

Republicans Cheer Two Stirring Speeches Calling Them to Line of Battle

State Chairman William E. Crow and Secretary W. Harry Baker Re-elected For Coming Year

PLATFORM WILL BE ADOPTED JULY 15

Meeting to Be Held in Philadelphia; Session Marked by Enthusiasm

W. HARRY BAKER, Re-elected State Secretary

Stalwart Republicans of Pennsylvania were called to the battle line today to return to the ranks of the Republican column in two stirring speeches at the meeting for organization of the Republican state committee...

State Chairman William E. Crow, of Uniontown, was re-elected after the committee had been enthused to repeated cheering by a speech by ex-Congressman Josiah D. Hicks and then the committee, after providing for a committee of eleven to meet with the state chairman and the state candidates, adjourned to meet in Philadelphia on July 15.

For a meeting which, it was expected, would be purely formal, the session was one of the liveliest held in a long, long time. Men who have not been active in politics turned up and there were few proxies. The whole roll was called. The state officials being able to certify to the election of about four-fifths and the remaining names being supplied by chairmen.

Ex-Senator John S. Fisher, of Indiana, the man who headed the legislative commission which investigated the Capitol frauds, was elected as temporary chairman and W. Harry Baker as secretary. The former senator, who is a power in Western Pennsylvania politics, was heartily greeted when he took the platform and his congratulations upon the fine turn out of stalwart Republicans stirred things going.

He said he was glad to look into the faces of veterans who had weathered many storms and were now ready to go out again in the cause of stalwart Republicanism.

PARK EXPERT MAKES SUGGESTIONS AS TO CAPITOL EXTENSION

Manning Thinks Harrisburg Planning Commission Should Have Voice in Matter

WOULD CONTINUE HIGHWAYS

Thinks Subway Should Be Built at State Street and Amphitheater Erected

An amphitheater spacious enough to seat 3,000 or 4,000 people; a subway instead of a bridge at State street; continuance of the city highways along present lines; maintenance of a certain uniformity of cornice and architectural design for abutting buildings—these are a few of the problems Park Expert Warren H. Manning believes should be considered in the development of the Capitol Park extension.

Furthermore, the city landscape architectural authority thinks Harrisburg's City Planning Commission should have a voice in the jurisdiction and laying out of the great grounds surrounding Pennsylvania's Capitol buildings.

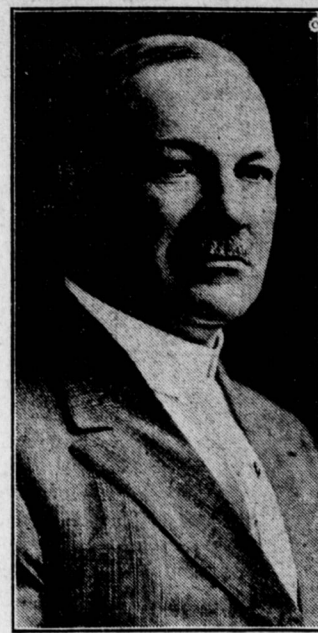

After a busy two days with the planning commission, Park Commissioner M. Harvey Taylor, Assistant Superintendent Hoffer and Playground Supervisor J. K. Staples, Mr. Manning returned to Boston last night.

Crossing to Cameron Parkway During his visit here he put in much time conferring with the property owners along the proposed extension of the parkway which will run from Derry street, Paxtang Cemetery and in the southern end of the city. "Negotiations haven't been closed as yet," said one of the commissioners yesterday, "but we are making progress."

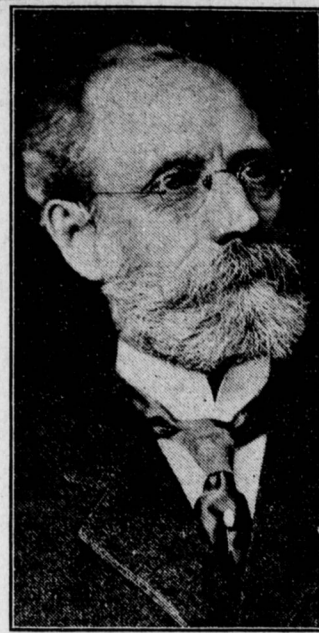

Considerable time was put in by the park expert and Mr. Taylor in the southern section of town with a view to determining a course from the present limit of the river front park to connect with the Cameron parkway. Across the upper portion of the Central Iron and Steel Company's grounds and thence to connect in some way with the banks of Paxton creek is one of the plans. The most serious problem is to devise means of getting across the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Republicans Can See Nothing in Sight But Great Victory Next Fall

