

TO BOOST EXTENSION SCHOOL PLAN AT BIG MEETING, SEPT. 10

U. of P. Professors Will Tell Just What Branch Will Mean to Harrisburg

An important meeting, which will largely determine the fate of Harrisburg's proposed University of Pennsylvania extension school, will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, on the ninth floor of the Kunkel building, Third and Market streets, Thursday evening, September 10 at 8 o'clock.

The purpose of this meeting is twofold. First, to ascertain as nearly as possible how many men and women in Harrisburg are interested in the work of the proposed school; second, to give those interested in the movement an opportunity to see and hear some of Pennsylvania's professors discuss the value of this type of education as well as to learn just how the application of the course given meet the demands of everyday business life.

Wharton School Men to Speak De Ward W. Pierson, professor of business law in the Wharton school, University of Pennsylvania and director of the extension school, will trace the history of the Wharton school from its establishment in 1823 by the late Joseph Wharton, LL. D., Sc. D., to the present.

In all probability Dr. Edward T. Moxey, Jr., member of the firm of E. F. Moxey and Company of Philadelphia, and assistant professor of accounting in the university, will be present to explain the methods used in his department, and the application of his course to the demands of every day business life.

Don't Forget The time—Thursday, September 10, 8 p. m.

The place—Chamber of Commerce, ninth floor, Kunkel building, Third and Market streets.

The purpose—To induce the University to establish an extension school in Harrisburg.

The speakers—University of Pennsylvania professors.

Sentence Suspended on Youth Who Took Bogus Subscriptions

Two noted Perry county jurists, one on the bench, the other a former judge, to-day helped a youthful defendant who pleaded guilty to selling bogus subscriptions to magazines in order to earn enough to pay his way through college. The youth told a real hard luck story to Judge W. M. Seibert, Perry county, specially presiding at a brief session of Dauphin county senior court, ex-Judge James W. Shull, his counsel, pleaded for him.

The youth, it appears, is well known and even popular in New Bloomfield, but his desire to study at the University of Colorado led him to overstep the legal boundaries to such an extent as to dispose of bogus subscriptions. He tried to operate in this city and was caught. In pleading, Judge Shull said that friends of the young man had provided for his college course. Judge Seibert recalled an affidavit sworn to by how he had passed the boy time and again in the streets of New Bloomfield and had stopped to chat with him. Then he suspended sentence.

Admiral Sir David Beatty, Britain's New Hero

Admiral Sir David Beatty is Great Britain's new hero. He has shown what the fleet in which England has so much pride could do when it met the enemy. The admiral was in charge of the squadron of battle cruisers, consisting of the Lion, the Princess Royal, Queen Mary and other which encountered a German fleet not far from Heligoland and sank three cruisers and it was said a dozen smaller craft. He is only forty-three years of age, and has been advanced very rapidly through the navy. Most British admirals are well over fifty years of age. Beatty married a daughter of the late Marshall Field of Chicago thirteen years ago. As a result he has been popular with Americans in London and has many friends in the United States. The photograph here shows him recently leaving a reception given by Queen Dowager Alexandra.

LONDON HOPEFUL OF WAR'S OUTCOME; BIG RUSH TO JOIN ARMY

By Associated Press London, Sept. 3, 1:50 P. M.—The decision of the French government to withdraw from Paris, while proving a momentary shock to the man in the street, is regarded both by politicians and strategists here as being as wise as it is painful. To retain Paris as a center of the government would, it is held, be incompatible with the supreme necessities of France at the present moment. These are to keep the government free to act and to keep the army an unbroken force which neither can be captured in detail nor shut up in the fortresses. A proclamation by the French government describes the move as precautionary and sets forth that an attack on Paris in the near future is not considered probable. No data upon which to base a judgment of the general situation over the wide-front battle line in France is available.

Rushes His Men "on to Berlin" Despite Big Battle Losses

By Associated Press London, Sept. 3, 11 a. m.—The Chronicle's correspondent at the front, writing from an unnamed town in the department of Somme, Tuesday, says:

"The superiority of the British artillery, coupled with the pluck of the British infantry, is rapidly telling on the German attackers. A few more days such as Sunday and Monday and the German army invading northern France will have destroyed itself completely. "No army that ever existed could endure and survive the terrible losses sustained by the Germans in the last few days. Whole divisions of infantry have been blotted out and shattered, and the German ranks are beginning to show demoralization. "In the latest assault the Germans manifested unmistakable signs of steadiness, were seen to waver and frequently to break and flee in confusion. As a result of his prolonged battle the German line has advanced a few miles, but has not gained any marked or decided advantage."

GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS, AT THE HEAD OF THE RUSSIAN GEN.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Despite their colossal losses during the past week's fight, the great Russian army, headed by Grand Duke Nicholas, is pushing steadily onward in its march to Berlin. The Russians have been forced to fight every step of the way thus far and the fighting will become even heavier as they near the German capital. The Russian army chiefs in official reports claim to have taken 30,000 prisoners after routing their foes in Galicia, but they also admit the loss of two army corps, approximately 50,000 men.

