

MRS. MABEN WAS MADE WELL

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Wants Other Suffering Women To Know It.

Murfreesboro, Tenn. - "I have wanted to write to you for a long time to tell you what your wonderful remedies have done for me. I was a sufferer from female weakness and displacement and I would have such tired, worn out feelings, sick headaches and dizzy spells. Doctors did me no good so I tried the Lydia E. Pinkham Remedies - Vegetable Compound and Sanaive Wash. I am now well and strong and can do all my own work. I owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and want other suffering women to know about it."

Why Lose Hope. No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

INDUSTRIAL PROBE GOING HIGH IN NEARLY

Workmen's Compensation Commission Will Report Some Interesting Observations

BOHLEN OUTLINES LABOR'S Data of Great Value to the Legislature Will Be Ready When It Begins Its Work

The Industrial Accidents Commission has determined not to hold any public meetings throughout the State. The public meetings which were held by the commission of 1911, of which it is a continuance, sufficiently detail the views of the parties directly and indirectly interested in the questions. The commission issued a bulletin which contains the tentative draft of legislation which it contemplates submitting to the Legislature at its next session.

Francis H. Bohlen, the secretary, says: "The members have been devoting attention to a study of the effect of similar acts in force in other states of the Union and such changes as appear to be necessary." These criticisms are either repetitions of suggestions or objections made before the commission at its public hearings in 1912 or are merely suggestions for changes in the wording of the acts proposed.

"(1) That litigation between employer and employe in respect to work accidents has increased to a very small fraction of its previous volume. (2) That in the great majority of states the payment of compensation is begun within a very few weeks after the occurrence of the accident, thus affording a relief to the sufferers at the period when their distress is most acute. In some few states there has been some delay, due to the fact that the acts there in force require every claim to be passed upon by a commission before payments can be made.

"(3) The number of serious injuries, especially those resulting in death, has shown a very marked decrease. In some cases the fatal accidents have diminished within one year after the act went into effect. (4) The cost to the employer has been less than the commission dared to predict. This is a matter which concerns not merely the employers of the State and through them the employe, but also every consumer of products manufactured within the State.

"When the act submitted in 1913 was before the Legislature fears were expressed that insurance companies would take undue advantage of employe and would charge exorbitant rates of insurance. What danger there might have been of this will be avoided by the State insurance fund created by the act published in a tentative form in the bulletin before mentioned. Together with mutual insurance associations, the creation of which is provided for in another act submitted, affords the employe desirable means for insuring himself as to the means of insurance. The experience of other states shows that where there is this competition, insurance rates have decreased very substantially, in some instances as much as 30 or 40 per cent.

"I give you this summary of the experience of other states in which compensation acts are in force, as I believe they will be of interest to the citizens of our state. If the Legislature at its next session enacts the legislation now proposed, as I believe it will, together with mutual insurance associations, the creation of which is provided for in another act submitted, affords the employe desirable means for insuring himself as to the means of insurance.
