Elmer Beachler Dies From Shock of Electric Stroke While Crossing River

New Cumberland, Pa., May 28.

During the heavy storm last evening many fine trees, including a large locust in front of the Steam Dye and Bleach Works, were blown down. A number of telegraph wires were torn Barn Burned, Buildings Unroofed and Trees Broken in Lancaster County Goldsboro, Pa., May 28. — Elmer Beachler, 23, was crossing the Susquehanna in a rowboat yesterday afternoon when killed by lightning. There was not even a trace of a mark on the body. A physician said the shock of the flash had probably killed him, the bolt not actually hitting him. Beachler lived on Shelley's Island, near here. Henry Miller, a neighbor, who, with his son, saw Beachler drop after the flash of lightning, went after the boat and found the young man lying in its bottom. He was unconscious and died soon after being taken to the shore on this side. Barn in Juniata County of ex-Judge Elliott Groninger, the

Much Damage Done by Wind and Lightning in Section Near Marietta

Marietta, Pa., May 28.—This section was visited about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon with one of the most severe storms in the history of the community, the wind bringing destruction in its path. In many parts of the town large fruit trees were laid to the ground, a huge glass in the Cassel building was broken and at the store of B. & C. S. Spangler there was also a large glass broken. Many roofs were stripped of shingles and the telephone and electric car service was out for a time. The rain, which fell in torrents, washed the streets and alleys very badly and vivid peals of thunder and lightning accompanied it. Some hail fell also.

At Chickies Park eight large trees were blown down, the tent of Mr.
Ormsby destroyed and other damage done.

At Maytown there were many trees

Fairies and Joseph W. Cummings, the stenographers, and when they have too much work they can dictate to the dictagraph for the assistants to write out in longhand.

At Chickles Park eight large trees were blown down, the tent of Mr. Ormsby destroyed and other damage done.

At Maytown there were many trees blown down and on the farm of Abram Grove his large tobacco shed was blown to pieces, entailing a considerable loss.

At the home of Mrs. George Hiestand, on the Maytown and Marietta turnpike, the beautiful yard there is a wreck. Trees and shrubbery are practically ruined and much damage was done to the lawn by water. Several boats that were tied along the Susquehanna river were loosened from their moorings and carried down the stream. Evans' run overflowed its banks and Chickles creek was also up to the high water mark.

Just two years ago there was such a storm on the day of the opening of the Wild Cat Club, when a huge tree was blown down near the cafe where were seated a large number of men.

In the Marietta Cemetery considerable damage was done by the wind blowing down trees and tombstones, many persons having just finished fixing their lots for the Memorial Day celebration.

The worst damage done was on the Marietta and Mount Joy turnpike, where lightning struck a large barn on the Schlegelmilch farm, tenanted by Henry Kauffman. Mr. Kauffman conducts a dairy and was just about ready to bring the cows into the barn when the fire started. The entire contents, farming machinery, plows, grain drills, thresher, were destroyed. The adjoining small buildings caught fire and were destroyed. The cattle, which were in the fields and barnyards, were saved, and horses in the barn were gotten out with difficulty. A pig roasted and another was so badly burned that it was killed to end its sufferings.
