HOW TO CURE RECEDING GUMS A careful census in all the large cities of the country shows that in every five adults to suffer from bad teeth, decay is one of the main troubles when the enamel of the teeth becomes yellow and black, and the gums begin to recede from their accustomed places, decay sets in. Then loose teeth, bleeding, ulcerated teeth, and the attendant train of ills of the mouth. You can soon realize that your teeth are becoming disordered if you will but note how sensitive they are to heat and cold. You sometimes feel that your teeth are "on an edge." Tartar is shown, especially on the inside of the teeth, exudation and receding gums are sure to follow. Your teeth become loose and may twist and distort in their sockets. In a trice you have a bad mouth that everyone is sure to note, and you are certain to feel. It makes you shy and backward—you don't care to laugh because you realize how easily one takes note of your yellow and black teeth. Teeth extraction is always to be avoided. When you pull one tooth it gives the others more opportunity to become loose in their sockets. If you are not careful you must soon go in for store teeth, and these store teeth are insupportable as well as ugly. They never look like your own true teeth, and everyone notices that. "You can readily overcome these troubles," said a well-known scientist, "if you will but go to your dentist and get just four ounces of fluid organ (you need not more) and put a teaspoonful away each morning, noon and night. You will wake up with white teeth—the yellow on the enamel peels off and shows the whiteness underneath—the blackened teeth give way to white ones, your gums are clean and healthy and the teeth in their strong and firm instead of rocking to and fro. The dangers of pyorrhea pass away, foul breath and bad tasting mouth are gone—apertures and recession of gums disappear, for the reason that the microbes that infect the mouth and rob the teeth of their white appearance are forever destroyed.—Advertisement.

Use "Gets-It," Corns Shrivels, Vanish!

It's the New Way, and You'll Forget You Ever Had Corns "2 drops put on in 2 seconds, corn shrivels, comes clean off." That's the marvelous story of "GETS-IT," the new-plant corn cure. Nothing can be simpler for the cure of corns—and it never fails. That's why millions of people are using "GETS-IT" to-day and throwing away their fussy plasters, sticky tapers, ointments, salves, and "wrapping outfits" that make a bundle around the toe and choke it into pain by pressing either on or around the corn. There is nothing to stick to your stocking, nothing to cause inflammation or rawness, nothing to press on or around the corn. You apply it in 2 seconds. No more knives, razors, scissors or files, with their blood-poisoning dangers. Try "GETS-IT" for that corn, callous, wart or bunion. "GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

WHAT THE SHOPS ARE SHOWING

Sachets bags are so attractive and dainty for gifts that clever women begin now to make them for Christmas-giving, and a very delightful sachet for this use is the fragrant Bouquet Jeanie sold at the Gorgas Drug Store. Thoughtful givers use this sachet to perfume their gifts before sending them, and a good idea is to keep a drawer plentifully sprinkled with sachet in which to lay each Christmas gift as it is purchased. For those who love violets—and who does not?—the Violet Dulce sachet also sold at Gorgas' has the sweet delicate fragrance of the natural violets and makes an excellent sachet. A CHARMING BEDROOM The decoration of the bedroom must combine color harmonies conducive to quiet and repose with tones bright enough to inspire the occupant to begin the day in a bright and cheerful mood, and this combination is delightfully attained in a decoration shown at the A. B. Tack Wall Paper Shop, 1216 North Third street, suggested for the young girl's room. The wall coloring is in a soft pale blue-green that brightened with touches of rose and lavender, which give the cheerful play of light which is best compared to the flickering of sunlight on the quiet surface of a lake. With white or ivory furnishings and hangings of deep rose with touches of lavender, this decoration would be particularly lovely. LUXURIES AT LOW PRICES Since the price of meat has increased so enormously many things that were formerly considered the greatest luxuries are really cheaper than meat. For instance, fresh mushrooms are always been a rare delicacy, and they may be obtained at the Studebaker Grocery Store, State and Second streets, for just 50c a pound. These mushrooms are produced at the government experimental station, and one may be perfectly sure of their freshness. With cultivated mushrooms, too, there is not the slightest danger of getting poisonous varieties, as they are all grown from slips, and those sold at Studebaker's are unusually tender and delicate in flavor.

ECONOMICAL COOKING

When economy must be practiced, the helpful book of economical recipes sold at the Central Book Store, 329 Market street, is a wonderful aid to the housewife. This book contains only recipes for inexpensive dishes with special attention paid to the utilization of left-overs, and if the instructions are carefully followed it is surprising to find how many delicious things may be made at the smallest cost. Mrs. Rohrer's famous cook book is also shown there as well as a book of delicious chafing dish recipes. For one's own special recipes, the card-filing systems for just 25 and 39 cents are splendid.

Has your baby a little fear and want to keep it warm in winter cold weather? The Woman's Exchange, Third street at Herr, is showing a perfectly charming knitted set, made of creamy white yarn and daintily embroidered in blue, and for Baby no elaborate fur set could be sweeter or prettier. These charming knitted sets can easily be made by taking advantage of the free instructions offered at the Exchange. After buying the yarns the customer may be assisted without charge, in beginning the set of this kind or any other knitted or crocheted article.
