WINTER WHEAT OUTLOOK GOOD
 "Modern Miller" Sees Promise of Increased Production
 Chicago, Nov. 7.—The Modern Miller crop outlook: "Wheat seeding throughout the winter wheat States was under as favorable conditions as any crop ever seeded. Good soil preparation and increased acreage greatly favor increased production. The growing plant is up to an excellent stand. Soft wheat States report considerable Hessian fly and probable damage from that cause may develop before harvest."
 "Farmers in many districts continue to hold wheat and country movement to meet demands for export is only likely under stimulus of higher prices on the farms."

WOUNDED FRENCHMEN ARRIVE IN NEW YORK

Three Men Tell Thrilling Stories of Their Experiences in Fighting Against Germans
 By Associated Press
 New York, Nov. 9.—Three soldiers, all discharged from the French army because of disability and all bearing wounds which showed they had been in the thick of the fighting, arrived here to-day on board the steamship Rochambeau, from Havre. They were George Pierlot and Leon Leblot, on their way to their homes in Canada; and John Rosenbaum, returning to his home in Holbrook, Mass.
 Pierlot and Leblot were wounded in the defense of Rheims. Leblot said that in the hand-to-hand fighting there he received a bayonet wound in his side and was carried to the rear. While a Sister of Charity, whom he knew only as Anna, was binding his wound, a German bullet killed her and her body fell across him. Leblot later returned and was twice wounded in one leg. Then he quit.
 "The Germans used the bodies of their dead as barricades and we had to climb over them," said Leblot. Pierlot received a saber thrust in his left shoulder before Rheims. He said that the artillery opened the battle and rained shells on the opposing lines for three hours. Then the men closed in and fought hand-to-hand for three hours.
Killed Seven Germans
 Rosenbaum at Muelhausen lost his rifle and was slashed in the arm with a saber. "I found a blacksmith's knife on the battlefield," he said, "and killed seven German with it before I was again wounded and put out of action."
 B. C. Heyneman, a San Francisco architect, who said that he was twice arrested and twice sentenced to death, once by the French and once by the Germans, also was a passenger. He gained his freedom and meeting Miss Florence Lacava, once his schoolmate, in France, married her. He brought his bride alone.
 Antoinette Bonner, known as the "Queen of Diamonds," and Joseph Kesslering, arrested in Paris last June, charged with the sale of $180,000 worth of diamonds from a New York jeweler, arrived on the Rochambeau in the custody of two New York detectives.

Like Ragtime Singing? Here's The Girl That Can Sing 'Em

Where is the man, woman or child who doesn't enjoy the happy swing of ragtime?
 There's a little girl at the Orpheum Theater this week who has such a clever way of singing the popular songs of the day that her managers have every confidence that she will help to give the vaudeville house one of the biggest weeks of its reason. Her name is Ruth Roye and her size isn't much bigger than her name, but her standing on the vaudeville circuit is just that big that she went to the Palace Theater in New York with a one week's contract and remained there seven weeks before they would let her go.
 Miss Roye isn't exactly the headliner at the Orpheum this week because there's a musical comedy act there called "The Lawn Party" that occupies the distinguished position of top-liner, and there's a big troupe of Arabs there too, but Ruth says she's going to give each of these big acts a run for their money and she'll make the town give her credit for being the headliner anyway.
 A girl who can so endear herself to the hearts of vaudeville fans that she remains in one theater for a whole week, ought to be able to make folks sit up and listen alright, and that's what Ruth proposes to do in Harrisburg.
