attended him constantly. Captain of Detectives T. C. Johnston rode on the running board of his machine, scanning the crowds, following by an-other load of sleuths. The Roosevelt Address Colonel Roosevelt's principal address was divided into three parts, an attack on the Wilson administration, an in-dictment of "bosses" and an exposition of the nrinciples of the Progressive rose. "This is not only a political but a moral issue. I mention the name of Senator Penrose, merely because he typifies a class, I am not concerned without a state of the president of the person of the person typifies a class, I am not concerned typifies a class, I am not concerned the person tariff bill, made by President of senator penrose, merely because he to person tariff bill, made by President of the person tariff

with him as an individual; I am con-cerned with him as a type. Mr. Pen-rose stands in Pennsylvania as Mr. Barnes stands in New York. When we fight these men and their activities, we are fighting the battle of all decent men one hanceticular. we are fightparty. The administration's tariff laws Colonel Roosevelt hailed as a colossal failure, particularly hard upon the farmer; its anti-trust program he branded as an economic absurdity. Its foreign policy he styled as "wretched" but upon this he did not elaborate. The Democratic tariff he insisted we are ngnting the battle of an decent men, and in particular, we are fight-ing the battle of the honest Repub-lican rank and file, whom these men have misrepresented and betrayed. Wretched Foreign Policy "It is well to keep in mind that we now have Mr. Wilson's administration, that we now suffer from a wretched foreign policy and from home policies.

but upon this he did not elaborate. The Democratic tarif, he insisted, had brought distress upon the nation, had not lowered the cost of living and had chiefly benefited foreign rivals of American business. The solution rest-ed, he argued, in support of the Pro-gressive movement and the enact-ment of laws providing for tariff re-vision by a nonpartisan commission. Of the "bosses," Mr. Roosevelt said what he has heretofore—that they thwarted the rank and file of the Re-publican party by the nomination of Taft at Chicago and in so doing "de-liberately put the Democratic organi-zation and Mr. Wilson into power." international affairs which have set-lously impaired the well-being of our, people, primarily because of the ac-tion of Senator Penrose in associating with men of the same type like Mr. Barnes. Messrs. Penrose, Barnes and their associates at Chicago taking ad-vantage of the fact that national nom-inating conventions are not protected inating conventions are not protected by law, followed a course of conduct morally every whit as bad as that which at elections result in wrong-deers of humbled rank being put in stripes.

cannot go back to 1850, still less to 1650. "Third, we cannot destroy monopoly by attacking all forms of concentra-tion, whether monopolistic or not. "Fourth, we cannot destroy real monopoly by attacking its legal form. We must ad out and take away the real economic basis of monopoly, which is a very different thing. "Fifth, we can get no effective re-sults through the courts, with their slow and restricted procedure. "Sixth, we must encourage honest business, and allow that business con-centration which will give the power necessary to serve us. This policy of the enouragement of decent business is as important to the welfare of our people as is our other policy of effec-tive warfare against corrupt and un-fair business. "Seventh, there must be co-opera-
