Dynamite Placed on Rail of Western Maryland Road

Special to The Telegraph

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 24.—Discovery of four sticks of dynamite fastened to a rall of the Western Maryland Railroad tracks at the north junction in this city where the Cumberland Valley railroad crosses the road averted what might have resulted in a terrible disaster. The discovery was made by Asa Munson while walking out the tracks to the signal tower. The sticks of dynamite were secured on top and both sides of the rail, evidently for the purpose, the railroad officials and police believe, of blowing up a passenger train scheduled to arrive at the junction in a short time. Munson tore the explosive from the rail and carried it into the tower and immediatley notified Sheriff O. W. King and the railroad officials.
