CROP DAMAGE TO BE REPORTED ON

Up-to-the-Minute System of Bulletins and Reports Have Been Arranged For

Efforts are to be made by the new bureau of statistics of the State Department of Agriculture to obtain first hand information as to the damage done to the crops of Pennsylvania by the pests and storms which have afflicted the farming districts this year.

L. H. Wible, chief of the bureau, says that the effort is being made for the first time to get information which will be of interest to every farmer when published.

August Dates—The Public Service Commissioners have fixed August 4 and August 18 as the dates for the first and second meetings during the coming month.

Coal Tax Case.—It is probable that the constitutionality of the anthracite coal tax will be argued in the winter of 1914.

Industrial Roads.—The indications are that the industrial railroad cases will not be heard until the middle of September.

Two More Properties.—The Capitol Park Extension Commission this week took over two more properties in the extension district.

Warning on Minors.—The Department of Labor and Industry has issued a warning to employees of the State on the dangers attending employment of minors in the summer time without employment certificates.

THREE EGGS AT STREET CARS

Despite the fact that eggs are now selling at 30 cents a dozen, several boys in the neighborhood of Sixth and Division streets, last evening were engaged in a rather expensive sport when they threw nearly a hundred eggs of uncertain vintage at street cars.

The Will and the Way

Every man has a sacred duty to perform. It is the making of a will. No matter how large or how small his estate may be, he should arrange during his life that the full benefits thereof shall be enjoyed by the ones for whom he wishes to provide after his death.

The will is an important document. Upon its provisions depends the welfare of those left behind. Primarily, therefore, it is obvious that it be drawn in legal form to withstand any possible attack of unscrupulous or disappointed survivors.

For this duty the services of a competent attorney should be engaged. That, however, is but the first step.

Equally important as the proper drafting of the will, is the manner in which provisions are made therein. That is where this bank may be of service.

It is not infrequent that in the making of a will, a man will give sole thought to its protective measures only insofar as diminution of his estate is concerned. Sight is lost completely of providing his executor with power for its increment.

For many years this bank has acted as executor of estates. It has carried out the provisions of hundreds of wills. It has had opportunity to learn how provisions may work to the benefit or the detriment of beneficiaries. It knows how your wishes may best be carried out to the fullest advantage of those for whom you want to provide.

This knowledge it freely offers to you. You are invited to consult with our officers---to enlighten them regarding the objects you have in mind---and to receive the benefit of their advice as to how these objects may best be provided for. This information you can in turn convey to your attorney. In a word, we will show you how your purposes may be practically worked out---it remains for your attorney to put them in proper legal form.

Perhaps you have already made a will. It may be that some of the objectionable features that so often crop out are embodied therein. If you desire, the officers of this institution will go over it with you and show you how, if at all, your wishes may be more advantageously provided for.

Once the will is made, you should deposit it with us for safe-keeping. We will issue a receipt therefor, and during your lifetime guard it securely from theft and fire, delivering it after your death upon presentation of the receipt.

We welcome consultations on matters concerning the will, and accord them the confidence which they merit.
