Later their field will be extended to permit them to exercise remaining functions defined by the currency law.

The chief attraction and value of the new system, according to its interpreters, are to be found in the elasticity it will give to recognized paper currency. The federal reserve notes which probably will replace the familiar national bank notes will be issued on commercial paper arising out of actual business transactions. It is designed that they will rise and fall in amount according to the flow in the tide of business. They will be government obligations, having back of them a large gold reserve in the regional banks.

Paul M. Warburg, possibly the most experienced banker on the Federal Reserve Board, to-day declared that November 16 might be considered the Fourth of July in the economic life of the United States, marking the foundation of the nation's financial emancipation.
