charge of, the audience in order that the auditorium may be emptied in a prompt manner. In this connection, and supporting the above suggestions, Nathan Appel, who is an owner of Harrisburg and other Pennsylvania theaters, with Wilmer and Vincent, expressed the hope that the Pennsylvania Depart-ment of Labor and Industry would adopt standards for theaters which would make them in every respect safe and proper for their purposes. In doing so, however, he said he be-lieved that the question of other places of assemblage should be guard-ed with care as the danger connected therewith was in many respects an even greater meace to the people than in theaters. The statement made by Mr. Appel is undoubtedly true, as can be readily appreciated by thou-sands who attend popular public gatherings and observe the frequent crowding and poor exits.

gatherings and observe the frequent crowding and poor exits. Mr. Appel was attending the com-mittee of theater owners, theater em-ployes, State officials, city officials and others, gathered at the offices of the Department of Labor and Industry in Harrisburg for the purpose of draw-ing up a satisfactory code for the erec-tion and conduct of theaters in this Commonwealth.

Driscoll Rolled Out Meanwhile Palmer and McCormick and the candidates were meeting with the nine a block away unaware of the storm. The committee worked three mortal hours. D. J. Driscoll, of St. Mary's, tried to put in State-wide prohibition instead of local option and the roller ran over him. Next Dris-coll attacked some planks which would bar Democrats from holding minority places in Republican counties and got rolled over again. Notwithstanding reports the com-mittee meeting was not harmonious and there were some sharp things said. Driscoll refused to accept all that McCormick wanted and was rolled flat for his pains. The steam roller was in prime order. Finally the platform was assembled from the planks toted in by Palmer and adpted, Driscoll filing a minority report against the local option plank, which got lost in the shuffle, because no one would admit that it had been presented. The platform is somewhat shorter
