She is now ashore and continues to burn.

Emden's Gunnery Good at Beginning of Fight; Funnels Were Shot Away

The Emden, which was driven ashore on the Cocos Islands, was good in the beginning of her fight off Cocos Island with the Australian cruiser, Sydney, but deteriorated after the German boat had two funnels shot away and caught fire astern within an hour of the beginning of the engagement. She is now ashore and continues to burn.

THROW EARTH IN COFFERDAMS

Because much of the earth excavated from the second street subway is being hauled out over the Cumberland Valley bridge and dumped into the cofferdams for the new bridge pier foundations in the river, not a great deal of material is available for the completion of the river front treatment from Iron alley northward. A gang of men are busy dressing up the slopes, however, and putting them in such shape as will allow proper planting of matrimony vine and other shrubbery. The treatment of the slopes has been completed as far northward as Hanna street.

MASONIC LODGE IS NOW 135 YEARS OLD

450 Eat Big Turkey Dinner at Temple; Prominent Speakers; H. W. Musser Toastmaster

Old Perseverance Lodge, No. 21, Free and Accepted Masons, last night celebrated the one hundred and thirty-fifth anniversary of its inception with an elaborate banquet in the Masonic Temple, State and Third streets. Covered for 450, including 200 guests, were laid. And it was some dinner. Charles Smith, the lodge steward, saw to that. The turkeys were all from farms of Dauphin and Cumberland counties and there were enough of them that every mother's son had more than he could eat.

W. Harry Musser, worshipful master of the lodge, was in charge of the ceremonies and acted as toastmaster. The speakers of the evening were J. Henry Williams, of Philadelphia, right worthy grand master; Louis A. Watres, Scranton, right worthy deputy grand master; John S. Sell, Greensburg, right worshipful junior grand warden; and William S. Snyder, in this city, district deputy grand master. Music was furnished by the Masonic orchestra and the Perseverance quartet, composed of Ralph E. Steever, Jerome M. Hamilton, N. R. Seltzer and H. H. Frain. The quartet composed a special song in honor of the anniversary and dedicated the song to Mr. Musser. The orchestra included W. Fred Weber, F. William Froehlich, Samuel W. Rich, Norman E. Kurzenknebe, Charles Fortna, Harry F. Bousard, J. Elmer George, J. Foster Shirk, Howard W. Baker, Edwin F. Dornbach, George W. Geide, John H. Froehlich, George Roberts, Harry H. Etter, Fred J. THE CHRONICLE OF THE DRUM.

Last year, my love, it was my hap Behind a grenadier to be, And, but he wore a hairy cap, No taller man, methinks, than me. Prince Albert and the queen, God wot, (Be blessings on the glorious pair!) Before us passed, I saw them not, I only saw a cap of hair. Your orthodox historian puts In foremost rank the soldier thus. The red-coat bully in his boots, That hides the march of men from us. He puts him there in foremost rank. You wonder at his cap of hair; You hear his saber's cursed clank, His spurs are jingling everywhere. Go to! I hate him and his trade. Who bade us so to cringe and bend, And all God's peaceful people made To such as him subservient? Tell me what find we to admire In epaulets and scarlet coats, In men, because they load and fire, And know the art of cutting throats? —William Makepeace Thackeray.

PATRIOTIC CHEERING OPENS PARLIAMENT

King George Says Only Measures Which Will Help Army Will Be Introduced

London, Nov. 11, 2:25 P. M.—Londoners, who recently have been deprived of all spectacular incidents, to-day thronged the route of the royal procession to Westminster Palace, where King George opened parliament, and a wave of patriotic cheering followed the king and queen from the start to the finish of their drive. Their majesties rode in a less conspicuous state favorably contrasted by six black horses, instead of the gold and glass chariot heretofore used.

The scene within the house of lords was hardly as picturesque as usual. The court in mourning for Prince Maurice of Battenberg and large numbers of aristocrats which customarily fill the upper chamber on these occasions are now mourning for husbands and sons fallen in the war, while sadder khaki to a large extent displaced the brilliant military uniforms usually present.

In the speech from the throne at the opening of parliament King George said: "Since I last addressed you the area of the war has been enlarged by the participation in the struggle of the Ottoman empire. In conjunction with my allies and in spite of repeated and continuous provocations I strove to preserve in regard to Turkey a friendly neutrality. Bad councils and alien influence have driven her into a policy of wanton and defiant aggression and a state of war now exists between us. My Mussulman subjects know well that our rupture with Turkey has been forced upon me against my will and I recognize with appreciation and gratitude the proofs which they have hastened to give of their loyal devotion and support."
