Thousands of Eager-Eyed Youngsters Crowd Streets to See the Redskins

PLAY AUTO POLO IN CIRCUS

Pageant of Pioneer Days More Than Mile Long; Many Interesting Characters

Well it's here! What's here? Now isn't that just like a grown up? Why, what do you think it's here?

The circus? Of course! With all its war painted, feathered Redskins, whooping cowboys and dashing girl riders from the western plains the 101 Ranch Wild West Show drew thousands of youngsters from the city and its environs into the central part of the city this morning to see the parade.

The parade was a magnificent pageant of the old frontier days. The galaxy of cowboys, cowgirls, Indians, Mexicans and other interesting characters of pioneer times was everything that John and Mary Elizabeth expected.

While the wild West, of course, predominated, there were also Russian Cossacks in the parade whose daring and skillful horsemanship riding always produces a thrill although it is quite different from the cowboy stunts.

The parade was led by Joe Miller, of Miller Brothers and Arlington, the owners, mounted on an Arabian stallion which is declared to be one of the finest horses in the world. The saddle on which he rode, the press agents say, cost $5,800 and is decorated with twenty-two pounds of gold and silver and 255 diamonds, rubies and sapphires.

Mile and a Half Long
The parade was at least one mile and a half long and took about twenty minutes to pass a given point. It contained five bands of music, including a colored band and an Indian band, over one hundred gaily decorated Red Skins, a hundred cowboys and more than a score of cowgirls.

Probably the biggest feature of the parade was "Rocky Mountain Hank," an old "forty-niner," with long flowing hair and a beard.

Bryan Won't Shut Mouth Even For Sculptor's Cast

Special to The Telegraph
Washington, July 6.—Secretary of State Bryan refuses to close his mouth even long enough to have a mask made. Emmon Garret, sculptor, called at the State Department to make a life cast of the features of the secretary. It was Garret who made the death masks of Pope Leo XIII, King Carlos of Portugal and other men of note. He was met by a private secretary and explained his mission. "Tell me about it first," said the assistant secretary, "so I can explain the process to Mr. Bryan."

"Well, first you seat the subject in an operating chair," replied Garret. "Then after applying cold cream to the features to prevent the matrix from sticking the face is covered with soapy clay. Quills are inserted in the nostrils to permit the subject to breathe. Everything else, eyes, nose and mouth, is covered. The subject has to remain very still and by no means attempt to speak."

The assistant secretary was gone several minutes. When he reappeared he shook his head.

"He was all ready to say 'yes' until I told him about plastering up his mouth," he said. "The Secretary wouldn't stand for that part of the program."

CENTRAL FIRE ALARM EXCHANGE PLANS ARE SUBMITTED BY BELL

Commissioner Taylor Will Lay Scheme For Improving Service Before Council

WOULD SIMPLIFY CALLING

In Case of Fire Desk Officer Would Call Nearest Company to the Blaze

Two plans for installing central fire telephone exchanges at police headquarters—one to cost $855, the other to cost $780—have been submitted to City Commissioner M. Harry Taylor, Superintendent of Parks and Public Property, by S. B. Watts, local manager of the Bell Telephone Company.

The suggestions are the result of the conference Commissioner Taylor had with telephone officials several weeks ago, and while it is questionable as to whether the plans will be submitted to City Council to-morrow, Mr. Taylor said he means to go fully into both propositions in the near future with a view to obtaining a better still alarm call system for Harrisburg.

The Present System
Under the present system most any citizen who wishes to call a chemical apparatus to his house goes to the telephone and calls the nearest firehouse—provided he retains his presence of mind. If he is excited, however, he may call exchange and let it to the operator's judgment to call out the apparatus, or he may neglect to

While preparations for beginning work at the Second street subway are going briskly ahead, the Front street subway excavations are progressing steadily. The earth has been cut away from beneath the trestles which carry the tracks over the river.

