Used on Railroad Crossing Gates to Warn Autoists; Lehigh Valley Invention

A small piece of red glass, used on crossing signals and gates, auto driv-ers and railroad engineers and train-men believe to be a safe and certain signal. The new "safety first" device is in use on the Lehigh Valley Railroad crossings. It has never been possible to have red light on railroad crossing gates gineers. The simple device worked out ifret on the Lehigh Railroad and was tested at Bethlehem with good results. The ordinary crossing gate has a white light hung to the bar, which at night indicates by its position alone whether the track is clear. But by this device a piece of red glass set in a roundel, as in a frame, is fastened to the bar so that the white light swings behind it and shows red when the gate is down. When the gate is up, as the roundel to the bar so that the white light swings behind it and shows red when the gate is down. When the gate is up, as the roundel is stationary and the light swings, the light comes out from behind the red light comes out from behind the red from the track, and traffic on the rail. From the track, and traffic on the rail. Safety of motorists and the drivers of other vehicles is increased.

Conditions in the steel trade are storwing worse instead of better, ac-tording to the Iron Age of this date. It likens the present situation to that of eighteen years ago, and says in part: "Conditions in the steel trade have not improved; rather they have grown worse. The extension of the financial embargo is a reminder, in some aspects, of the memorable situation of eighteen years ago. borough solicitor, "the policemen are under the control and direction of the chief burgess." He may direct as to the time during which they may work, the place where they must work and the manner in which they shall per-form their duties. The power to appoint the police-men, according to the law as quoted by the borough solicitor, rests with the borough council, as does the power to pay the policemen. "It must neces-sarily follow," explains Solicitor Wick-ersham, "that the appointive power must necessarily be the dismissing power; otherwise it may happen that as often as the town council appoints policemen the chief burgess could dis-miss them, and thus leave the town without protection." Burgess Fred Wigfield this morning commented on the opinion and ex-pressed himself as pleased that the borough solicitor went into so much detail. "The opinion completely vin-dicates my recent action in recom-mending the dismissal of Patrolman Jones," he asserted, "and shows that I did not exceed my authority as was charged by Councilman Nelly. "And I think the law is clear on the point that Nelly was acting with-out any authority when he refused to report his actions to council," con-tinued the burges, "It seems to me that the law plainly states that coun-cul and not any committee shall act in such cases," he added. Enhaut Boys Held For

Not much headway has been made in the removal of the deposits along the low shore line outside the wall and unless more energy is put into this part of the work, it is probable that it will not be cleared up during the present season. The river is now down to the low stage and it was expected that this dirt would be removed be-fore cold weather. Sufficient progress has now been made that the average clisenican un-derstand what the plan contemplates and there has been general commen-dation of the work from one end of the city to the other.
