"Silvo" Is an Instantaneous Silver Cleaner

It is quite the simplest and most thorough silverware cleaner we have ever seen, and it is fully guaranteed to contain no acids or injurious poisons. No rubbing is required. All you have to do is to dip the tarnished piece in Silvo solution.

If you will bring your tarnished spoons or gold jewelry to our Drug Sundries Department this week the demonstrator in charge will clean them free of cost.

he must have the "O. K." from the chief and if he is a street fakir he does not get this "O. K." This will make your business streets clear and the public who want to be humbugged will have to go to the fair grounds to get it.

The Pickpocket
"This is another element that we should work together to eliminate from our streets. In reading the "Detective" I often see where pickpockets of national reputation have been arrested and given hours to leave the town. I want to say that when he is arrested in Harrisburg we give him ninety days in jail under the professional thief act, he can leave town and when he does leave he is glad to stay away. We would a great deal rather feed him for ninety days to give him a lesson than to shake hands with him and tell him to leave the town, and believe me we have not had to feed many lately, because you soon get a reputation among them that they will be given no chance, and it is better than a large corps of detectives to have your town get a bad name among thieves. We have had several habeas corpus cases, but the court allowed the sentence to stand because we had a self-made red light district, which by its own sense segregated a district without police regulations; but nevertheless it was a segregated district. We knew where they were and in consequence we could keep them indoors and prevented them from flaunting their business in the faces of the decent public and we had very little trouble with them. But they are gone. The whole lot was put out of business in about a week's time. Arrests were made in a number of instances and the balance, with the owners of the property, were returned to court without arrests and they closed up at once. A great many of them left town to go to continue their business elsewhere and I judge the question has been asked, "What right did I have to dump my dirt on my neighbor?" Those that did not leave town went in to rooming houses; some changed their names and moved into respectable districts and had to be moved again; some of them we find in the street and arrest, and it is a worse fight now to keep it from the good people than it was before. It is a large problem and I will not say at this time which is the best method, but will leave that to the good judgment of the chiefs who have had experiences both ways. I can say, however, that we have closed out our red light district.

"I want to say for those of you who have never visited Harrisburg, the Capital City of Pennsylvania, that it is a beautiful little city of 75,000 people, situated on the banks of the Susquehanna river, with seventy miles of paved streets, beautiful parks and good clear filtered water. It is a railroad center, and for that reason we capture quite a number of people wanted by other departments. We have a good, live police department, not yet quite up-to-date because we lack civil service, but we have an up-to-date identification bureau with Bertillon and finger-print systems, motorcycles, autopatrol, dictagraph, game-well reporting system and red-light signals and all the equipment at hand we stand ready to render any assistance in our power to any other department who may need us.

"I have been a member of this association for quite a number of years, but this is the first time that I have imposed upon your valuable time and I thank you for your attention and promise not to inflict you often."

HUTCHISON TELLS HOW HE DROVE VICE DEN

ing up was accomplished by returning a list of suspected houses with the names of the property owners to court. The Chief of Police says Harrisburg's police department is almost up-to-date and that the reason it is not altogether so is because it lacks civil service. He told the convention the methods employed here in driving out peddlers, fakirs, pickpockets, and so on.

The chief of police said in full: "I have been asked to prepare a paper to be read at this convention and I was somewhat at a loss to find a subject that has not been ventilated and even in this paper I have to touch on the social evil, but only to give my experience and not to argue on the question.

Clean City
"The title of this paper is given more for a name than to claim that we have an entirely clean city, as all of us must agree that no matter how hard we try we cannot make any city in a true sense clean; but by law and police regulations enforced we can greatly improve conditions, so that the streets may be clean from what might offend the orderly citizen and stranger that might come to your gates, and at the same time protect the public from being imposed upon by the many things that grow on our busy thoroughfares if we are not constantly on guard. In these days which take up so much of your time handling traffic to keep our streets from becoming congested we are liable to lose sight of other evils.

Says Eliminate Peddler

"The panhandler, or street beggar, shoe string peddler, and above all the street fakir should be eliminated. He is usually a broken down "con" man, short change artist, fair follower and even a pickpocket. His business is to beat the public in any way he can. In Harrisburg we do not allow this kind of work at all and we are fast getting rid of our own home street merchant and I believe that a great good could be accomplished by the general public protected by the co-operation of all the chiefs to eliminate the traveling fakir from the streets of their cities.

"As it is now I have had men with police records come to me asking street privileges and present letters from other chiefs, showing they had been allowed to work in the streets from town to town. This evil has long existed and cannot be broken up in a day, but why not make the start in that direction and in a short time you will have your business centers clean and the unsuspecting public will then deal only with your legitimate business men, who pay your taxes and is with you all the time.

How to Prevent Fakir

"Some chiefs may say, how are you going to prevent these fakirs from coming to your town when the city licenses them on the pavement for so much per day, which goes into the public treasury and that you dare not refuse them when they offer to pay. Let me say that if you take the trouble to hunt up the decisions on the question you will find that the high way belongs to the people and it is not legal for any city or town to rent space on the highway. The best method is the plan used by our city. I believe, and that is for the chief and license clerk to work together, and if a stranger applies for license
