AMUSEMENTS

THE NEW STENOGRAPHER AT THE PHOTOPLAY

The firm of Brown and Robinson, advertise for a stenographer. Lucille Montgomery, a scrappy old maid, but an expert worker, replies, and is engaged. Her employers and Cuts, their clerk, question whether her work repays them for having to look at her awful face. One morning she fails to appear, and sends her niece, Lillian with a note, explaining that the girl will make a capable substitute. The niece is an absolute and radiant beauty.

Secretly all three men hope that something will happen to prevent Lucille from ever returning to the office. The fascinating stenographer does not reciprocate any of the love-making. Some time in a week, a frozen, saved-off funny-looking specimen of manhood enters and asks for the new stenographer.

When he appears, the beautiful typewriting queen madly rushes to his arms, and then she introduces the little fellow to the three business men as her husband. They faint dead away. After their recovery, Lucille, enters and endeavors to soothe the broken hearts of the disappointed lovers.—Advertisement.

THE ORPHEUM BILL

There are those who go to the Orpheum this week and say they enjoyed Joe Welch's droll Hebrew humor better than anything else, some will not get done expressing their surprise and admiration for the Alexander Kids, the little tots who do their dancing and imitations as cleverly as if they were grown-ups, and to the amusement of all, do them in grown-up costumes. Many of them, it is noted, are just going to rave over Will Roehm's Athletic Girls.

This quintet of pretty and spirited Misses, trained to physical perfection through their various gymnastics, are just too good to look upon. They are all skilled in the various athletic arts, such as fencing, boxing, wrestling and bag punching. They give a veritable glimpse into a woman's gymnasium, where no suggestion of the masculine has been permitted to creep in, and their performance is full of thrills and excitement from beginning to end. Also there's an interesting skit called "Get Poor Quick Wallington," played by an attractive young woman and a capable comedian, Haviland and Thornton, who kept the audience in constant good humor with their bright gazes and interesting situations. By no means can it be overlooked, that Thea Lightner, the Harrisburg girl, and her charming partner, Dolly Jordan, are here again. Both are clever and entertaining as they were last season and that they have lost none of their grip on local favor was attested to by their receptions yesterday. Burns and Lynn, are newcomers here, but pleased immensely with eccentric dances and their originality; while the Tuscano Brothers are thrillers with their spectacular juggling of battle axes.—Advertisement.

FOOD COST INVESTIGATION

Whether the war is responsible for the high price of food or the speculator remains to be proved, but the fact remains that the best 25-cent noonday luncheon in the city remains the same in quality and price at the Court Dairy Lunch, John H. Menger, proprietor, Court and Strawberry avenues.

AT THE PALACE—"TESS OF THE STORM COUNTRY"

"Tessie" Skinner was a "squatter," who lived on the shore of Cayuga Lake, called the "Storm Country." Tess adores her father, who one day is found near the body of a murdered gamekeeper. Skinner is accused of the murder and Tess is frantic, but Frederick Graves, a theological student, and his sister, Teola, befriend Tess. Frederick tells her of God and bids her pray and have faith. Professor Young, an eminent legal authority, touched by her profound faith in a power that will save her father, intercedes for her and secures a new trial. Elder Elias Graves, Frederick's father, a religious but bigoted and narrow man, does his best to secure a conviction. Teola, who has fallen in love with Frederick, tells her the child and cares for it. Frederick finds the baby there on one of his calls, and circumstances force him to believe it is Tess' child. Rather than disgrace his sister, who is now very ill, Tess allows him to believe the child hers, and he denounces her as a worthless woman. Her father is still in prison. Frederick avoids her, the other squatters' comment openly on her "fall." At last, in a tragically dramatic scene, Elder Graves publicly denounces Tess and the fatherless babe she holds to her breast. But Teola, roused by her father's denunciation of Tess, can remain silent no longer, and now comes forward and claims it as her own. Teola and her sickly babe both die, and the Elder writes a pleading note to Tess for her forgiveness, which the humble Frederick bears to her. Tess goes to Frederick's waiting arms; another fisherman's mission is passed, derider of the gamekeeper; her father is liberated, and Tess finds the reward of her faith in great love and happiness.—Advertisement.

ERECTED SO AS TO OBSTRUCT VIEW

and his engineers refused to change their original plans. The drawings had all been explained to the public, was contended by the railroad authority. The public, however, upon and accepted and the work could not be changed.

There had been some talk of taking the matter into Council or even before the Public Service Commission, but this, a well-known South Front street man said to-day, had been abandoned, as it was doubted if any action could be had in view of the fact that the plans had already been passed upon in the first instance, and in the second place the problem could not be put up to the Public Service Commission because the preliminary incident to the building of the bridge were under way before the passage of the public service commission act.

