

BRUMBAGH'S NOT A FANCY POLITICIAN

Tells Crowds if They Want a "Plain Pennsylvania Dutchman," He's the Man

Close to ten thousand persons heard Martin G. Brumbaugh, Republican candidate for Governor, state his position as a candidate at the Meyersdale Fair, the big Somerset gathering yesterday.

"I am not a politician, never was, and never will be," said Dr. Brumbaugh in a stirring address to the immense throng gathered around him on the fair ground.

Dr. Brumbaugh's speech electrified his hearers, who enthusiastically applauded his clear statement of his position on the public questions that are agitating the State.

The thousands of people at the fair manifested an enthusiastic sentiment for the entire Republican ticket, and their expressions are a fair criticism of the Somerset county roll up a fine majority for the Republican candidates in November.

Somerset county's mining interests have felt the depression in the industrial world during the past year and are clamoring for the return of the Republican party to power to insure another era of prosperity.

A reception for Dr. Brumbaugh was held at the Colonial Hotel in Meyersdale when thousands of people shook him by the hand and tendered their best wishes for his success.

Penrose at Towanda Senator Boies Penrose on his first visit to the northern tier in his campaign for re-election was assured of strong support not only in Bradford but throughout the county.

At the Towanda Fair the Senator was greeted by a great throng, principally farmers, many of whom voted the Bull Moose ticket two years ago, but who now are staunch Republicans on national issues, and eager for the restoration of the policies of that party.

The sentiment of the people of Bradford on political issues is such that Republican leaders are confident it will go for the Republican ticket in November by a substantial majority.

The Senator went to Towanda on invitation from the managers to attend the fair. The crowd present was estimated at more than twenty thousand. When he arrived voters were massed about the tent where the public headquarters had been established.

He was presented to them by C. H. Jennings, chairman of the Republican county committee. Among those who greeted the Senator were the former Bull Mooseers of the county and several Democrats, who declared their intention of voting for him because of the business and industrial depression.

The farmers are Republicans on national issues, and especially disgruntled over Democratic tariff legislation. They fear Canadian competition in the sale of farm products and they are anxious for a revision by the Republican party of an agricultural schedule of the Underwood law, therefore the Bradford county farmers will fight shy of the Bull Moose and Democratic tickets.

Farmers' Legislation From a platform in front of the grandstand Senator Penrose addressed the crowd. He was introduced by Chairman Jennings, who referred to the Senator's great influence in the enactment of tariff legislation and predicted that he would be returned to the Senate.

In his address Senator Penrose attacked the agricultural schedule. He declared that while it had brought the Pennsylvania farmer into a competition nobody had benefited because the cost to the consumer has not been reduced.

Just as the farmers of this State were entering upon an era of prosperity they found themselves suddenly confronted with competition from the Canadian farmers in the markets for dairy and other farm products, said the Senator.

POSTPONE SESSION BECAUSE OF COLD?

Federal Court May Meet in Sunbury January if Remodeling Isn't Finished

Unless the contractors who are remodeling the Post Office finish the installation of the steam heating system before the end of the regular term of the federal court scheduled for that month, it will likely be called off until January.

Should the session be postponed until after the first of the new year, Federal Judge Witmer will probably convene court in Sunbury. During the last few days the court room has been a bit chilly, and shivering lawyers, witnesses and court attendants wonder whether the repairing could be finished in time for the early winter session.

The court announced before adjournment that Sunbury would be selected for a continued session in January if the Post Office building here is not sufficiently comfortable.

"The general commanding of Wuerttemberg army corps announces that a French carrier pigeon has been intercepted at Andernach which bore exact reports regarding the transport of German troops. This pigeon was probably started somewhere in Wuerttemberg or Baden. There is also a possibility that several French carrier pigeon stations are being operated in these districts."

"The general commanding herewith calls the attention of the population to such carrier pigeons and at the same time requests them to report immediately any observation they may make in this regard."

CENSORS WORK HARD ON VISION STORY

Account of Early Fighting in Belgium Tells of Hardships of Soldiers

London, Sept. 11, 7 A. M.—A correspondent of the Associated Press who has been through Belgium sends a long message from Rotterdam which was rather heavily censored throughout, but which appears to be an account of the invasion of Belgium obtained from a German point of view.

Something was deleted at the beginning. The story follows: "From Brussels the German army poured over southern Belgium into France, spreading like a fan in the direction of Beaumont, Maubeuge, Mons and Lille, joining in the south of Belgium wireless and other communications forty army corps or over a million and a half of men."

"They went over the French border without serious resistance, the French scattering before them in great disorder, leaving behind much war material, their retreat extending as far as the forest of Mormal in Northern France. Several rear guard actions occurred, resulting in considerable losses to both sides and bringing up the losses of the Germans in Belgium to about 50,000. Southward in the direction of Maubeuge, innumerable skirmishes occurred from August 23 to August 26. At Bray, west of Binche the French and English were repulsed by the Germans. The French then retreated to Soignies and Esprance where they fell back, 10,000 English retiring to Jeumont at the same time."

