Their Married Life

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

"He didn't say when he'd be back—he didn't leave any message," persisted Helen. "Hello! Oh, Central, DON'T cut me off! Hello... And you haven't any idea where I might get him now?—Well, give me the number and I'll try." John 1734."

"I'm glad," simply. "None of the others have come yet, and I can see that Bob cares—dreadfully. Here's a telegram from my father. He wants you to come on to Palm Beach—but Bob's not able to go that far."

"But, Warren, you MUST come!" desperately. "Bob would never forgive you, why the whole family—"

"Here the phone rang, and she turned to answer it. "Hello! Yes, I'm all ready. We'll come in right away. It's Bob," turning from the phone. "They're waiting for us now—across the hall."

"What had precipitated this hurried ceremony? Louise had intimated over the phone that there had been a scene the night before, verging on one of their old misunderstandings, and she had threatened to return to Florida. Instead, they were to be married this afternoon."

"This young lady was about to elude me again—I decided this was the only way to keep her. It didn't give us time for a wedding with frills, but I guess we don't need the "looking down at her tenderly."

"Helen was much too excited to eat any lunch, and by one o'clock she was dressed, waiting anxiously for Warren. If he shouldn't come, she would wait. He came, but in a scowling ill-humor."

"The next fifteen minutes were painfully strained. Bob keenly sensitive to the cold disapproval of his family, tried to carry things off with a forced smile. Louise escaped to get on her wraps. Helen went with her, helped tie on her long veil and put the last few things into her hand-bag. Her trunk had already been taken down."

"Where's this stunt to be pulled off?" he demanded, as they took the car at the corner.

"Down stairs, to avoid a starting crowd, the cab waited them at a side entrance. Bob and Louise had the first cab, on top of which was their baggage. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis the second, and Helen and Warren were with Carrie and Lawrence in the third."

Spring and Summer Needs of Quality at Unrivalled Prices

The Weather Prophets say we are to have a long, hot summer and have theory for their statements, so better fortify yourself with a good sanitary, economical Refrigerator.

At a recent convention of the American Medical Association the following STARTLING STATEMENT was made by one of the greatest medical authorities in the United States:

"The average refrigerator is only 30 per cent. efficient. 70 per cent. of the ice power is used up in overcoming heat which percolates in from without. Wasted ice means not only wasted food, but often wasted lives from spoiled food."

The healthfulness of 90 per cent. of your food is absolutely dependent upon the efficiency of your refrigerator. It is of vital importance to the health of your family that your refrigerator shall keep your food sweet, wholesome and untainted.