So the great white sides of the abutment tower, ten feet or more above the tracks, resemble the sides of a great monolith in a cemetery. Work on the front street subway excavation is progressing rapidly and before another week has passed it is possible that the roadway will be completed and paved and ready for the passage of vehicular traffic. The highway has been concreted all but a couple of hundred feet, and is practically ready for the asphalt top. The recent heavy rains interfered to some extent with this end of the job. As soon as the front street subway is thrown open for travel work on the excavation of the Second street subway will be started.

To-day workmen began the necessary grading of the park around the subway the clearing away of derricks, coal piles, and other debris that had littered the park in that vicinity ever since the big job was begun some months ago.

AT PAXTANG PARK

Adgie and her troupe of ten African lions, gave their opening performance at the Paxtang Park Theater last evening to a house crowded to the rafters. Adgie, beautifully gowned and possessing appearance, sang and danced among her lion-cubbing pets, while an enthusiastic but awe-stricken audience applauded her intrepidity. The big lion act was beautiful as well as sensational. An elaborate stage setting, representing a scene in the jungles with the appropriate lighting effects, gives a wild and weird atmosphere to the act that there is something almost uncanny about when one knows the sanguinary history of Adgie's pets. The woman toys with the big cats as if they were no more than ordinary house cats, and she even goes so far as to tango about the big steel arena with Adgie certainly seems to have wonderful control over her lions. They corner and maul before her and do her bidding, but none of them made a move to harm her, last evening, at least. What they may do some time is a matter of conjecture. All we can say for Adgie is that she does the most wonderful animal act we have ever seen.

Bessie Le Count, with songs, recitations and character impersonations, gave a big hit with the park audience. Miss Le Count has been seen in Harrisburg before, and her ability to recite a poem and put the real action into her work has made her a great favorite with local theater patrons.

Loyola, a comic juggler of extraordinary dexterity—Stella Cope, a vaudeville comedienne, and Margaret Fies and company, in a very pleasing, comedy sketch called "The Soul Saver," make up what is probably the greatest vaudeville show that has ever played the theater at Paxtang.—Advertisement.

on the River Front wall at Paxton street, and instead of this method the Harrisburg Light and Power Company, which expected to build the elevator, will provide a movable electric crane and coal hopper on a flat.

Plans for this new river craft are in course of preparation and by early next summer at the latest the electric light company will likely be drawing the tons of rived coal for its furnaces from the great bed of the Susquehanna.

The new scheme will follow in a way the proposed electric elevator, except that the crane can easily be moved by a steamer to any point in the river. In brief, the system will be this:

The coal as it is raised from the river bed, screened and thrown out on a flat, will be piled within easy reach of the great "clam" shovel of the crane and lifted, a couple of tons at a time, to the hopper. This is a great receptacle built especially for the purpose. The crane can then steam to the wharf where the coal will be loaded upon a five-ton capacity electric truck and hauled noiselessly and smoothly down Front street to Paxton and on down Paxton to Cameron, where it will be dumped into the furnaces from the great bed of the Susquehanna.

FALL RENTING WILL BE BUSY ONE

Business Section to Advance Up Third Street; Big Suburban Demands

The Fall renting season has opened and there is every prospect that it will be a busy one. The demand that was felt so sharply last year for housing of a moderate renting prices, has been partly met during the summer by the erection of several rows of moderate priced houses. Many operative builders clearly recognize the demand for houses of this kind and are making plans to continue the construction of such dwellings this Fall.

In the retail business section the question is not so much to find tenants for vacant properties as to find suitable locations for those desiring to engage in business or change their locations. Little by little the detail world is encroaching on what once were the dwellings of Harrisburg folks. Speaking of this growth a prominent real estate man said: "I shouldn't be surprised if ten years from now Third street will be occupied by mercantile concerns a block north of the Post Office. This street has a growing amount of traffic and it's only a question of time till they're occupied by business houses."

Demands for residences in the suburbs continue to a surprising degree, notwithstanding that suburban life loses some of its appeal in the winter. In general the business is pretty well distributed in all sections of the city.

AT THE COLONIAL

The Indian Chief who is being seen on the streets of Harrisburg these days, and who is here on the body guard of the big Jesse "Last of the North," appearing at the Colonial Theater, may well walk about and throw out his chest, for he has something to be "chesty" about. In this thrilling American novel, the Indian plays an important part, and the Indian who is in Harrisburg now, is no less than the Indian chief in the picture play. For some eccentric reasons of his own, the Indian travels with the film. "The Call of the North" is a splendid picture which is directed by Edson, the well-known dramatic actor, is seen at his best. The Colonial's vaudeville bill is well up to the standard.—Advertisement.

AT THE VICTORIA

Betty Nansen, well-known in the motion-picture world as an emotional actress, will be shown to-day in a powerful drama "Storms of the Heart." This is an emotional drama in four parts. The rest of the bill is made up of "Seasons of Sorrow" and "The Big Feet," "Such a Cook" "The Tavern of Tragedy" a drama in two parts completes the bill for to-day. For tomorrow the big feature is "The Tragedy of Room 17." Advertisement.
