FIRES THREATENING PEN-MAR SECTION

Buildings and Timber Burned and Many Summer Cottages in Danger

Special to The Telegraph
Waynesboro, Pa., Nov. 6.—One of the most destructive fires ever visiting this section of the Blue Ridge Mountains started between High Rock and Quirank, about a mile from Pen Mar Park, on Wednesday afternoon and has been raging ever since.
Several hundred acres of timber land has been burned over and while many cottages in the wake of the fire have escaped destruction a number of small buildings have been burned.
Yesterday afternoon the wind shifted the course of the fire and the flames ate their way toward Pen-Mar Park. At the intersection of the Blue Mountain Highway and the road leading to the cottage belonging to Mrs. Ella Finch, of Baltimore, and it took a hard battle on the part of several hundred volunteer fire fighters before the fire was turned from the building.
The flames then, leaping high into the air, spread in rapid rate among the high timber and the cracking of the leaves and wood was similar to a roaring furnace.
At 5 o'clock a telephone message was sent to Waynesboro for all the owners of cottages in the Pen-Mar section to come to the mountain at once, as their property was in danger of destruction by the fire, and several trolley loads answered the call, while dozens of automobiles went to the scene.
Near the Mrs. Finch cottage a building formerly occupied by Harry Lesher caught fire and was reduced to ashes in a few minutes.
The fire last night burned fiercely and, although there was a force of over 500 persons fighting it, they were powerless to subdue the flames on account of their being fanned by a stiff wind.
Yesterday afternoon seven fires on the mountain could be seen at one time—five in the Blue Ridge near Pen-Mar Park and Quirank, and two in South Mountain, near Tomstown, just north of Waynesboro.
If the wind continues as it has been for the past forty-eight hours there will be no doubt that the thousands of acres of valuable timber will be destroyed, together with hundreds of partridges, pheasants, rabbits and squirrels, along with a number of deer.

THE MESSENGER.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.
(Copyright, 1914, by Star Film Co.)
She rose up in the early dawn,
And white and silently she moved
About the house. Four men had gone
To battle for the land they loved,
And she, the mother and the wife,
Waited for tidings for the strife.
How still the house seemed; and her
Tread
Was like the footsteps of the dead.
The long day passed; the dark night
Came,
She had not seen a human face,
Some voice spoke suddenly her name.
How loud it echoed in that place,
Where, day on day, no sound was heard
But her own footsteps. "Bring your word,
She cried, to whom she could not see,
"Word from the battle-plain to me?
A soldier entered at the door,
And stood within the dim firelight:
"I bring you tidings of the war,"
He said, "who left you for the fight."
"God bless you, friend," she cried,
"speak on!
For I can bear it. One is gone?"
"Ay, one is gone," he said. "Which one?"
"Dear lady, he, your eldest son."
A deeply pallor shot across
Her withered face; she did not weep.
She said: "It is a grievous loss,
But God gives His beloved sleep.
What of the living—of the three?
And when can they come back to me?"
The soldier turned away his head;
"Lady, your husband, too, is dead."
She put her hand upon her brow;
A wild, sharp pain was in her eyes,
"My husband! Oh, God help me now!"
The soldier heard her shuddering
sighs.
The task was harder than he thought.
"Your youngest son, dear madam,
is close at his father's side; both fell
Dead, by the bursting of a shell."
She moved her lips and seemed to moan.
Her face had paled to ashen gray:
"Then one is left me—one alone."
"She said, "of four who marched with me."
Oh, overruling, All-wise God,
How can I pass beneath Thy rod!"
The soldier walked across the floor,
Paused at the window, at the door,
Wiped the cold dew-drops from his cheek
And sought the mourner's side again.
"Once more, dear lady, I must speak:
Your last remaining son was slain
Just at the closing of the fight.
'Twas he who sent me here to-night."
"God knows," the man said afterward,
"The fight itself was not so hard."

Life Is a Funny Proposition After All

"I Spent the Last Six Years in Pain and Misery, Whereas They Surely Could Have Been Spent Hale and Hearty, Had I Known What I Know Now"

Words similar to above were spoken this morning at the drug store in the presence of a number of other people by Mr. Rudolph Speckler, of Steelton. He further stated his case as follows: "Just about six years ago I became afflicted with what was pronounced kidney trouble. I began to have pains across my back and shoulders, which became worse from day to day. Eventually these pains spread to different parts of my body, sometimes my arms would ache and at other times the pains seemed to jump to my knees and ankles. I realized then that I suffered from a terrible case of rheumatism and I began to squander my money for a cure. I used electric and massage treatments, liniments and oils, and was always taking some kind of internal medicine or other, but no cure. I became so discouraged that I often wished I were dead. I was told to call and learn what the Quaker remedies would do for me, but I had lost all confidence and refused to visit him. A neighbor of mine, Mr. Henry Hohman, bought a full treatment of the Quaker remedies for rheumatism, and it was helping him so much that he urged me to try some of his treatment. I did so and was surprised to find that it was helping me. I then sent to the drug store for a treatment. To-day after taking the remedy just about six weeks, I can truthfully state that I am entirely cured. I have no more aches or pains. I again walk without my cane, and I must admit that Quaker Extract and Oil have cured me. I am going to Atlantic City to spend about ten days and upon my return I will gladly meet any sufferer of rheumatism and prove that Quaker cured me."
If you suffer from rheumatism, call or write to the Quaker Remedies, care of the Quaker Remedies, 30 South Third Street.—Advertisement.