Cavalry Rides Through Heavy Fire to Silence Battery of German Guns

By Associated Press London, Sept. 3, 3:40 a. m.—The Daily Mail's correspondent behind the British lines described the charge of the Ninth Lancers, which occurred at an unnamed spot during the recent series of tactical retreats, as a second Balaklava. He says: "Terrible havoc has been caused in our ranks by a battery of eleven German guns posted inside a forest near the Belgian frontier. "It seemed impossible to silence their fire until the Ninth Lancers made their attempt, riding straight at the guns after debouching into the open and charging under a hail of melinite and lyddite. "It has not been able to get reliable figures as to the distance they rode, but they reached their goal. Nothing could stop them. They reached the guns, killed the gunners and put the guns out of action. In their prototypes of Balaklava, they rode back. "Notable bayonet charges were made at (name deleted) on Wednesday last. Several British infantry regiments occupied an exposed position around which the Germans gradually circled, drawing the noose closer and closer. "The Britishers decided to cut their way through the cordon. So the men went at it, yelling and shouting and got through, although the German artillery mowed them down frightfully. "The German machine guns have been tremendously effective in all engagements thus far. Men who saw the South African war say the heaviest firing there was childish compared with what the British troops have undergone since their arrival in France. So far as I can learn thus far the Germans have lost twenty-six of these guns."

Russians Continue Success in Austria

By Associated Press London, Sept. 3, 12 a. m.—The Petrograd (St. Petersburg) correspondent of the Post sends the following on the operations on the Russian frontier: "Russia is scoring success after success against Austria and is momentarily expecting news of a signal victory. "The commander-in-chief on the Austrian front apparently plans to drive in strongly with one army from the east, starting from the Russian provinces adjoining Rumania, and in the mean time to restrict the Austrian advances into the Polish provinces, thus keeping Austria on the alert along the lines of two to three hundred miles. "The Russian pushing temporary advances in South Poland, the Russians were forcing their way westward from Podolia and Bessarabia upon Lemberg. When the Austrians finally left the plans they attempted to turn the Russian left flank near the junction of the Gnila Lipa river with the Dniester, and a sanguinary fight took place in the last days ago. The Russians were signally defeated, losing 5,000 killed and many prisoners, including one general, 33 guns, a standard and quantities of supplies."

British Beginning to Inflict Heavy Losses on German Invaders

By Associated Press London, Sept. 3, 11 a. m.—The Chronicle's correspondent at the front, writing from an unnamed town in the department of Somme, Tuesday, says: "The superiority of the British artillery, coupled with the pluck of the British infantry, is rapidly telling on the German attackers. Never Mind Drill; Teach Them How to Shoot

Special to The Telegraph London, Sept. 3.—"Never mind whether they know anything about drill. It doesn't matter if they don't know the right from the left. Teach them how to shoot and do it quickly. "These are instructions which Lord Kitchener has given to the officers who are engaged in the work of getting his second army into shape. "They throw a strong light on the situation. It is a race against time. Speed in fitting out the second army is essential. "From the first it has been evident that Lord Kitchener realized the gigantic character of the work Great Britain will be called upon to do. The events of the last two weeks have to some extent brought the force of his conviction home to the thoughtful section of the British public. The general public, however, still remains strangely and astonishingly apathetic. These last few days, since the real nature of the situation in France is understood, have seen an increased movement to enlist."

Russians Obey Edict Changing Capital's Name

Special to The Telegraph Petrograd (St. Petersburg), Sept. 3.—The name St. Petersburg does not appear in any Russian newspaper today. Thus has been observed the Imperial edict changing the name of the Russian capital from St. Petersburg to Petrograd, on account of the German form of the name under which the city has been known since its foundation. Other cities in Russia with German names, such as Schlusselburg etc., have asked that these appellations be Russified. It has been suggested also to discontinue the use of the German words such as "Kammerherr" in court communications and substitute the Russian equivalent. Mourning dresses are increasing in number on the streets of the Russian capital.

British and French Are Confident of Success

By Associated Press London, Sept. 3, 3:30 a. m.—The Daily News correspondent, writing from Gournay-en-Bray, a small town near Rouen, says: "The German advance is amazing. A great battle is raging. The French and British are intact and still confident of ultimate success. "Incredible as it seems, the tremendous masses of men that the Germans have hurled at the allies have not overwhelmed them. It seems that while the Germans have the weight, the allies certainly have the wit and science, and these, with reinforcement, will eventually win. "The center and left center of the allies were not so successful, being obliged to retire. As a result of Sunday's battle the Germans now occupy (Name of town deleted by censor)."

COUNCILMEN WILL STROLL DOWN RIVER PARK TO SEE TREES

Will See Just What Effect Laying of the Water Pipes Will Have

All the city commissioners to-morrow morning will stroll down through River Front Park from North to Paxton streets to look at the trees. The purpose is not a desire on the part of the councilmen to take a constitutional together or anything like that—the promenade has been arranged by City Commissioner Hart F. Bowman, superintendent of the department of public safety in order that the fellow councilmen may have ready and definite information as to the location of the trees with reference to the paths in which it had been proposed to put down the new water main.

Council on Tuesday will act finally on the question of reconsidering previous action in awarding the contract for putting the mains in the park paths instead of in Front street. Just what will be done is a question far as Mr. Bowman is concerned, he wishes to consider what can be done since the contract has been formally let. "Please understand," said Mr. Bowman this morning, "that I wish to save the trees. That River Front Park I believe is one of the city's big assets and I wouldn't think of urging any movement or change of any kind that would harm the trees. So while I thought that this method would save the trees, I also considered the question whether or not the trees would be harmed and in my opinion and judgment I don't believe they will be. No, I want the other commissioners to go along down with me to-morrow morning and we'll walk along the proposed line for laying the main and they can determine at first hand whether the pipe will interfere with the trees or the roots."
