

Who Suffered As Many Girls Do—Tells How She Found Relief.

Sterling, Conn.—"I am a girl of 22 years and I used to faint away every month and was very weak. I was also bothered a lot with female weakness. I read your little book 'Wisdom for Women,' and I saw how others had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and decided to try it, and it has made me feel like a new girl and I am now relieved of all these troubles. I hope all young girls will get relief as I have. I never felt better in my life."—Miss BERTHA A. PELQUIN, Box 116, Sterling, Conn.

Massena, N. Y.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I highly recommend it. If anyone wants to write to me I will gladly tell her about my case. I was certainly in a bad condition as my blood was all turning to water. I had pimples on my face and a bad color, and for five years I had been troubled with suppression. The doctors called it 'Anemia and Exhaustion,' and said I was all run down, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me out all right."—Miss LAVISA MYRES, Box 74, Massena, N. Y.

Young Girls, Heed This Advice. Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should immediately seek restoration to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Thin Folks Who Would Be Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More. A Physician's Advice. "I'd certainly like anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man or woman. Such a result is not impossible, despite past failures. Thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, the condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, all the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and produce a healthy, normal amount of fat the nutritive process must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is a scientific combination of six of the best strength-giving, fat-producing elements known to the medical profession. Taken with meals, it mixes with the food and turns the sugars and starches into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect is remarkable. In twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is so gentle and its results so absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by George A. Gorgas and other good druggists everywhere. Each Sargol package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

HOW TO PREVENT ACID STOMACHS AND FOOD FERMENTATION

By a Stomach Specialist. As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach troubles, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are almost entirely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and difficulty, is excessive acid in the stomach, aggravated by food fermentation. Hyper-acidity irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, and the acid fermentation causes wind which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full, bloated feeling. Thus both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost instantaneously by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases, and they comprise over 90 per cent. of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking a little warm cold water immediately after eating, from one to two teaspoonfuls of bisaturated magnesium, and the acid and fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask your druggist for the bisaturated magnesium, as I have found other forms utterly lacking in its peculiarly valuable properties.—P. J. G.—Advertisement.

Here is Good News For Stomach Victims

Some very remarkable results are being obtained by treating stomach, liver and intestinal troubles with pure vegetable oils, which exert a cleansing, soothing and purifying action upon the lower bowels, removing the obstructions of poisonous fecal matter and gases and preventing their absorption by the blood. This done, the food is allowed free passage from the stomach, fermentation ceases and stomach troubles quickly disappear.

George H. Mayr, for twenty years a leading Chicago druggist, cured himself of many of his friends of stomach, liver and intestinal troubles of years' standing by this treatment, and so successful was the remedy he devised that it has since been placed in the hands of druggists all over the country, who have sold thousands of bottles.

Though absolutely harmless, the effect of the medicine is sufficient to convince any one of its remarkable effectiveness, and within 24 hours the sufferer feels like a new person. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy is now sold here by Gorgas' Drug Store.—Advertisement.

AMUSEMENTS

MAJESTIC. This evening—"Freckles." To-morrow, afternoon and evening—"The Charming Widows." (Burlesque). Entire week of November 2—Myrtle Harder Company in a repertoire of successful plays—Monday, afternoon and evening, "Elevating a Husband"; Tuesday, afternoon and evening, "The Girl of the Golden West."

ORPHEUM. Every afternoon and evening—High Class Vaudeville. COLONIAL. Daily—Vaudeville and Pictures.

"FRECKLES." "Freckles" has to do with a deserted, friendless youth of 19 or 20, with only one hand, but a heart of gold. He tramps into the Lumberlost, goes to the camp of the Grand Rapids Lumber Company and after a little vexatious obstruction, gets to close quarters with the boss, McLean. The latter soon recognizes in the boy, notwithstanding his physical handicap, the making of a faithful guardian over the company's property.

McLean becomes conscious that he has discovered the man he wants, and "Freckles" takes up his duties, which involve almost incessant solitary watching. "Freckles" is at the Majestic this evening.—Advertisement.

NEXT WEEK BIG GALA WEEK AT THE MAJESTIC. The coming of the Myrtle Harder Company next week at the Majestic Theater, promises to be the dramatic event of the season. Favorable notices and comments have been received from Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland heralding it as the best stock company on the road. They have been playing to capacity houses everywhere and no doubt will do the same here.

Mr. Harder, the manager of the company, has spared no money or pains in getting together the very best line of plays available. No stock organization has ever been known to pay such high royalties. No stock company has ever carried such an enormous amount of scenery, electrical effects, furniture and draperies. Two sixty-foot baggage cars are required to transport the paraphernalia of the following six plays: "David Belasco's masterpiece, 'The Girl of the Golden West'; 'Lottie Blair Parker's Southern romance of love and honor, 'Under the Southern Skies'; Cohan and Harris' greatest of all crook plays, 'The Great Armstrong'; the story of New York tenement life, 'The Escape'; a stupendous production of the great nautical play 'What Happened to Mary'; and Louis Mann's late starring vehicle, "Elevating a Husband," which has been selected for the opening play Monday, afternoon and evening.

Seize sale opens to-morrow and reserved seats may be secured for any or all performances during the week.—Advertisement.

