Today Marks End of First Week; Reservoir Youngsters Go Home

Fond mammas and papas who may have been a trifle dubious as to whether their small daughters who camp at McCormick's Island would get enough to eat might glance at this list of supplies: 25 pounds sugar; 10 pounds meat for soup, 3 pounds dried peaches, 36 loaves of bread, 12 pounds puffed rice, 12 cases shredded wheat 12 cans corn, 12 cans salmon, bag salt, pounds butter, 1 pound chocolate, quart vanilla, bushel potatoes, basket peans, half-pound pepper, two cab-pages, 12 cans peas, 10 boxes raspberbages, 12 cans peas, 10 boxes raspberries.

Food for a N. G. P. company's hike? Supplies for "Romper Day"? Stock of produce for a country store? No, all this is merely one day's order of supplies for the girls' camp on McCormick's Island. Which is the reason the thirty or more pretty misses of from 11 to 16 years are not in much danger of going hungry.

To date, incidentally it may be mentioned, that three whole bunches of bananas have been disposed of by the youthful campers.

To-day concludes the first week of camp for the season of 1914 and tomorrow the Reservoir girls break camp, to be followed by the campers from the Twelfth, Harris and Calder from the Twelfth, Harris and Calder buildings.

These be mighty busy days in camp and days, by the way, that will go and days, by the way, that will go down in pictorial history. An enter-prising "movie" camera man rowed over to McCormick's one day last week and placed the activities of the young-sters in moving picture history for al-ways and always. Regular schedules of work and play have been arranged and the camp day is a very, very full twenty-four hours.