This city has been the scene of many political gatherings, but in all the years of its history as a political center it has never happened that three political parties held important conferences on the same day. Republicans, Democrats and Progressives and Prohibitionists are represented by their regularly constituted bodies to-day for the purpose of electing chairmen of the three State committees and enunciating platforms for the consideration of the voters this year. To-morrow the Washington party committee will have a session in this city for the purpose of electing a significant feature of the gatherings to-day was the unmistakable harmony manifest in the conferences of Republican district leaders. All the bickering of recent years seem to have disappeared in the determination of the earnest men who met here to submerge all differences for the good of the party generally and the people as a whole. This was more conspicuous by reason of the undercurrent of bitterness and division which worried the Democratic bosses. There was little effort made to hide the serious differences which are certain to defeat the plans of the reorganization clique that took over the Democracy a year or two ago.

Wherever two or more Republicans met they exhibited confidence in the outcome of the campaign and reported an increased sentiment among Republicans all over the State favorable to a getting together of all the elements for an old-fashioned victory next November.

FRILLS AND THRILLS FOR GIRL STUDENTS IN COOKING SCHOOL

Directors Friday to Consider Committee Recommendation to Include Course This Fall

Cooking, baking, sewing and all the other housekeeping duties that are included in the home economics course for the girls of the Central high school will be taught this Fall if the School Board at its meeting Friday evening adopts the recommendations of the special committee.

And the study of domestic science at the high school will not be without its thrills and frills. The cooking, baking and similar lessons will furnish the thrills; the frills will be supplied in the shape of dainty lacy caps and aprons for the girl students. For these, according to President Harry A. Boyer, of the board, are to be recommended for the fair students and will likely be furnished by the School Board.

Dr. Yates, it is understood, may submit a minority report opposing the institution of the course this Fall. The committee recently visited the Reading high school and got a lot of information there.

That there will be a scrappy session at Friday evening board meeting is pretty generally predicted. The recommendation to establish domestic science in the high school this year is likely to start something and some more fun is due to fly when the special committee to investigate a better method of handling and collecting the school funds reports.

Directors Warner Yates and Kennedy constitute this committee. In addition to reporting on the tax collection method it is understood that reference will be made to the question of George W. McIlhenny's fitness to serve as school treasurer. Mr. McIlhenny had been charged with serving as a book and furniture agent while acting as treasurer. This, it is said, cannot be substantiated by the committee.

On that reply would hinge, it was believed, the fate of the mediation.

TRY HARD FOR HARMONY

Machine Bosses Try to Put Their Program Through on Greased Planks

The Democratic State committee began its meeting at the Board of Trade hall with every prospect of a good old family row at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. All morning long the adherents of the two wings were flapping and to complicate matters a movement was started by W. J. Brennan, of Pittsburgh, to upset the Palmer-McCormick plan for a local option plank in the platform. Brennan was backed by the Philadelphians and some up-State people.

The machine seemed to be in control when the meeting began and rumors of a peace parley were in the air as Congressmen Palmer and Eugene C. Bonnell had been seen talking together. A number of postmasters and prospective postmasters were also talking peace, but whenever McCormick or any of his particular partisans came along all talk of harmony dissolved. Michael J. Ryan may have declared for the ticket, but some of his followers have not.

"Psychological" Moment At the "psychological" moment State Chairman Morris called the meeting to order and the roll call had hardly started when Palmer and Bonnell came in together, followed by Dan Hart, of Luzerne, whom the

Reducing The Rent

Mr. Storekeeper, did you ever figure out that you can utilize advertising to reduce your fixed charge for rent? How? By the very greatly increased business it will bring you. Just figure your advertising cost as part of the rent and figure your new percentage on the greater volume. If it does not work out you have not given the public what they want. The results of advertising in a good newspaper like the Telegraph are as certain as anything can be if you have voiced your appeal properly.
