He is the candidate of the Independent party and has papers on file to show it. Sipe was a candidate for the House in the First Fayette district. He is the candidate of the Independent party and has papers on file to show it. Sipe was a candidate for a Republican House nomination but lost and then filed his papers. This is the first instance of the kind on record.

The time for filing withdrawals of candidaces will expire on Monday and there has been quite a rush to take names from the numerous legislative nominations. Certification of the official ballot to the various counties will take place next week.

Notice to Hunters.—Many men who started the squirrel hunting season without having obtained the State hunters' license and men who fail to display the license tag on their sleeves have been reported to the office of the Stat Game Commission, that such actions some of the state has ent plenty of the tags and license blanks to county treasurers and license blanks to county

Tank Cars Escape.—In a decision rendered by the Dauphin county court to-day it is held that tank cars are a part of the equipment necessary in the manufacture of gasoline and therefore exempt from State taxes. The Independent Refining Company, Ltd., contended that a good part of its capital was tied up in the tank cars which was tied up in the tank cars which it operated in the State and that they were an essential part of its busi-ness. The court held that the capital invested in the cars was not taxable.

New Nominations.—Substitute nominations authorized by the Democratic and Washington party state executive committees were filed at the Capitol to-day and the following withdrawals were also entered:
