. But we have to accept that as a fact.
And it is so magnificent and stupendous a fact that it thrills the mind and heart and soul, unless all are atrophied or undeveloped.

This earth is only one of millions of worlds more wonderful, and we are but expressions of that vast power.
Everything that exists anywhere is divine. There is nothing which is not an expression of what we call God.

In the course of eons of time we have occupied many bodies and many worlds; and we are in this world what our former lives made us. We will be in our next incarnation just what we are now preparing ourselves to be.

The law governing this universe is the law of cause and effect. If in some former existence you lived a life of luxury and license, if you "trod flowery paths of dalliance" and ignored the voice of reason and wisdom, then are back in this world for the purpose of working out your debt to the universe. You are poor, frail of body, and between you and health and success and comfort and happiness lie seemingly insurmountable obstacles. You look on other more fortunate human beings and you wonder why God has been so unkind to you.

You Have the Power to Mould Your Destiny For Next Coming

But you have made your own destiny. And now you possess the power to change that destiny.
You can change it to a wonderful degree, here and now; and you can build a glorious destiny for your next coming.

It is possible that your next life will be spent on some other planet; but wherever you go, the character you are now making will shape your destiny. Besides that, there are intervening "heavens" and "hells," through which we must pass and in which we must dwell, according to our deserts, and each thought and act of your life here is determining what your experiences in those planes of existence will be.

Modern creeds have taught the selfish, mercenary and self-indulgent woman that when she dies, asking God to forgive her sins, she will immediately join the host of the lovely child who passed away in early youth.
But such a woman has not made such a reunion possible. She will have to earn her admission before she will be admitted to the realm where her child dwells.

Those who think hate and envy and malice, those who live wholly and only for the enjoyment of the senses, must seek their own kind in the intervening realms.

Spiritual birds of a feather flock together, as well as the earth birds.
This consciousness should act as a mighty stimulus to persistent and patient effort, to self-conquest and self-government; conquest of the unworthy and weak and indolent impulses; development of the worthy and strong and aspiring side of our natures.

For every such effort means a step forward toward realization of our ideal and its absolute attainment, either here or elsewhere.

Fate Can't Circumvent the Firm Resolve of Your Soul

We can be what we will to be. There is no chance, no destiny, no fate. Can circumvent, or hinder, or control the firm resolve of a determined soul.

Gifts count for little; will alone is great.
All things give way before it, soon or late.
What obstacle can stay the mighty force of the sea seeking river in its course, or cause the ascending orb of day to wait?

Each well born soul must win what it deserves.
Let the fool prate of luck. The fortunate is he whose earnest purpose never swerves.

Whose slightest action or inaction serves. The one great aim. Why, even death stands still. And waits an hour, sometimes, for such a will.

ROMPERS LIKE THIS VERY SERVICEABLE

KOLONIAL KIDS

A great deal has been said during the past year in the newspapers about the Colonial Kids, an aggregation of juvenile musicians being trained at the Colonial Theater by Dick Kilgore, the musical manager. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week the public is going to have a chance to see what can be accomplished when a definite purpose backs up ambition. Harrisburg has one of the best boys' bands in the country, and they will be of the Colonial Theater program the first three days of the week just to show what the kids can lay claim to in the line of youthful talent. There will be vaudeville and moving pictures besides. The boys' band will give four concerts daily.—Advertisement.

Rheumatic Throat Is Common Trouble

Should Be Treated in Blood To Prevent Recurrence.

There are successful gargles that stop soreness in the throat, but to prevent their necessary return, the blood must be put in order. The best remedy is S. S. S., as it influences all the functions of the body, neutralizes the irritants or waste products and to stimulate their excretion through the proper channels.
Rheumatic sore throat is a dangerous indication, as it means that the blood is loaded with more uric acid than the kidneys can excrete, and thus lead to serious general disturbance.
The action of S. S. S. stimulates cellular activity. It prevents the formation of irritants in local spots. It enables the arteries to supply quickly the new red blood to replace the old.
For this reason uric acid that finds the throat an easy prey to its breaking-down influence is scattered and eliminated. In other words, S. S. S. prevents chronic conditions by enabling all the mucous linings of the body to secrete healthy mucus. Its influence is shown in a marked improvement of the bronchial tubes, whereby the huskiness of voice with thick, grayish excretions is overcome. S. S. S. well diluted with water, means a blood bath. It is welcome to any stomach and at once gets into the system.
S. S. S. is free of all minerals and contains ingredients wonderfully conducive to well-being.
You can get it at any drug store, but do not accept anything else. There is danger in substitutes. S. S. S. is prepared only by The Swift Specific Co., 225 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Our Medical Dept. will give you free instruction by mail on any subject of blood disorders. Write today.

BRUMBAUGH MAN FOR HIGH OFFICE

William Lauder Talks About the Republican Who Will Be Named For Governorship

William Lauder, of Riddlesburg, Bedford county, a member of the State Board of Education, a man thoroughly acquainted with Superintendent Brumbaugh and his executive capacity, in a recent interview has described Dr. Brumbaugh's methods as an administrator connected with the State Board of Education and in charge of the public school system of Philadelphia, controlling 5,000 teachers, 132,000 pupils and a plant worth $20,000,000.
His description shows the type of man who is now a candidate before the people for the governorship of the State.
"Brumbaugh is not a 'desk administrator.' He believes too much in people to be content to push buttons and handle rubber stamps. Always he is seeking the personal touch with the men and women who work with him. No unexpected 'orders' go out from his office. If a big thing is to be done, he gathers his staff about him and 'talks it over.' The idea is never a small one or is it ever a selfish one. In a short time he will have the most reluctant opponent on his side and an enthusiastic supporter. He has large vision, a sure insight into the movement of events and an intense conviction—amounting almost to religious fervor, of the sacred task of educating all the children of all the people. It is always for the good of the coming generation that he speaks, of those who are now children but whose will be the men and women in whose hands our destinies lie. Small-minded people become great by the contact of his presence—they partake of his own greatness and gather strength from him."

AMUSEMENTS

PALACE THEATER

At the Palace Tuesday, Grace Cunard and Francis Ford will be featured in the third series of "Lucille Love, the Girl of Mystery."

At the opening of the third chapter, Lucille Love is discovered more dead than alive on the beach of the South Sea Island, where she had been cast by the storm which had wrecked the small boat in which she escaped from the burning liner Empress. As she regains consciousness she makes sure that she has the papers which she had taken from Loubeque, the return of which will save her father and sweetheart from disgrace. She has them in the bosom of her dress.

As she looks about she sees a band of savages and tries to escape. It is all in vain; they overtake her and make her captive. The savages, however, seem to consider her a sacred being, and the chief takes her to his hut, where his little daughter is sick, and asks Lucille to cure her. Lucille sets to work and nurses the chief's daughter. She quiets her and makes her comfortable. The chief then assigns a house to her and the sign language tells her that she will be perfectly safe there.

In this hut Lucille for the first time learns the secret of Loubeque's life through reading his diary and seeing the picture of her own mother, who was the only love of the international spy's life.

When the crisis of the illness of the chief's little daughter is past, and she recovers, the chief is extravagant in his praise and in the things he says. He gives her a sacred amulet, or charm in the shape of a white elephant. By virtue of this sacred object all the native become Lucille's slaves. The chief changes the charm about Lucille's neck, and in token of the service she has rendered she is permitted to ride the holy elephant as a mark of the royal favor, and all the natives bow before her.

But Loubeque has escaped the fury of the waves, too, and has been cast up on the same island. He has seen Lucille's refuge. Loubeque sees the honor which is being conferred upon the girl who has dispatched the chief, and he is filled with hate and determination to get them back. There comes upon the scene at this moment a native of an anarchistic turn of mind, who hates anything which has to do with the white woman. Loubeque sees him and by virtue of their common cause they join forces. Loubeque, however, chokes the savage nearly to death to show him who is master.

Together they plot to make way with Lucille. Soon an opportunity offers. Lucille is restless and as she is regarded as a sacred person and can go anywhere without a word of warning on the sand dunes. The native, Loubeque, new slave, surprises her and starts to strangle her. She, however, would all have been over had not the sacred amulet, which the chief had hung about her neck, escaped from her dress and attracted the attention of the girl, who the talisman works. He desires and bows three times before her. She is saved.

But Loubeque will not be defeated so easily. He plots to drive Lucille out of her hut so that he can secretly offer her, and for that purpose he and the native catch snakes and put them through the cracks of the door into her hut. Lucille, of course, is terrified and runs into the night. Loubeque searches for her but cannot find her. He goes away more angry and determined than ever. He watches the hut as Lucille returns. She fears to stay there and resolves to escape through the jungle. She goes to the chief's hut but decies not to waken him and slips away into the doubly dark shadows of the jungle. But nothing can escape the crafty eyes of the spy. He has followed every movement of the girl, who does not even suspect that her enemy is on the island.

Loubeque is not the only enemy that poor Lucille has to contend with. The jungle is full of wild beasts, and she has not gone far before she encounters a ferocious lion. Lucille is horrified and tries desperately to escape.

Ethel Graudin and Robert Honley will also be featured in a two-act play, "Miss Nobody From Nowhere," besides O. J. O'Connell and Barbara Tennant in an Eclair drama, "Price." Vivian Prescott and Charles De Forrest, in Crystals' sensational work, a hilarious farce of exceptional work and merit, a veritable whirlwind of fun and merriment entitled "Almost a Bridegroom."—Advertisement.

SERIOUS STABBING AFFRAY IN STREET

Fred Ghant, in Jealous Rage, Cuts Man and Woman at Mechanicsburg

Special to The Telegraph
Mechanicsburg, Pa., May 18.—Stung by jealousy, Fred Ghant, colored, stabbed George Keiser and Eleanor Keiser, both colored, on Saturday night and was taken to the jail at Carlisle after a hearing before Squire Mohler to await a trial in court.

Keiser accompanied the girl to the movies on Saturday night, which stung Ghant that he followed the couple to North Arch street, where he stabbed his rival in the jaw, inflicting a long gash, with a knife which broke off in the bone. The wound is considered serious. He next attacked the girl and cut her in the side, but was prevented from doing further injury by interference from others, who rushed in and pulled Ghant away. Officer Cocklin arrived on the scene promptly and placed Ghant in the lockup till this morning, when the determination to try him was made. Ghant is a colored man, Keiser being employed at Irving College and Ghant by Dr. W. H. Meyer.
