

WOMEN AND THEIR INTERESTS

Little Mary's Essays

By DOROTHY DIX
When the Lord made the world he was in a hurry to get the job done by Saturday night, so he didn't take time to make a lot of folks. He just made one man, and called him Adam. But Adam was lonesome because he didn't have no wife, and nobody to blame it on when he lost things, and couldn't find them, and the dinner wasn't good. So the Lord put Adam to sleep, and took out of his wishbone, and made woman out of him, and that's why the women ain't never got enough of anything, but are always wishing for more. Women are some like men, and some different. Men can run faster, and throw harder and have got bigger hands and feet than women has, but a woman has got a longer tongue than a man has, and she can holler louder. A woman cannot walk far in the open air, but she can walk all day long in a department store, which would make a strong man tired. Women is afraid of snakes, and mice, and burglars that hide under the bed, but man is afraid of a woman's club, and other dangerous animals. When a woman has to have a tooth pulled she puts on her best dress, and waves her hair like she was going to a picnic, but a man's wife has to take him by the hand and lead him to the dentist because he is so afraid that he will get hurt. My Sunday school teacher says that God made man in His own image, but women make themselves over every year to look like the figures in the store windows. Women is smarter than men because women makes the men work for them and give them all the money they earn, but the men won't let the women vote, that is why women says, "votes for women."

Baby of Future is Considered

Much thought has been given in late years to the subject of maternity. In the cities there are maternity hospitals equipped with modern methods. But most women prefer their own homes and in the towns and villages must prefer them. And since this is true we know from the great many splendid letters written on the subject that our "Mother's Friend" is a great help to expectant mothers. They write of the wonderful relief, how it seemed to allow the muscles to expand without undue strain and what a splendid influence it was on the nervous system. Such helps as "Mother's Friend" and the better knowledge of them should have a helpful influence upon babies of the future. Science says that an infant derives its sense and health its character from its mother certainly will transmit a more healthy influence than if she is extremely nervous from undue pain. This is what a host of women believe who used "Mother's Friend."

LITTLE DUTCH MODEL FOR CHILD'S DRESS

Short Waisted Effects Are Charming on Most Young Children

8326 Child's Dress, 2 to 6 years. WITH LONG OR SHORT SLEEVES, WITH OR WITHOUT PATCH POCKETS. Nowhere is the picturesque tendency of fashions more noticeable than in the children's frocks. This one is peculiarly charming in its short waisted effect while, at the same time, it is exceedingly practical, since the skirt and body portion are buttoned together. In one view, white material is combined with colored and, in another, white is used throughout and the edges scalloped. Both are fashionable but, since color makes a marked feature of the season, it is much to be found in children's dresses. All the simple, pretty washable materials are appropriate for the frock. The blouse is finished quite separately from the skirt and is closed invisibly at the front. The skirt is made in two pieces and is closed at the left of the front beneath the box plait. In the picture, white linen is combined with rose color.

MASS OF PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS

On Face, As Big as Peas. Remedies Didn't Seem to Help. Suffered Terribly. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Trouble Gone. 315 Wayne Ave., Ellwood City, Pa.—"At first my face became rough all at once and before many days it was a mass of pimples and blackheads so I didn't know what to do. The pimples looked as big as peas. They would stay on my face a few days and then I would squeeze them out with my fingers. By doing so matter and a blackhead would come out and after that would heal up, then it was the same thing over again. Remedies didn't seem to help me any so I gave up trying and all that time I was suffering terribly. I was ashamed to go out my face looked so. After about three months of suffering I read an advertisement about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample of each which proved great. I bought some and in four weeks my trouble was gone. It took three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment to cure me." (Signed) Miss E. Smith, Jan. 29, 1914.

The QUARRY

By JOHN A. MOROSO Copyright, 1913, by Little, Brown & Co.

The mill president lost no time in having Nelson's invention fully protected by patents. One of the wealthiest of southern capitalists, it was a simple matter for him to call the attention of the manufacturers of mill machinery to the work of his employee.

When the transaction was closed and the money deposited in his bank John Nelson felt that the dream of his prison days was beginning to materialize. The foundation of the fortune necessary for him to prosecute a worldwide search for the man for whose crime he had suffered was laid. His aim was higher than money and ease. To pile up a fortune was only a detail of the task before him. His brain was already busy with the incubation of another inventive idea.

The Sabbath following the disposal of his patent rights was a day of serious and grateful contemplation to Nelson. He attended service with the Lansings and then shut himself in his room. His reflections were brought to an end by a call from Mrs. Lansing, informing him that Mr. Bryan wanted him on the telephone. He hastened to the instrument in the hall below and answered a pleasant greeting from the mill president.

"I have a letter from the people you signed with," Mr. Bryan informed him over the wire, "and they desire to know whether they may have an option on your second invention."

"The next one may be a failure," said Nelson, with a little laugh of pleasure at the praise given him. "I would like to talk the matter over with you," suggested Mr. Bryan. "If you have nothing else to do, come over to supper. My car is handy; suppose I run over for you?"

"Thank you; I shall be glad to spend the afternoon with you." "Better still," Mr. Bryan added, "get your things together and spend the evening with us. Then we can talk into the night and I'll take you in to the mills with me in the morning."

Nelson promised to be ready and left the instrument to pack his suit case. Within half an hour he was with the mill president in his motor, speeding over the hard, red clay roads toward his home.

The autumn was well advanced. The leaves and vines of the forests through which they traveled were touched with gold and bronze and crimson. The Bryan home was in the center of a magnificent estate of 1,000 acres, through which flowed a branch of the Saluda river. In the distance, amid many majestic and ancient shade trees, the white pillars of the mansion gleamed.

