Order Closing Port of Montreal Lifted

By Associated Press

Montreal, Aug. 11.—The order closing the port of Montreal was temporarily lifted to-day to allow the steamship Royal Edward to sall with 500 French reservists on board. The Royal Edward expects to meet French or British warships in the gulf and be convoyed across the Atlantic. In England the vessel may be taken out by the British admiralty.

While the ports of Montreal and Quebec have been closed as far as ocean-going traffic is concerned, this order, it was explained by the port authorities to-day, has no reference to the inland water traffic on the rivers and lakes.

Naval Officers Search Outgoing Steamers For Arms

ENSIGN BISBEE, U. S. S. FLORIDA. BOARDING STEAMER MINNEHAHA IN NEW YORK HARBOR

New York, Aug. 11.—All steamers leaving this port while the European war is in progress will be thoroughly searched by naval officers to see that no guns and ammunition are smuggled abroad for the use of the combatants. Several steamers have attempted to avoid being searched by running out at night with all lights lowered, but thus far all have been halted by the Florida. As yet no attempt to smuggle war munitions has been discovered.

Force of Explosion Lifted Heavy Guns and Ripped Open Forepart of Cruiser

By Special Correspondence

London, Aug. 11.—A dispatch from Harwich says the survivors of the Amphion say the cruiser had just left the port at Harwich when the crew was ordered to clear the decks for action. The Koenigen Luise was sighted and as she refused to stop even when a shot was fired across her bows they gave chase. The destroyers then surrounded and sank her after a brief combined bombardment.

The captain of the Koenigen Luise was beside himself with fury. With revolver in hand he threatened his men as they prepared to surrender to the rescuing ships. He flatly refused to give himself up and when taken by force could not control himself. As he was taken away from Harwich to a military prison he flung his bundle into a picket boat with a gesture of angry deflance. His men, on the contrary, appeared to be quite contented. They laughed, chatted and smoked whenever they got the chance.

They betrayed an eager interest in all things English. Then the smoke of a big ship was seen on the horizon and the Amphion gave chase. She fired a warning shot as she drew near the vessel, which at once made her identity known. It was the Harwich boat St. Petersburg, carrying Prince Lichnowsky, the German ambassador, to the Hook of Holland.

While on the return trip the tragedy to the Amphion occurred. She struck a sunken mine and gave two plunging jerks. Then followed an explosion which ripped up her forepart and shot up her funnels into the air like arrows from a bow. The explosion lifted her heavy guns and falling material struck several men aboard. The Amphion's men were dreadfully burned and scalded.
