ALL EUROPE IS HOPING FOR PEACE

although this action dangerously diminishes the chances of maintaining European peace, it does not necessarily imply a rupture of relations between Austria-Hungary and Russia.

The hope is still expressed that some European political power may yet succeed in bringing about an understanding between those two states.

Austrian Emperor Issues Manifesto to People Concerning War

Vienna, July 29.—A manifesto issued by the Emperor, after stating that it had been his fervent wish to dedicate his declining to preserving the honor of his monarchy and the sacrifice of war, says: "Providence has decreed otherwise.

The intrigues of a malevolent opponent compel me in defense of the honor of my monarchy and for the protection of its dignity and the security of its possessions, to grasp the sword after long years of peace."

The manifesto refers to the ingratitude of Serbia for the support the Emperor's ancestors afforded to Servian independence; how Serbia for years has pursued a path of open hostility to Austria-Hungary; how Austrian annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina which injured no Servian rights, called forth in Serbia outbreaks of the bitterest hatred.

"My government," continued the Emperor, "then employed the handsome privileges of the stronger, and with extreme consideration and leniency only requested Serbia to reduce her army to a peace footing and promise to tread the paths of peace and friendship."

Then, recalling that it was Austria forborne two years ago that enabled Serbia to reap the fruits of the struggle against Turkey, the Emperor says: "The hope that Serbia would keep its word has not been fulfilled; the flame of its hatred for myself and my house has blazed always higher.

The manifesto then dwells on the "timid propaganda which has extended over the frontier, aiming at the destruction of the foundations of order and loyalty in the southeastern part of the monarchy and the leading astray of growing youth and inciting to deed of high treason."

"I have examined and worked anything and with sincere concern I look on the path that duty points. I trust in my peoples, who throughout every storm have always rallied in united loyalty around my throne and have always been prepared for the severest sacrifices for the honor, greatness and rights of the fatherland."

"I trust in Austria-Hungary's brave and devoted forces and in the Almighty to give victory to my arms."

Declaring that a stop must be put to those provocations, the honor and dignity of the monarchy protected and its political, military and economic developments guarded from continuous shocks, he says: "In vain did my government make a last attempt to induce Serbia to desist. Serbia rejected the just and moderate demands which my government refused to conform to the obligations forming the natural foundations of peace in the life of peoples and States. I must therefore proceed by force of arms to secure those indispensable pledges which alone can insure tranquility to new States within and lasting peace without."

"In this solemn hour I am fully conscious of the whole significance of my resolve and my responsibility before the Almighty."

"I have examined and worked anything and with sincere concern I look on the path that duty points. I trust in my peoples, who throughout every storm have always rallied in united loyalty around my throne and have always been prepared for the severest sacrifices for the honor, greatness and rights of the fatherland."
