AMERICANS TELL STORIES OF BATTLE

were in Carlsbad when war was declared between Germany and Russia. They left for Nuremberg in an automobile and arriving there were taken to the guard house and rigidly cross-questioned before they were allowed to continue. They boarded a crowded train for Ostend but got no further than Boulogne. There they found themselves in a vortex of mobilizing troops and marching citizens which choked the streets of their long train. They managed to get aboard another train for the border, but got no further than the little town of Herbstaal, near the frontier which they reached at night in a downpour of rain.

Slice of Bread Apiece "We managed to make our way into a little café," Mr. Patten said, "and there we got one slice of bread apiece for our first meal for the day. Next day I hired a horse and cart, to take us over the Belgian frontier, and the others Three other Americans were with us.
