H. G. Ransburg, superintendent of the Adams Express Company, this morning received a cablegram from General Manager Weinacht, of the foreign department at London, stating that the Adam tourist relief service has been quite successful in the present crisis. The message reads:

"Our funds sufficient. Adams tourist relief service sucessful. Greatly commended and recommended by American committee. Adams travelers' cheques paid promptly and in full when presented at our offices, which were open day and night during crisis."

Announcement was made by the Adams Company officials this morning that the company will again accept money for ourists in Europe at all American offices.

Ten Thousand Tourists Stranded in Switzerland

man frontiers from Holland to Switzerland, covering a line about 200 miles long.

The Germans are reported to be holding Tongres and to have thrown out strong cavalry patrols from there to the west and south. Some of these have reached as near as thirty miles from Brussels. Southward of Liege the Germans are reported to be holding the line of the river Ourthe. Numerous outpost skirmishes are among the indications of a concentration of a vast German army.

Rival aeroplanes are constantly busy furnishing the respective commanders with information of the enemy. It is assumed because of this that there will be no necessity for prolonged reconnaissances before the armies come together.

It is figured that when the two armies join in battle 2,000,000 men will be engaged.

Stranded in Switzerland season in Switzerland was at its height when war was declared, and as a result more than 10,000 English and American tourists are stranded in that country. The British minister at Berne has issued the following proclamation: France is impossible and tourists are recommended to remain where they are until it is possible to arrange for transit."

Many tourists are hard pressed for the bare necessities of life. Some are trying to borrow small amounts on their letters of credit, these being form for large sums.

The British minister has asked the French government to take steps to provide transportation for these visitors. The French government replies that this will be impossible until the mobilization has been completed, when a special train service will be arranged.
