EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea

and Sulphur

When you darken your halr with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and trouble-some. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkneed, glossy and huxurlant. You will also dis-cover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling. Grav. faded hair, though no discover dandruit is gone and hair hai stopped falling. Gray, faded hair, though no dis-grace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive ap-pearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.—Advertisement.

In that first glimpse it was difficult to think of him as the commander of an army. But that he was, she must not forget. She was shaken and trembling; and a mist rose before her, so that she did not see him clearly when, with a ges ture of relief, he saw her. "Lanstron!" exclaimed an officer in the first explosive breath of amaze ment on recognizing him; then added: "His Excellency, the chief of staff!" But the one word, Lanstron, had been enough to thrill all the officers into silence and ramrod salutes. Marta noted the deference of their glances as they covertly looked him over "I wanted a glimpse of the front as well as the rear," Lanstron remarked in explanation of his presence to the general of brigade as he passed on toward Marta, who was thinking that she, at least, was not in awe of him; she, at least, saw clearly and truly his part. "Marta! Marta!"

He always looked more like the real Lanny to her with his forehead bare. It completed the ensemble of his sensitive features. She saw that he was blinking almost boyishly at the compliment and noted the little deprecatory shake of his head, the wreck appeared so distinct. She could see every detail of his looks; feel his twinges of pain while he smiled. Was the revelation the more vivid because it had once occurred to her since the war began? It shut out the presence of the officers; she no longer heard what they were say ing. Black fear was enveloping her. Vaguely she understood that they were looking away at something. She heard the roar of artillery not far dis-tant and following their gaze toward the knoll where Dellarme's men had received their baptism of fire, now under a canopy of shrapnel smoke.

"That's about their last stand in the tangent, their last snarl on our soil," remarked the brigade commander.

"And we're raining shells on it!" said his aide. "With our glasses we'll be able to watch the infantry go in.' "Yes, very well." "We're all used to how it feels, now we'll see how it looks at a distance, piped one of the soldiers. Not until he had shouted to them

"Why?" Marta heard the officers around her asking after their excla-mations of amazement at the news that Lanstron was going in the charge. "Why should the chief of staff risk his life in this fashion?" Marta knew. All her taunts about sending others to death from his office chair, uttered as the fugitive sarcasm of a mood, recurred in the merciless hammerbeat of recollection. For a moment she was aghast, speechless Then the officers, occupied with the startling news, heard a voice. wrenched from a dry throat in an-chief of staff," said the general automatically. "Tell him I ask him not to! Try to reach him-try-you can try!"

"Yes, yes! Certainly!" exclaimed the general, turning to the telephone operator.

He had seen now what the younger men had seen at a glance. They were recalling Lanstron's relief at seeing her; how he had passed them by to speak to her; the intensity of the two n their almost wordless meeting Her bloodless lips, the imploring pas sion in her eyes, her quivering impatience told the rest.

"Division headquarters!" called the operator. "They're getting brigade headquarters," he added while he waited in silence. "Brigade headquarters says the Braves have no wire. It's too late. The charge is starting.'

"So it is!" cried one of the subal terns. "Look! Look!"
