Liberty Doesn't Mean License

Copyright, 1914, by Star Company. By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

America is old enough now to know that the word liberty does not mean license; that freedom does not mean lawlessness. American mothers have a large duty confronting them: the duty of teaching their children the fine distinctions which lie between these words.

Ask any man or woman who has seen many lands and many people, and you will be told that American children are the most lawless and ill-bred of all the children on earth.

On any ship, or in any hotel, the children who make themselves obnoxious by their loud voices, their impertinent manners, their failure to show courtesy to their elders, are invariably American children. It is not an unusual sight to see American children walk or stand before strangers staring at them rudely, and whispering or titrating as they move away.

Two young girls made themselves so obnoxious on one of the large ocean liners by their impertinent manners to passengers in the dining saloon that it became necessary to ask the chief steward to remove them. These children were daughters of a New York banker. Their mother was on board with a retinue of attendants, but she had never taken time to teach her children refinement or even common decency of deportment.

When Rich Are Ill-Bred, Small Wonder Poor Are Also

When such examples of ill-breeding can be found among the rich, one cannot wonder that the poorer classes have not reached a standard where they understand the importance of including good manners in the curriculum of education.

A lady who employs boys of all work at her country home was surprised to discover that children of Americans who came to her for work were nearly always lacking in the little politenesses which it would seem every mother would teach her boys and girls as soon as they were able to talk.

For instance, boys of sixteen came into her presence without removing their caps and often when reporting to her for directions they bolted into her private apartments without knocking or in any way making their presence known.

It became necessary for her to teach her employes good manners before she taught them their other duties.

Every mother should train her children to show good taste and delicacy in their treatment of herself. Then it would follow as a matter of course that they would treat others with courtesy. From the time a boy is able to enter a room, and girls should be taught the same act of courtesy.

There is too much freedom in most American homes. It does not indicate affection or mutual understanding or good comradeship when people bolt into the presence of another member of the family with no word or sound to prepare the way. It merely indicates lack of thoughtful consideration.

The refinements of life do much to keep the affections alive.

A delicate code of manners, observed between husband and wife, helps to keep them out of the divorce court.

A gentle tap on a door, even if the door is open, and a word indicating who is coming make the advent of a loved one no less welcome.

Neglectful Mother is Serving Ends of Discourtesy

The mother who does not train her son to show to her little courtesies like this is sowing seeds of annoyance for others who will be irritated by this lack of thoughtfulness.

No matter what position a man occupies in the world, whether he plays or is employed, whether he is waited upon or waits upon others, good manners and courtesy and politeness will be of incalculable value to him.

A lady had occasion to call at the office of a prominent lawyer in a city of colleges.

The lawyer was absent, but his secretary was present, a well-educated young man, of good American family. The lady who called was one for whom he unquestionably felt respect, yet he permitted her to stand for five minutes in his presence while she told her errand, and he lounged comfortably in his chair with a cap on his head which he never thought to remove.

He seemed most anxious to be of service and in every way tried to help her; no doubt he would be greatly astonished and deeply pained if he knew she thought him discourteous. Such conduct is not at all uncommon in America; it is to be met with every day and it is always the fault of the mother.

Father Not Blameless, but Chief Duty Is With Mother

The father, too, comes in for his share of blame; but it is the mother who has the child near her hour in and hour out, during those early years when habits are formed, and it is to the mother a child should look for careful training in deportment.

Little girls and boys need a delicate code of manners, which should never be allowed to enter rooms without previous announcement; they should not be permitted to break into conversation without being invited; they should not lounge or sit while their elders stand.

Teach your children these little refinements, good mothers.

It is better than leaving them a legacy of hard-earned money.

MAP OF THE NATIONS IN EUROPEAN BATTLE

Countries Are All Plainly Marked and Locations are Found Quickly

The Telegraph is making an offer that is of interest to every reader. An authentic map of the great European war country is printed in five colors and encased in covers, which include educational charts showing the strategic points in which all are interested.

The face of the map shows the whole of Europe and it has been prepared from the latest official sources. It was originally published in Edinburgh and made by the wax process, which is the most accurate and best process ever used for map making. Full advantage has been taken of the authentic data available and every effort has been made to incorporate important information. It is a genuine work of art in which are brought out the details not found in folders and cheap atlases. Portraits of all the great European rulers are shown in the map, and information which will be of value to all. Among the features are valuable tables giving the distances between European cities, the strength of the aeroplane fleets, the army and navy strength, a chronicle of the nations involved, a brief account of the decisive battles of the last century in which European powers have taken part, coin values of European money in United States money, and other valuable information. These maps are being passed out at 10 cents each, which barely covers the cost of promotion. Present your coupons without delay.

Men Pay Homage to Mother's Friend

"I am not surprised to observe the number of men who come into the store to purchase 'Mother's Friend,'" remarked a leading druggist.

The expectant mother if she hasn't heard of this splendid embrocation is probably not reading the papers to much extent. And if she does it is a happy thought to send hubby to the drug store. "Mother's Friend" is applied externally over the abdominal muscles.

It is a gentle, soothing lubricant, penetrates to the fine network of nerves beneath the skin and has a tendency to relieve the muscular strain to which these broad, flat abdominal muscles are subjected. The cords, tendons and ligaments are thus permitted to stretch without the corresponding surface strain so often involved during the period of expectation. And particularly to young mothers is this remedial application of inestimable value since in thus keeping the muscles firm but pliant it enables them to go through the ordeal without laceration or the splintering of the case when this gentle attention is neglected.

"Mother's Friend" is highly recommended by a host of women. Write Bradfield Regulator Co., 408 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., and we will send you a valuable little book to expectant mothers.

Trolley Magnate Will Tell Why He "Hit the Trail"

Dr. E. W. Samuel, who is a former congressman and besides being a physician is a property holder and a trolley magnate, being president of the Shamokin and Mount Carmel Transit Company, will be the speaker at the next preliminary Stough meeting, which will take place Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Pine Street Presbyterian Church. Dr. Samuel's visit here is looked forward to with interest and the fact that one of Northumberland county's leading citizens became a trail-hitter after hearing the Stough campaign in Shamokin is one refutation of the remark sometimes heard that only the rough-necks get the get-right-with-God appeal in these evangelistic campaigns.

Superfluous Hair Killed Without Electricity BY A SPECIALIST

"I have the greatest trouble with correspondents who insist on using common, worthless deplorative or want the torturing barbarous electrical needle applied for killing their superfluous hair," says Mrs. Chaminade in Missy's Boudoir. "More mental and physical suffering is caused by these abominable methods than you can imagine. I have carefully investigated and tried a new and simple method that never fails to remove all signs of hair completely and painlessly and without injury to the skin or complexion. In a surprisingly large number of cases it has destroyed all trace of hair so that it has never returned. In fact I must caution my readers that they do not wish totally destroyed. It is called "Mrs. Osgood's Wonder" being named for a well known woman who arranged for it to be put on the market after it had succeeded in entirely eradicating all traces of her own very distressing growth of hair on chin, lip and arms, which everything else had failed to touch.

Mrs. Osgood's Wonder is quite inexpensive; you can obtain it from Kennedy's Medicine Store, or any up-to-date druggist or department store, on the guarantee of your money back, if it fails. Ask for it by name, "Mrs. Osgood's Wonder"; a signed guarantee comes with every package.—Advertisement.