The question of the disposal of the earth is still a problem, although city officials are confident it can be handled.

KLEIN CLOTHING CO. ON MARKET SQUARE IN RECEIVER'S HANDS

Job J. Conklin Appointed; Petition Is Presented to Court at Scranton

Gets the Girl's on the Boy and Vice Versa While Crowd on Bank Applauds

It all happened last evening between 5 and 6 o'clock, when someone called up the police station and said a boy and girl were bathing in the Susquehanna at foot of Front and Locust streets in the Garden of Eden prior to the fall.

Detective Harry White made record time getting to the water front. Arrived there he saw a chuckling crowd of men and women standing on the bank.

Down the steps rushed Sleuth White. "Get out of that water!" hissed the blushing Mr. White, while the crowd applauded. "Don't you know it's naughty to bathe without any clothes on?"

"It's it?" hissed the little girl. "Why, my mamma always takeths my clothes off when she washes me."

"Yep!" assented the lad, paddling out when White couldn't reach him. "That's what she does."

"Doth'n't yours?" asked the little girl, looking up at the sleuth wonderingly. And then the crowd applauded some more.

"If you do both to jail!" So the kids came out and the detective helped them to dress. "That belongs on the girl," shouted someone from the bank when the detective tried to put a flimsy garment on the boy. Then he got the waists mixed up.

"Heaven help me from getting another task like that," sighed White on his return to the police station. The youngsters gave their names as Rebekah and Samuel Ulovitz. They said they lived in Walnut street. Their ages were 4 and 5 years, respectively.

Trade Bill May Be Voted on This Week

Washington, D. C., July 6.—When the Senate resumed consideration of anti-trust legislation today, Democratic leaders prepared to make a determined effort to maintain a quorum to do business. The trade commission bill is the unfinished business before the Senate.

Considerable difficulty has been experienced by Senator Lewis, the Democratic "whip," in keeping a quorum in the Senate chamber. This, too, despite the fact that the action of the Democratic conference last week bound the majority Senators to stay in Washington until the Administration anti-trust program is disposed of.

Repeated roll calls have been necessary to secure a quorum. Warm weather and approaching primaries are believed to be responsible for the small attendance.

In order to expedite action on trust and other pending legislation, Majority Leader Kern is expected to ask that night sessions be held during the week. Belief is entertained that this would result in reaching a vote on the interstate trade bill before the close of the week.

BOX OF CARTRIDGES FOUND IN ATTIC OF DR. CARMAN'S HOME

Freeport Physician Tells Attorney He Did Not Know of Their Presence

CORONER RESUMES INQUEST

Authorities Firmly Believe Woman Fired Shot Which Killed Mrs. Bailey

Freeport, N. Y., July 6.—The inquest into the death of Mrs. Louise Bailey, wife of a New York manufacturer, who was shot and killed last Tuesday night while in consultation with Dr. Edwin Carman, a prominent Freeport physician, in his office, was resumed today.

Assistant District Attorney Weeks exhibited an unopened box of 38 caliber revolver cartridges, which he said he had found in the attic of the Carman home. Dr. Carman told him, said Weeks, that he did not know how the cartridges came to be in his house. A 38 caliber bullet killed Mrs. Bailey. The first witness called to-day was Celia Coleman, a negro maid in the Carman home. She began her story by telling who was at the dinner table on Tuesday night. The witness said Mrs. Carman complained of having a headache and said she was going upstairs. The witness saw her leave the dining room and later heard footsteps she believed were those of Mrs. Carman on the stairs.

Dear Julia: I heard you speak at the club last week and I enjoyed the little talk more than I can tell you.

Next time you have anything to say about household efficiency, I want you to take up the question of advertising.

Does every woman understand what an important part the reading of newspaper ads plays in her scheme of home economy? If I hadn't been a persistent advertiser from the start, I wouldn't have had such a happy, cozy home to-day—neither would you.

Ever,
Mabel.
