INSTRUCTION CAMP WAS CANCELLED

General Stewart Says That It Will Not Be Held as Scheduled This Summer

Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart to-day announced that the proposed camp of instruction at Mt. Gretna for infantry, engineer and departmental officers of the National Guard, scheduled for June 7 to 11, had been cancelled.

The adjutant general stated that the reasons were insufficiency of available funds and inability of the War Department to detail the necessary officers to act as instructors.

It was the plan to hold the camp as in the last three years and arrangements had been practically perfected, while the number of officers who had agreed to attend was large. For some days it has been feared that because of officers of the regular army being ordered to their regiments that there would not be enough to meet requirements.

Headlong Plunge Saves Tot Falling Down Shaft

Special to The Telegraph

Greensburg, Pa., May 26.—P. J. McDonough plunged headlong down a 400-foot shaft south of Irwin and saved a two-year-old child from death Sunday afternoon.

McDonough is a special guard employed by the Westmoreland and the Penn Gas Coal Companies. He had promised the school children residing near the shaft that he would take them on an excursion through the mine and about 200 had gathered.

One little two-year-old chap, Tony Anda, had accompanied his brother. The little fellow wandered away from the rest of the crowd, toddled to the brink of the shaft and suddenly disappeared.

Without hesitation McDonough leaped forward and with a headlong plunge also disappeared.

When rescuers reached the bottom of the shaft they found McDonough lyconscious on top of the cage with the baby on his chest, its arms clasped tightly around his neck, alive and well.

McDonough told the story of the rescue when he regained consciousness. The swiftness of his plunge caused him to pass the baby, and in some manner he turned over and grasped the iron cable to break his fall.

"My arms were almost pulled out," said McDonough. Just as his feet touched the top of the cage the baby landed on his neck and shoulders. McDonough's ankle was broken, the ligaments torn loose in one of his legs and about 12 ribs broken.

MIDDLETOWN PARK OPENING FRIDAY

Force of Men Busy Putting Recreation Spot Into Shape For Lower End Folk

Municipal Park, Middletown's attractive little recreation place along the banks of the Swatara creek, will be opened to the public Friday afternoon.

Superintendent of Parks C. S. Few has a force of men at work putting in place the benches and tables and cleaning them in preparation for the opening. This is the first year that the park will be operated under the direction of the new park board. Already a number of improvements have been made to the little recreation place. Six swings have been erected and a large slide has been put up for the little tots. Sand boxes, seesaws, etc., will constitute the remainder of the equipment.

In speaking of the plans of the new park board, Superintendent Few said: "Although we are handicapped by a lack of funds, it is our desire to give Middletown one of the prettiest and best equipped parks in Dauphin county. We are rather proud of Municipal Park. All we ask of the people who go out to enjoy the place is that they remember that the park belongs to them, that it is their own property and that they protect it as such. The breaking of shrubbery, misuse of the benches and tables and the throwing of paper and refuse about the park will be stopped whenever possible."

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE IN PLAYGROUND FIGHT

Will Join With Civic Club in an Effort to Relieve the Conditions

The Steelton Municipal League last evening endorsed the movement, started by the Civic Club, to secure more playgrounds for the borough's youth.

President Harry Wright instructed the Playgrounds Committees of the League to confer with the Civic Club's representatives to outline the campaign. It is likely that the two organizations will concentrate their efforts during the present season in a campaign of education to show just what the needs of the borough are along these lines.

Prior to this time playground work was taken part in by the Civic Club alone. Under the auspices of this organization there were a number of playgrounds in operation at various parts of the borough. This year, however, there is but one playground. As there is as yet no public park near the borough it is necessary for the smaller children to play in the streets.

It is the plan of the two organizations now to try to remedy these conditions and give the borough's small folks a chance for a little recreation without endangering their lives.

THE GREAT DUMAS

Andrew Lang, Like Thackeray, "Wished For More"

Dumas won every vote but the vote of the envious. He made me happy, when a not particularly contented school boy. I read him often and Dumas improves at each time of reading. I have read him in French and I have read him in English. There is nothing better to be had. The heartiness, the large light, the loyalty, the tolerance, the wit, the brilliant and varied sequel of adventures rejoice the heart and carry us out of our own times and troubles into an enchanted world. Dumas is of the same period as Dickens, but is not at all like him. As one star is like another in glory, both are bright and shining lights. "I have read of our good friends, 'The Musketeers,' from the sunrise to sunset with utmost contentment of mind. They pass through many chapters. I wish for my part, there were hundreds more," says Thackeray. So do I.—Andrew Lane. Telegraph readers get our six volumes, imported edition of Dumas, while the supply lasts. Our Dumas offer will have to be withdrawn this week.

RAILROAD NEWS

LOCAL TRAINMEN HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Fifteen Cars of a Reading Freight Tumble Over Embankment; Traffic Delayed

Hagerstown, Md., May 26.—Fifteen cars of a Philadelphia and Reading freight train enroute to Rutherford yards near Harrisburg, were wrecked near Lurgan yesterday. The train was in charge of two Harrisburgers, C. N. Palmer, conductor, and R. W. Fortney, engineer. Both escaped injury.

It is the belief that the wreck was caused by a defective rail. All the cars were derailed. After tearing up the tracks for a distance of 200 yards the cars went over an embankment. Traffic was delayed seven hours until wreck crews from Hagerstown and Lurgan cleared up the wreckage.

The cars were loaded with coal and general merchandise. This was the first serious smashup in this section in many months.

Want Single Mileage Book on All Railroads

Harrisburg traveling salesmen and those who use mileage books are joining in a movement for a book good on any road in the United States.

Petitions favoring an interchangeable mileage book have been signed and sent to the Travelers' Protective Association, Philadelphia, where a meeting will be held to-night to discuss plans for a new mileage book.

Under the present system, a traveler must have five different mileage books to cover the railroads in the Eastern Trunk Line Association. The territory governed by the association is bounded by Pittsburgh on the west, the Atlantic ocean on the east; the Connecticut State line on the north and Washington on the south.

The movement to procure one mileage book is also being boosted by business firms in Baltimore and New York. It is contended that the inauguration of one interchangeable mileage book would not entail any additional expense to the railroads.