The motor swung through a wide garden gate and pulled up as cheerfully as if it were a horse-drawn carriage. The occupants from the family assembled on the piazza. "Here we are!" cried Mr. Bryan, alighting from the car.

He ran up the piazza steps, Nelson following, to a stately woman with silvery hair. "Mother," he said, "this is my guest, Mr. Nelson, and this is my eldest boy, Jim." Jim went over to Nelson and greeted his hostess. "He is just your age, I should think, Mr. Nelson. And here is Miss Molly Bryan, my daughter."

Nelson turned from James Bryan to his sister and looked into a smiling, girlish face. To him her eyes seemed to be patches of blue clipped from the heavens. The sunlight of youth and a light heart was in them. Her hair was gold, fine spun and piled high on her shapely head. Her cheeks were rich in coloring, like the cheeks of English lassies, and her lips were sweet and full.

Although there lurked in her constant smile the coquetry that is the possession of all pretty girls of twenty, she had the grace of bearing of her mother, a wide brow and a chin that suggested strength of character and determination.

"I am glad to meet the famous Mr. Nelson," she said pleasantly as she studied his face for a moment. "We have heard father speak of your inventive work so often. He says that you are a wizard with machinery."

Nelson felt his face grow hot. All that he had known of human affection was the great love that his mother had given him and the dumb, animal like devotion of the old convict who had helped him escape from Sing Sing. There seemed to be a caress in the limpid eyes of this lovely girl before him. His heart beat wildly within him. The warm touch of her hand sent a thrill through his whole being. "I—didn't know that I had become famous," he managed to stammer. She realized his bewilderment and from his eyes caught the confession that suddenly, swiftly and unexpectedly he had met the woman he was to love. [To be Continued.]

POULTRY NEWS

MIDSUMMER NIGHTS OUT IN THE COOP

Give the Poultry Plenty of Air and Use Disinfectants Freely

Soon the nights may become cooler but there is sure to be more moisture in the air at night as Fall approaches and a moist air is both disagreeable and detrimental to poultry. Coops and houses need full and free airing these midsummer nights. Windows should be removed, curtains fastened wide open, and all doors replaced with screens.

The annual cleaning may well take place now. If there is time for it, as then the whitewashed house and the removed cobwebs will help the plans for fresh air introduction. Ventilation from ends and front can be given in most houses, while the summer coops out in the field have the wire covered fronts. Some of the coops can have the back of the roof raised a few inches.

Good ventilation can be helped along by letting out the confined chicks by skunks, it is probable the more clean the house the less stuffy the air, and the better will health be maintained. Some use of one of the tar disinfectants will aid in efforts to make the nights comfortable.

Use Charcoal in Food Given Chicks

Charcoal is inexpensive; it can be made at home without trouble or cost, yet many flocks never see charcoal unless they find it by chance on the range. Charcoal purifies the blood and absorbs the noxious gases generated in the digestive organs and neutralizes organs and neutralizes their effect. It should be used in the first feed given the baby chicks, and continued throughout the entire life of the chicken. A small quantity should be mixed with the daily mash. About five pounds of charcoal to every four hundred pounds of mash is a very good proportion.

Mink and Weasel Foes to the Flock

The chief indictment against the skunk is that it destroys poultry, and a few cases of serious losses due to the animal have actually been proven. In many instances of alleged predations by skunks, it is probable that minks or weasels were the real culprits, and that skunks merely shared in the plunder by invitation or intrusion. When a farmer loses fowls and doesn't know what is killing them he is often likely to mistake its identity. The common skunk cannot climb to a roost, and would kill only birds found on the ground.

Miss Fairfax Answers Queries

CULTIVATE FRIENDSHIP DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I have been going out with a young gentleman friend for almost six months. He is 23 and I am 19. I like him very much, but he really loves him and I don't know if he loves me. We always go out together and he never says anything of love to me. Should I continue to go out with him if I really am not deeply in love with him? I like to see a picture of him to give him up and yet I don't love him. He is a fine man, of good position and excellent character in every respect. He never asked me to keep steady company with him. PERPLEXED. New Farm and Business DIRECTORY of Dauphin County. The publishers of the old reliable FARM JOURNAL, of Philadelphia, are preparing to publish the Illustrated FARM AND BUSINESS DIRECTORY OF DAUPHIN COUNTY, giving the name, post office, rural route and telephone connection of every farmer in the county, all arranged alphabetically, and a classified BUSINESS DIRECTORY, including all business houses in the county, arranged under the proper headings. With the Directory is given a very valuable ROAD MAP of the county, with every road NUMBERED to show the exact location of each farm, as given in the Directory. This Directory will contain many interesting PICTURES of well-known farmers, fine farms, thoroughbred stock, churches and public institutions, schools and pupils, etc. The names and necessary information are secured by PERSONAL CANVASS of all houses and business places, and of the 2,684 farms in the county. This Directory and Road Map are so useful and interesting that from our experience in other counties we can guarantee that the Directory will go into at least TWO THOUSAND HOMES OF DAUPHIN COUNTY, where it will be constantly used by farmers and business men for the next five years. The Farm Journal Directories are an immense improvement over other directories, containing what most publications do not give. Besides all the usual information, they give the names, addresses, telephone connection, and other important information about FARMERS, secured by PERSONAL CANVASS from each farmer himself. This canvass of county districts is so costly that most publishers cannot afford to make it, and ordinary lists of farmers published are in nearly all cases merely copied from official lists. The classified BUSINESS DIRECTORY includes every business house in the county, whether in city or country. In other directories the names of houses in cities and large towns only are given. These features, with the Road Map, make the Farm Journal Directory an indispensable hand-book for every live farmer and business man in the county. If you are not sure that correct information about your farm or business has been given to one of our canvassers, please send it direct to our main office.
