By "Ump"

Patrick Reagan is the youngest player in the Tri-State. He is from Steelton and a mere mention of his name is sufficient.

If you want to be right, and stand in with Reagan you must call him "Pat." Everybody in Harrisburg who has ever attended a baseball game, seen a football battle or witnessed a basketball game at the armory, knows "Pat" Reagan. In Steelton where this athlete hails from, it is the same thing, only more so.

Reagan was signed by Manager George Cockill to help Charley Miller back of the bat. It is the young man's first appearance with professional baseball players. He is not under a regular contract, as Reagan still has the player and for this reason Reagan is considered one of an umber of good finds for Manager Cockill this year.
