WINS 12 CENTS ALL TOLD

Mary Paicic Gets Verdict in Slander Suit; Must Pay $100 Costs

Mary Paicic, who, early in the week won her slander suit against Paul Lovranic, must be satisfied with a moral rather than a material victory, according to the preponderating weight of opinion among attorneys and court attendants.

Mary sued Paul for saying slanderous things about her and the jury returned a verdict in her favor for six cents. By the provisions of an old law a verdict for an amount under forty shillings—$5.25—allows only as much costs as the amount of the verdict. So Mary got just twelve cents.

And the bill for the remainder of the costs, totalling nearly a hundred dollars, must be footed by the contestant responsible for the trial. This means Mary.
