

Women AND THEIR Interests

The Destroying of a Name

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Some years ago I spent an afternoon in the woods with a crowd of girls my own age. We had all brought our fancy work and contributions of candy and nuts and were prepared for an afternoon of simple enjoyment. Suddenly one of the girls mentioned a certain pretty girl named Grace. All but one of us knew her and presumed she was the first speaker.

"Oh, Grace is well enough if only she weren't so affected,"

"Is she affected? I didn't know that, but, of course, she is awfully selfish about sharing her good times with her younger sisters," exclaimed the second girl.

"Really? Well no wonder she has good times," added girl number three righteously. "She runs after all the influential rich people who will entertain her."

Then up spoke the fourth. "I didn't know she bothered to cater to any one but the men, and goodness knows she is forward enough with them."

And each of us had learned some new, unpleasant thing about Grace to add to any personal criticism we might have made of her in the silence of our own hearts. But in addition to all this the girl who had never met her was prejudiced against her, and those of us who liked her best could scarcely help wondering if all this smoke could be without any fire.

So easily is the bubble reputation pricked. And as lightly as a good reputation is destroyed, so easily is a bad one created out of mere bubbles blown by idle and thoughtless people.

The malicious soul who deliberately slanders another is fairly a murderer. He takes a good name, and whether it be mere theft or killing that he indulges in to pass the time and satisfy his own spiteful nature, the result of his work is equally cruel and harmful.

But people who do this are so despicable that they destroy their own influence. Everyone fears them. No one trusts them. Consequently the person of whom they tell their evil tales is in some wise protected, because every one knows how little faith can be played in the word of a scandalmonger.

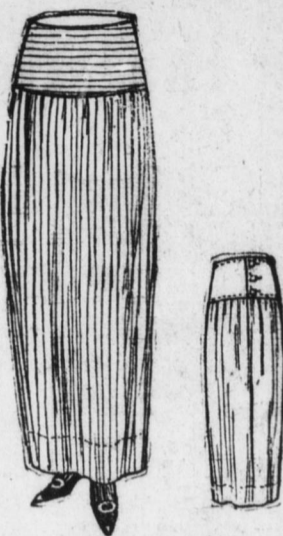

But words are such dangerous weapons. They lodge somewhere and work harm when their presence is almost forgotten. Some day you may remember what you have heard breathed against some one, even though you have forgotten whether or not the person who said it is reputable authority and to be trusted.

Don't get the habit of insinuating things against people. Don't tell of the weaknesses and follies of the people you know. Each time you call a new person's attention to a fault in a mutual acquaintance, you definitely hurt their standing in the community. Lightly and easily people destroy good names that can never restore. For lack of something better to talk about, we destroy one another's credit and standing in the community. And what does it profit us to take away a reputation? People began to doubt and question us as gossips and ill-natured individuals of whom it will be well to beware. And we have nothing gained except a sour and warper view-point that enjoys hearing the worst of human nature and thinking more evil than it has heard!

ONE OF THE NEW STRAIGHT SKIRTS FOR FALL AND WINTER COSTUMES

Basques and Deep Girdles have Brought About the Demand for Full Skirts that are Plain Over the Hips

By MAY MANTON

8407 One-Piece Skirt with Yoke, 24 to 32 waist.

No skirt could be easier to make than this one and none prettier to wear with one of the long basques or one of the deep girdles that make such features of autumn and winter styles. The skirt is perfectly straight below the yoke and gathered at the upper edge; therefore, it can be used for bordered materials and for flouncings as well as for plain or striped goods. Handsome materials are always at their best when made on simple lines. The season shows a wonderful variety of fabrics and anything that is soft enough to be gathered can be treated in this way. The possibilities of the skirt in combination with a basque or fancy bodice finished with a deep girdle are numberless. For a dancing gown, a deep lace flounce over a skirt of charmeuse would be beautiful or charmeuse satin would be pretty with a basque or girdle of velvet and there are various other suggestions that might be made.

For the medium size, the skirt will require 3 1/2 yds. of material 27, 28 1/2 yds. 36 or 44 in. wide. The width of the skirt at the lower edge is 1 yd. and 31 in.

The pattern 8407 is cut in sizes from 24 to 32 inches waist measure. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

Victrola Course to Aid Music Study at Central High

Professor Edward G. Rose, instructor of music at Central High, has inaugurated a Victrola course in school. The instrument presented to the school by the class of 1914 is being used. The course is intended not only to develop the voice but to arouse an interest among the students in music and to teach them to appreciate good music. It instructs them in a knowledge of the different instruments of the orchestra and band, and enables them to determine different voices. Professor Rose's method is to explain a certain idea of music, illustrate it by the Victrola, give notes to the pupils, and then "quiz" them.

Special music by the choir and a Victrola concert were features of chapel exercises yesterday.

The Girls' Athletic Association met in the auditorium with the president, Miss Lillian Kamsky, in the chair. A short talk was given by Miss Edna Bowers. Miss Mary Orth, of the faculty, spent Monday afternoon and evening at the bungalow of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey E. Knupp, on the mountain side at Dauphin. Tuesday evening the senior class will hold its first meeting in Hanshaw's Hall. Members of all classes have been invited. The Argus staff will meet on Monday evening at the home of Leroy Smucker. Faculty meeting has been scheduled for Monday at 4:45 o'clock in Room 9.

Loudon, of Silver Spring township, to locate their 16-year-old daughter Mary, who quietly packed some of her clothes and left her home on September 16. Despite all efforts of the family no trace of her whereabouts has been discovered. As she was not dissatisfied with her home life, her parents cannot understand the reason for her departure.
