SURE WAY TO GET RID OF DANDRUFF

End Itching Scalp and Stop Falling Hair—At Once.

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it no matter how much dandruff you may have. You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. If you want to keep your hair looking rich, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—Advertisement.

Never Mind How Strong You Are—What d'ye Know?

That's the point—"What d'ye KNOW?" To-day it's a battle of wits—and brains win. Muscle and brawn don't count so much as they used to. In the fight for good jobs and big salaries it's brains—not brawn—that win. "What d'ye KNOW?" is the one great question that draws the line between defeat and victory—between "wages" and "salary"—between you and the Boss.

What do YOU know? Are YOU so expert in some line of work that you can "make good" as a foreman, superintendent, or manager? If not, why don't you mark and mail the attached coupon and permit the International Correspondence Schools to show you how you CAN "make good" on a big job?

For 23 years the I. C. S. has been showing men how to do better work and earn bigger salaries. Every month over 400 students write of promotions or salary increases through I. C. S. training. What the I. C. S. are doing for these men they can do for YOU. No matter where you live, how old you are, what hours you work, or how limited your education—if you can read and write and are ambitious to learn the I. C. S. can train you in your own home, during your spare time, for a more important and better-paying position. Mark and mail the attached coupon—it won't obligate you in the least—and the I. C. S. will show you how you can acquire this salary-raising ability by their simple and easy methods. It will cost you nothing to investigate—it may cost a lifetime of remorse if you don't. Mark and Mail the Coupon NOW.

Aunt Este's Stories For Children

My dear little ones: How would you enjoy hearing a ghost story of that funny bird we all so much enjoy—the Poll Parrot? Well, listen, and I shall tell you. HOW THE PARROTS PLAYED GHOST. Once upon a time there was a great wild forest. It was so out by itself that there had never been heard inside it a human voice. The trees were full of all sorts of birds and the mountains were full of all sorts of beasts and the holes in the ground were full of all sorts of snakes, doing just what they pleased without ever being worried by man. All of the little creatures living in this wild place were contented and happy, and they were of no account to anybody. Into the wilds came strange beings—beings in queer clothes carrying guns. "We will try to make this place worth living in," they said. "We will shoot the wild animals and drive away the wild birds and kill the snakes. Then we will build houses and live in peace." The little birds and the beasts and the snakes and the holes in the ground did not understand what those queer people said, (for, of course, they were people), but they knew enough to know that it would mar their pleasant life. "Oh, dear me," said the bears and the wolves and the other beasts, "this means an end to the way we have been living. We will have to fight and run, and run and fight." "Oh dear me," said the little birds, "now we can't sit where we please and sing for we may be shot." Now among the birds of the forest lived some of brilliant plumage. Most beautiful birds indeed were they, so far as their feathers were concerned. But they had queer hooked beaks, and were not at all like the other birds and they could sing very pretty tunes, but had harsh voices that just seemed to make the most horrible discords all the time. The other birds had long necks. But after the strange people came, these birds, with their hooked beaks seemed to take notice. Every day instead of flying away to some crevice to grow about the newcomers they sat near to where the strange folk were gathered together talking, and watched their mouths. Then they went away to try the sounds they heard. "We'll shoot them," said the people. "We'll kill them and eat them." They dare not live. "We'll drive them out." They tried not to be afraid. But when night after night as the woods grew dark and lonesome and the snakes hissed and the birds sang and the snakes rattled, and they heard this strange chorus of voices, and could find no person in sight, they began to be afraid. One by one they left the great forest—until at last no one was left but the beasts and the birds and the snakes. "Now," said the Poll Parrots, when everything was peaceful and quiet once more, "come and bow down before us, and hail us as kings of the forest." And the little birds all were glad to do so. Even the huge beasts growled their praise, and the snakes hissed theirs. And the Parrot lived in the midst of praise. And the men? Well, they did not try the great forest again for many years—but when they did, they caught some of the foxy parrots and took them home in cages to show their children what wonderful birds they really were—and that is the reason the parrots like to swear and say naughty words to-day—because they have never forgiven the great men for taking away their freedom and dethroning them as kings in the great forest. Lovingly, AUNT ESTE
