Germans Electrocuted During Rush on Forts at Liege; Mounds of Dead

Paris, Aug. 24, 9.30 a. m. — The Petit Journal publishes the following details of the fighting around Liege, obtained by information from a Belgian officer:

"German troops rushed on the barbed wire defenses before the forts of Liege in the darkness of night. A very strong current of electricity was being maintained in these wires and as a result the first ranks of the Germans were electrocuted.

"Unchecked, the assailants followed inmasses, but they were blinded by the glare of powerful searchlights. They hesitated and started to retire. At that moment a heavy fire of rifles and artillery was concentrated on the mass of German troops and they were cut to pieces. The mass of bodies formed a mound, in some places many feet high.

"To drown out the groaps of the feet high.

"To drown out the groans of the wounded, the German bugles sounded martial airs and the troops still alive united in cheering.

"Near one fort two columns of Germans, blinded by the glare of Belgian searchlights, attacked each other. This incident was seen from the fort. When one side seemed to have the better of the struggle, the Belgian officer goes on to say, our artillery fired

nto both sides alike, thus making the