ORPHEUM. No formal invitations have been sent out for the Orpheum's Halloween party, as they are not going to send any out, either. Manager Hopkins says, "The fact that a great bill of Keltz has been this week, an offering that comprises four big, big headlines, together with the festive hue of the popular playhouse ever looked prettier than it does, decked out in its Halloween dress, Orange and black are artistically arranged throughout the theater and then there are many of the weird black cats and shocks of corn and Jack-o'-lanterns. But the party will have its crowning festivities Saturday evening, when girls deplore the audience picnic the most are to march down the aisle backwards, likewise the boys; all will be invited to bob for apples, some of which will contain passes for the Orpheum, and the entire audience is invited to attend in masquerade costumes. After the regular performance the costumed guests will be invited upon the stage to let the audience pick the most artistic and the most comical 'creations.' Prizes will be awarded the winner of each class. A midnight election must be held by the audience, and the nature is being announced by the management for next Tuesday night. Tickets for this special matinee are now on sale. By the time this second Orpheum performance is over everybody will have heard the important returns, and will know who Pennsylvania's next Governor is.—Advertisement.

COLONIAL. The fact that the Improved vaudeville attractions are now being presented at the Colonial makes the Busy Corner a very attractive place to spend a few hours for two evenings each week, or two afternoons for that matter, for the vaudeville bills are changed entirely each Monday and Thursday, and the moving picture features are entirely new every day. The vaudeville attractions are all Keith acts and they are presented one after the other without a picture interrupting until the vaudeville is shown. The moving picture program is shown before and after the vaudeville. O'Brien Dennett and Gosler, the comedian and pretty girl, will offer their hilarious knockabout tumbling act; Dean and Fay, a clever young couple, meeting with much success in a skit with songs called "The College Freshie," are to appear also, and LaSalle and Raymond, singing and dancing comedians, complete the roster.—Advertisement.

The Last Shot

By FREDERICK PALMER

(Copyright, 1914, by FREDERICK PALMER'S SON.)

"I think you had better stop her if you can," said the general to his aide. The aide overtook her at the gate.

"We shall know about his excellency before you can find out for yourself," he said; and, young himself, he could put the sympathy of youth with romance into his tone. "You might miss the road, even miss him, when he was without a scratch, and be for hours in ignorance," he explained. "In a few minutes we ought to have word."

Marta sank down weakly on the tongue of a wagon, overturned against the garden wall in the melee of the retreat, and leaned her shoulder on the wheel for support.

"If the women of the Grays waited four weeks," she said with an effort at stoicism, "then I ought to be able to wait a few minutes."

"Depend on me. I'll bring news as soon as there is any," the aid concluded, and, seeing that she wished to be alone, he left her.

For the first time she had real oblivion from the memory of her recollection of Westerling, the oblivion of drear heart-pulling suspense. All the good times, the sweetly companionable times, she and Lanny had had together; all his flashes of courtship, his outburst in their last interview in the arbor, when she had told him that if she found that she wanted to come to him she would come in a flame, passed in review under the hard light of her petty ironies and sarcasms, which had the false ring of coquetry to her now, genuine as they had been at the time. Through her varying moods she had really loved him, and the thing that had slumbered in her became the drier fuel for the flame—perhaps too late.

Without him—what then? It seemed that the fatality that had let him escape miraculously from the aeroplane accident, made him chief of staff, and brought him victory, might well choose to ring down the curtain of destiny for him in the charge that drove the last foot of the invader off the soil of the Browns. . . . A voice was calling. . . . She heard it hazily, with a sudden access of giddy fear, before it became a cheerful, clarion cry that seemed to be repeating a message that had already been spoken without her understanding it.

"He's safe, safe, safe, Miss Galland! He was not hit! He is on his way back and ought to be here very soon!" She heard herself saying "Thank you!" But that was not for some time. The aide was already gone. He had had his thanks in the effect of the news, which made him think that a chief of staff should not receive congratulations for victory alone.

Lanny would return through the garden. She remained leaning against the wagon body, still faint from happiness, waiting for him. She was drawing deeper and longer breaths that were velvety with the glow of sunshine. A flame, the flame that Lanny had desired, of many gentle yet passionate tongues, leaping lither and thither in glad freedom, was in possession of her being. When his figure appeared out of the darkness the flame swept her to her feet and toward him. Though he might reject her he should know that she loved him; this glad thing, after all the shame she had endured, she could confess triumphantly.

But she stopped short under the whip of conscience. Where was her courage? Where her sense of duty? What right had she, who had played such a horrible part, to think of self? There were other sweethearts with lovers alive who might be dead on the morrow if war continued. The flame sank to a live coal in her secret heart. Another passion possessed her as she seized Lanstron's hand in both her own.

"Lanny, listen! Not the sound of a shot—for the first time since the war began! Oh, the blessed silence! It's peace, peace—isn't it to be peace?" As they ascended the steps she was pouring out a flood of broken, feverish sentences which permitted of no interruption. "You kept on fighting today, but you won't tomorrow, will you? It isn't I who plead—it's the women, more women than there are men in the army, who want you to stop now! Can't you hear them? Can't you see them?"

In the fervor of appeal, before she realized his purpose, they were on the veranda and at the door of the dining-room, where the Brown staff was gathered around the table.

"I still rely on you to help me, Marta!" he whispered as he stood to one side for her to enter.