Determined Resistance "Engagements in the vicinity of Buisserre and Thuin constituted the most determined resistance offered by the allies. After two days' artillery duel which swung the battle between country and demolished almost every structure the right wing of the allies withdrew far to the southward. This gave the Germans an opportunity to sweep through the country and approach Maubeuge from the south."

"Meanwhile the other corps had approached Maubeuge from the north, entirely investing the fortress. The English and French were on August 23, driven across the Sambre river where, on the south bank of the river, in a thirty mile front, fighting continued for three days."

"The German wounded in all cases were well cared for and the dead buried as fast as the army continued on the march while the French dead were left unburied and the wounded, after some care, were abandoned to the elements for three days before receiving attention."

"Large numbers of French wounded were brought into Solre-sur-Sambre from the surrounding woods where many had dragged themselves to escape. Every conceivable kind of building such as the chateau, schoolhouse and inn was used as a hospital."

Die From Exposure "A large portion of the French wounded died from lack of prompt attention and long exposure in the open without food or drink. No care was observed where French medical men were left behind to take care of their wounded. The German medical corps was fully occupied with the treatment of its own wounded and was hastened onward by the forced marches of extraordinary speed and duration made by the Germans during the retreat."

"The French dead in all sorts of conveyances, were a common sight and squares and cemeteries with unfinished graves, gave mute evidence of a hurried French retreat. Doves-carrying aeroplanes whirled constantly over the country and occasionally one saw French aviators far enough aloft to be out of range of the special German guns designed for the destruction of air craft."

"I saw a die between French and German machines, both of which were disabled in a hard battle. After careening downward in giant circles the two machines plunged to the earth almost side by side and were completely shattered while the aviators were instantly killed. While aloft both the pilots and their assistants kept up a lively exchange of revolver shots."

CAVALRY RAIDS TOWN AS OCCUPANTS SLEEP Belgians Have Long List of German Acts to Present to President Wilson

New York, Sept. 11.—A partial list of the alleged German atrocities in Belgium against which the Belgian king has sent a protest to President Wilson was made public to-day by Count Louis de Lichtervelde, secretary of the Belgian commission bearing the protest. At Linsmeau, when the Germans entered the village, two uniformed gendarmes attacked the Germans, Count de Lichtervelde said. In revenge the village was invaded on the night of August 10. Two farms were destroyed, the crops were destroyed or carried away, six houses were burned and all the men were compelled to hand over their arms.

A. Rustem Bey Tells Secretary Meaning of Turkey's Latest Move

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—The Turkish ambassador, A. Rustem Bey, explained in detail to Secretary Bryan to-day the meaning of Turkey's abrogation of her agreement and capitulations restricting the sovereignty of the Porte. The ambassador made it clear that American missions and schools would continue to be protected by Ottoman law, although American citizens would lose their extra-territorial rights in civil and judicial cases. The capitulation, which had been abrogated, he said, would not affect the existence of the missions which had been recognized previously by Turkish law. As Turkey's notification was of a general character without specifying particular treaties, officials had not been sure of the extent of the action. They were inclined to believe, however, that as the special privileges granted by Turkey were woven in most of her agreements, their effect would be to break off Turkey's treaty relations with the entire world. That view was confirmed in Turkey's notification that the Ottoman government had adopted "as the basis of its relations with other powers the general principles of international law."

M.—A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram Company from Paris says: "Another German flag was this evening placed in the Hotel Des Divulades, that of the Forty-ninth Infantry, captured Tuesday near Senlis by Captain DeSannois, of the Hussars." Germans Claim They "Held Their Own in Heavy Two Days' Fight"

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—The German embassy to-day received the following wireless from Berlin: "Headquarters on Thursday in its first official report says that in a battle east of Paris the Germans held their own in a heavy two days' fight against superior forces attacking between Meaux, Montmirail and from the direction of Paris. We captured 50 guns and several thousand prisoners, but retreated to the flank when the advance of strong hostile columns was reported. The enemy failed to pursue."

Headquarters also reports fighting west of Verdun and on the eastern sector of the front.

Vienna reports that the Austrians have assumed the offensive in the region of Lemberg. This marks the second stage of a nine-day battle in which 450,000 infantry, 4,000 cavalry, 1,500 machine guns and 2,000 field guns were engaged on the Russian side.

On Sunday night the Austrians annihilated the entire Serbian Timok division near Mitrovitza. The military attaches of the neutral powers with the German troops officially state that the enemies of Germany are using dum-dum bullets. "The vanguard of the right wing of the German troops advancing over the Marne river eastward from Paris were attacked by superior forces, but the attack was stopped, the German vanguard being taken back, the enemies, however, not following. The Germans captured 50 guns and several thousand men."
