WAR!

We are not responsible for the War in Europe--but we are responsible for the War on Patent Medicine in Harrisburg. We have been cutting and slashing the prices ever since we opened our store thirty years ago. It has certainly been some battle. At the same time we feel as if our fight has been successful. We have saved our army of customers thousands of dollars during this battle of cut prices. We hope this cut-rate war will go on forever, and as long as you allow us to be your commander-in-chief WE WILL DEFEAT OUR ENEMY, "HIGH PRICES." Our present army is not quite large enough. We want thousands of new recruits to follow our flag of low prices. This is our call to arms. Join our army for low prices and help us defeat the enemy, "HIGH PRICES."

Church That Is a Nation Now Drawn Into War

The Armenians, Who Have No Corporate Identity Except Ecclesiastically, Go Into Action
(By the Religious Rambler.)

A few lines in the dispatches from the war in eastern Turkey to the effect, that the Americans have openly joined forces with the Russians in attacking the Turks, brings into the war an ancient people, who have the unique distinction of being a church but not a nation.

past, there have been frequent local murders during the past year on religious grounds.

There are about three million Armenians in the world, less than a million of whom reside in Turkish Armenia. Russian Armenia, across the border, has nearly as many. And a lesser number are found in what may be called Persian Armenia. All three districts converge at Mount Ararat, upon which Noah's ark landed at the subsidence of the flood.

This strange commingling of past history with present politics and wars which has marked the dispatches from the East is especially striking in the case of Armenia, the records of which go back to the ancient cuneiform inscriptions a thousand years before the Christian era. The central mountains and fertile valleys of Armenia are situated almost equally distant from the Black Sea, the Mediterranean and the Persian Gulf. Thus, it has been in contact with the history of Persia, Greece, Rome, and all subsequent world dominions.

A Church Without a State

The majority of Armenians are neither Roman nor Greek, Catholics, nor yet are they Protestants, although Armenians are to be found in large numbers in all of these three bodies. The Armenian Church is the Gregorian Church. St. Gregory established Christianity as the religion of the Armenian state before ever Constantine had erected the cross over the Roman Empire. By the translation of the Bible into the vernacular in 410, a new tie was created, which has done more to bind Armenians together than anything else. Their worship is in the native language.

The ecclesiastical identity of the Armenians is the only one recognized, and they are represented at Constantinople by the Patriarch, who, until comparatively late date, held both civil and spiritual authority under the overlordship of the Sultan. Not since the time of the crusades have they had their own national existence. Most Armenians are members of the Ottoman Empire, but like so many other of the racial groups of that strange agglomeration of peoples, the Armenians avowedly hate the Turks, and, as the news columns are reporting, have openly taken up arms against their historic oppressors.

A ROMANTIC RACE

A few sentences from Sir Charles William Wilson, an eminent British authority, give a good characterization of those romantic people, who have kept their identity since remote pre-Christian times. He says: "The Armenians are essentially an Oriental people, possessing, like the Jews, whom they resemble in their exclusiveness and widespread dispersion, a remarkable tenacity of race and faculty of adaptation to circumstances. They are frugal, sober, industrious and intelligent, and their sturdiness of character has enabled them to preserve their nationality and religious under the sorest trials. They are strongly attached to old manners and customs, but have also a real desire for progress which is full of promise. On the other hand they are greedy of gain, quarrelsome in small matters, self-seeking and wanting in stability; and they are gifted with a tendency to exaggeration and a love of intrigue which has had an unfortunate influence on their history. They are deeply separated by religious differences, and their mutual jealousies, their inordinant vanity, their versatility and their cosmopolitan character must always be an obstacle to the realization of the dreams of the nationalists. The want of courage and self-reliance, the deficiency in truth and honesty sometimes noted in connection with them, are doubtless due to long servitude under an unsympathetic government."

A Long Line of Martyrs

Armenia has for ages been inhabited by the Armenians and the Kurds, the latter a virile, blood-thirsty, mountain people, who Xenophon knew as the Carduchi. The Kurds being Moslems, have assumed the superior position, and no record has ever been kept of the times when they have expended their religious zeal by cutting the throats of Christian Armenians. Despite generations of persecution, the Armenians—ignorant, poor and opposed though the villagers were—have kept the faith. Massacre after massacre has but served to intensify their loyalty to Christianity and to awaken their national aspirations.

By the way of these massacres America has come into association with the Armenians, and the Congregationalist's work in Turkey is chiefly among them.

All the great mission schools in the Turkish Empire are attended chiefly by Armenians. The missionaries have sought their converts from the corrupted Armenian Church, rather than from Islam.

Armenians in America

Many of these Armenians have migrated to America, and have for the most part gone into mercantile pursuits. They are the rug sellers, and Oriental merchants familiar to everybody. They have a keen business sense.

This commercial shrewdness of Armenians which has made them the financial masters of the natives, has been a factor in the outbursts against them.

Visitors to the Church of the Nativity and the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Bethlehem and Jerusalem, know that the Armenian Church maintains separate rights in these holy places, along with the Greek and Roman Catholic churches. No amount of opposition has been able to make them abdicate their religious claims.

For the rights of the Patriarch at Constantinople they have been quick to riot.

Now, apparently the Armenians see in the present strife the breaking up of Turkey and the possibility of the realization of their dreams of an Armenian Empire.

VIVID WAR PICTURES OF PERMANENT INTEREST

Superb illustrations in the Book Which We Are Distributing

One of the many valuable features of "The Story of Europe and the Nations at War," which we are distributing to our readers, is comprised in the magnificent collection of historical pictures of current and permanent interest which the book contains. In this collection are photographs of the rulers, great statesmen and great military and naval leaders of all Europe, including both those who have made their impress upon world events of the last century leading up to the present conflict, and those who are foremost in the public eye to-day. They show also the scenes of great battles of history described in the book, and trace the wonderful developments of modern instruments of warfare from the comparatively crude implements with which the great Napoleon fought his battles and achieved his victories. No similar collection of vivid photographs has ever before been brought together in a single volume. These full-page half-tone engravings are printed on specially finished paper which brings out all the beauty of their execution and details. The illustrations also include a large map in colors.

Be sure to clip the coupon on another page and obtain your copy of this remarkable book containing the history of Europe and the causes and issues of the present war.

HOGS DYING IN MIFFLIN COUNTY

Special to The Telegraph

Lewistown, Pa., Nov. 20.—Within a week past about a dozen hogs have died at McVeytown, this county, and a number in the big valley. Charles Williams has lost two fine hogs and three others are very ill. Reuben Gayton lost a fine breeding sow that cost him a fancy price. It is not known what killed the hogs in this place, but it is reported that hog cholera has been attacking some hogs in the county.

THROAT CUT IN FIGHT

Sellinsgrove, Pa., Nov. 20.—Frank Steiff, aged 27, is dying in the Shamokin Hospital and his assailant, Peter Porocupa, is at large. The men fought in the store of Dominick Bresh, in Vine street, Shamokin, Wednesday night and Porocupa slashed Steiff's throat from ear to ear.
