OF NATIONS AT WAR

Statistics, Show Importance of Line-up For and Against Germany

KAISER'S FORCE OUTNUMBERED

However, William's Army Is Better Prepared to Fight on Land Than His Foes

Such fragmentary information has been published concerning the strength of the nations of Europe now at war that the American people have not been able to get a clear idea of the whole situation. It is the purpose of this article to sum up the most important facts concerning the nations engaged in the conflict, to show their relative strength in wealth, military equipment, area and population, and to point out various facts from which the reader may deduce the possible optome and the effect of the war on the United States.

In the first place, it is well to know what nations are at war and what nations are not involved. Any day may add to or subtract from the number of nations engaged, but yesterday the line-up was as follows: One one side were Germany and Austria, with slight prospects of help from Turkey and very little chance of getting their ally, that the American people have not were Germany and Austria, with slight prospects of help from Turkey and very little chance of getting their ally, Italy, into the fight. On the other side were the three members of the triple entente, Great Britain, France and Russia, ably augmented by Belgium and by Servia, and with the possibility that Holland, Switzerland, Portugal and even Sweden might assist in the general attack on Germany.

Italy Not Concerned

Thus it is seen that practically all of Europe is arrayed against the Germans and Austro-Hungarians. The most significant fact in the recent news has been the attitude of Italy. This nation was part of the triple alliance and was bound by treaty to assist Germany and Austria it was expected that Italy would help. However, there has been a complication in the feelings of the great mass of the Italian people, who hate Austria as an ancient enemy and rather like the French. Italy, afraid of a revolution among its own people, therefore has announced its neutrality. The German kalser is said to resent this action French. Italy, afraid of a revolution among its own people, therefore has announced its neutrality. The German kaiser is said to resent this action and may force Italy into war, fighting against Germany.
Italy, therefore, cannot for the present be considered as engaged in the war, and her strength must not be included in the tables which follow.

nations actually engaged in war against Germany and Austria-Hungary: Strength of Great Britain

Germany and Austria-Hungary:

Strength of Great Britain

Not counting the colonies, which are virtually independent nations, the British Isles have an area of 121,391 square miles and a population of 45,221,165. The wealth of the islands is estimated at $80,000,000,000 and the national debt is $3,485,000,000.

In its war equipment Great Britain relies on its great navy, which is admitted to be larger than the combined navies of any two other powers. It has 77 battleships, 42 first-class cruisers and about 400 other war vessels of every description, manned by 137,500 men in peace or war, to which may be added 25,000 naval reserves. England's army is large and well drilled, but not to be compared in size with the immense forces of the continental nations, because Great Britain has no compulsory military service, relying solely on volunteers. Its army on a war footing numbers about 800,000 men, but this number includes many who must stay in India and Egypt all the time and therefore cannot get into any European conflict.

Strength of France

Strength of France

France nas an area of 207,054 square miles and a population of 39,601,000. Its total wealth is estimated at $65,000,000,000 and its national debt is $6,283,000,000. France has the largest national debt in Europe, due to two reasons. First, because it had to pay such an enormous war indemnity to Germany after the Franco-Prussian war, and, second, because it has spent such enormous sums in the last forty years in preparing for another war with Germany. In spite of its huge debt France is the most prosperous nation of Europe. Although no exact figures are available, it is estimated by economists that there is a greater and more equal distribution of wealth among the French than any other people. The average Frenchman is said to be richer and more constended than any other man in the world.

In proportion to her population tented than any other man in the world.

In proportion to her population France's army is the largest in Europe, although in actual numbers it is exceeded by the German and Russian. France's army on a war footing numbers 4,000,000 men. They are the same kind of men who followed Napoleon in his many victorious campaigns—enthusiastically patriotic, wildly demonscrative, but the flercest of fighters and the fastest of marchers. The French navy ranks fourth in the world, coming after Great Britain, Germany and the United States. It consists of 32 battleships, 18 first-class cruisers and more than 300 other vessels, and is manned by 60,000 men. The French navy is expected to do its best work in the Mediterranean, leaving the German forces to the care of the British in the North Sea and the Atlantic.

Strength of Russia

Russia has an area of 8,647,000 square miles and a population of 166,000,000. Its total wealth is about $40,000,000,000 and its national debt is $4,553,000,000. Although Russia is bigger in area and more numerous in population than either France or Germany, it cannot be compared with

Although she has only a short seacoast, Germany has become the second maritime power of the world and has been given by the power of the world and has been given by the power of the world and has been given by the power of the world and has been given by the power of the world and has been given by the power of the world and has been given by the power of the world has a supposed to be more ready for war than any other nation of Europe. Her navy, the second largest in the world, has 46 battleships, 9 first-class cruisers and more than 200 other sea-fighters. It is manned by 66,700 men. The various fine passenger steamers of the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd Lines may also be added to the German navy, making a magnificent Britain.

Strength of Austria-Hungary
In everything Austria has followed Germany for the last twenty years at least. But Austria has had internal troubles which have prevented her growth and held her back where Germany went ahead. In Germany nearly all the people are Teutons, of the same race, with the same national feelings and aspirations. Consequently they could be welded into one united nation, strong in every way. On the other hand, Austria-Hungary is made up of three distinct races with a hundred smaller subdivisions. Austria itself is Teuton; the greater part of Hungary is Magyar, while the lower sections of the empire are all Slav. These Slavs have not approved of Austria's close kinship to Germany and have rather favored their own kinsmen, the Servians, and even the Russians. Therefore, Austria is the weaker part of the German-Austrian alliance.

What Equalizes Contest

Af first glance it would seem that fermany and Austria were hopelessly outclassed by the other nations. However, there are some things which girst.

Eelgium, is the second most important port in the world, New York being first.

Eelgium's army numbers 222,000 men and her navy is rather small, so that it cannot be considered a factor in the resent situation.

Strength of Servia

Servia is being relied upon by the powers opposed to Germany to keep the main part of the Austrian army busy in the Balkans. Servia is 23,661 square miles in extent and has a population of about 4,000,000. There are no figures available concerning the national wealth or debt of Servia.

Against this vast combination of financial and military strength are lined up the two compact empires of Germany and Austria-Hungary. Their strength is as follows:

Strength of Sermany

Strength of Servia is heavily in debt and can afford a war only with the financial aid of Russia.

The United States sells Belgium $66,000,000 and buys $41,000,000.

The United States sells Germany $331,000,000 and buys $183,000,000.

From these figures it is seen that the United States sells Austria $23,000,000 and buys $19,000,000.

From these figures it is seen that the United States sells Europe much more than it buys from her. Should the war tie up all transatlantic traffic, the United States would miss about $700,000,000 worth of materials which come here from Europe every year. At the same time this country would not be able to sell $1,175,000,000 worth of materials which come here from Europe every year. At the same time this country would not be able to sell $1,175,000,000 worth of merchandise it has been disposing of annually to the warring nations of Europe. The result would be high prices on all imported articles and extremely low prices on articles of which America has a surplus. There is only one exception to this rule, and that is hits: America may get all the trade with South America may get all the trade with South America may get all prices would go up here.

CROWN PRINCE REPORTED WOUNDED IN FIGHT

CROWN PRINCE FREDERICK WILLIAM London, Aug. — Reports from The Hague say the German Crown Prince, Frederick William, has been seriously wounded in the fighting in Belgium; and has been taken to Aix-la-Chappele where the Kalser will join him. These reports are at variance with news received from Berlin, which said the Crown Prince had joined his father and the General Staff at Mainz. The persistence of the reports in the face of denials seems to furnish some basis for believing them to be true.
