Steals Stenographer's Coat From the Office of District Attorney

Deed Done While She Was Taking Dictation in Similar Larceny Case; Thief Caught; Cloak Still Gone

While District Attorney Michael E.

Stroup was dictating a letter in his office last evening, Ed Welsh, well-known to the police as panhandler and drunk, calmly strolled into the anteroom adjoining the county prosecutor's office—and stole the stenographer's coat.

Miss Clara Miller, cierk in the district attorney's office, heard someone moving about and the district attorney's office, heard someone moving about and the district attorney went out to investigate. He thought someone might have slipped into see him. No one was in the room, however. A little later when the letters were finished Miss Miller prepared to go home, she discovered the loss of her coat.

District Attorney Stroup learned from a special officer in the hall that

Vera Cruz, Nov. 25.—General Venustiano Carranza is expected to arrive here to-day or to-morrow at the latest. An official from Mexico City whose duty it is to look after the official residence in the capital has arrived here to make preparations for the coming of his chief. From this seaside capital General Carranza will direct his campaign against General Villa.

General Cardido Aguilar, who took over Vera. Cruz when the American forces withdrew on Monday, has increased his garrison to perhaps 6,000 men, who are occupying virtually the same lines of outposts as did the Americans. The cable lines to Mexico City were restored yesterday afternoon. There has been no disorder of any consequence since the Americans

Päris, Nov. 27.—A note appended to the official communique issued this afternoon says:

"A few days ago in Belgium a German column marched on the Dri Grachter bridge, forcing before them a group of French zouaves whom they had taken prisoners. The men in the French trenches ceased firing when the Germans forced their captives to cry out 'Cease firing.'

"When the zouaves were very near the bridge one of the prisoners cried out in a commanding voice, 'Faites feu, nom de Dieu!' ('Open fire, in the name of God').

"The French trenches involuntarily fired a volley at the command, with the result that every zouave was killed. All the Germans were then finished off with mitrailleuses. The name of the zouave hero is unknown, because when the French charged and took the bridge they could not tell his body from the others which littered the floor of the structure.'
