STOUGH SAYS THUG IS ON HIS TRAIL

STOUGH PROGRAM

To-night, sermon and trailhitting at the tabernacle. To-morrow afternoon, 2.30, upon Thanksgiving service at tabernacle. Sermon and trailhitting at tabernacle at 7.30.

the road to or from the tabernacle, some night if they can. He did not directly charge, but intimated that he has reason to suspect that the liquor gang have let loose their opposition since his address on home at the Sunday afternoon mass meeting at which he induced 800 men to stand up and declare themselves against the liquor traffic.

Do the Liquor Men Know? "I would ask the Dauphin County Liquor Dealers Association and the Pennsylvania Liquor Dealers' Association," he began, "whether they know anything about the plot now on to put me out of business by any means they can invent. I ask whether they know anything about the thugs who have lately come from New York to blackmail me or to get me by any foul means they can. I ask them if they know anything about that man who has been shadowing my residence all day and who walked seven times past the house and up the alley nearby, trying to learn about my movements, where I eat and the room in which I sleep." He said they might be interested in knowing that he has valuable information regarding the danger he is in and is prepared to use caution against any plots that are hatched. He went on to inquire if the liquor gang knows anything of a secret conference held in a certain back room on Monday night for the purpose of framing up a plot against him and to arrange by any means for a chance to "knock my teeth down my throat, slug me over the head, or to waylay me some night on the road to or from the tabernacle."

Sluggers From New York

"If anything ever happens to me here or in Altoona or anywhere at any time in the future, look to the liquor men of this State. I know some of the things that are going on about this town; I know that I have been trailed by detectives ever since I came to Harrisburg. Men have been watching the house and trailing my every movement."

"The booze gang would stick a knife into me as quick as a wink. I know there is a party of sluggers hired to come from New York, who are now in the city for the purpose of framing up a plot to blackmail me as soon as an opportunity offers, just as soon as they can get me in a place to stick me up." He called the attention of the police officers in the rear of the tabernacle to what he was saying. "My address on Sunday," he said, "was the signal to get after me. If they don't get me here in Harrisburg, they will follow me up in Altoona, and if they don't get me there they will go on to Lancaster; they intend to get me no matter how long it takes. Do you think they can pass up that demonstration on Sunday when those thousands of men made their stand against liquor? Whatever happens you can lay to the door of the most unlawful and unprincipled gang this side of hell."

More Prayers; Less Knocking

"There are only two sides you can take, God's side, or the devil's side. People may be in the church and be working for the devil, or they may be out of the church and be on God's side. Remember this, there is nothing the saloon gang likes better than to know some of you are knocking me. What I need is more of your prayers than your knocks."

He said that the campaign is lacking in sufficient praying, that the church people are not active enough in inviting others to the tabernacle meetings and that too few persons are earnestly working for the success of the campaign.

He expressed his pleasure at the liberal Sunday collections which totaled $1,464.77, and he spoke of the hopes he has of completing the budget and getting the entire $19,000 that is needed by the end of this week so that he will have no more need to dun the audiences every night for money.

Dr. Stough preached from a number of texts on some of the inevitable spiritual laws, with which Christianity is an impossibility. During the last fifteen minutes of the sermon he described an imaginary trip to California in which he, as an assumed millionaire, was conducting a free for all excursion with every luxury provided and every inducement made for people to go, but instead of having a general acceptance of his offer he was met with a doubt of his sincerity and received endless excuses from every one except some little boys and old women. He drew a parallel between this experience and the invitation of Christ for all to share the heavenly home.

Balzac's Death

The last words before the call for trailhitters were a description of the death of Honore Balzac, the French author. Dr. Stough personified in intense style the final, fearful pleading of the man to be spared a short time longer when the angel of death appeared to claim him. He felt the floor of the platform shouting the death agony, and sending shudders through the audience. About sixty persons hit the trail, men and women being evenly divided. A party of seven men came forward together.

At the afternoon service Miss Palmer spoke to an audience larger than usual. In her subject, "At the Feet of Jesus," she criticized the great neglect of the Bible by all classes of people and particularly blamed church members. Her talk was prepared chiefly for Christian workers and Bible students.

STOUGH CAMPAIGN NOTES

The tabernacle contains 220,000 feet of lumber and covers more than 41,000 square feet of floor space. Based on the "Sunday" tabernacle estimate for each person, this would seat nearly 9,000 people. For purposes of comparison, the Scranton tabernacle, containing a little more than 34,000 square feet, the tabernacle at this place is 7,000 feet larger. The seating capacity is about 8,000 since the changes have been made on the chorus platform.

Professor Spooner introduced his wife to the chorus and audience last evening.

The Rev. J. D. Fox, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, made the opening prayer at the services last evening.

Miss Palmer addressed a large audience at the United Brethren Church, Penbrook, this afternoon. She will conduct a big meeting at the Centenary United Brethren Church, Steelton, to-morrow at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The visiting ministers on the platform last evening were the Rev. N. L. Pinebaugh, United Brethren, Hershey; the Rev. P. George Seiger, Lutheran, Lancaster; the Rev. G. W. Hovetter, Church of God, Elizabethtown.

11.30 to 1 o'clock to-day. Miss Saxman was the speaker. W. H. K. Patterson conducted meeting at noon yesterday at Maclay street shops. The Rev. A. J. Greene, pastor Second Baptist Church, delivered an address.

LIVE WIRE WORKERS

The Rev. L. S. Mudge, D. D., pastor of the Pine Street Presbyterian Church, is a graduate of Princeton University and Princeton Theological Seminary. After having been a fellow and professor in the University, upon the completion of his theological course he entered the ministry, and previous to coming to Harrisburg, eight months ago, had served as pastor the First Presbyterian Churches of Beverly and Trenton, in New Jersey, and Lancaster, Pa. Dr. Mudge is a director of Princeton Theological Seminary, a trustee of Wilson College, Chambersburg, a member of the executive commission of the synod of Pennsylvania, and has just retired from the office of moderator of the synod. Dr. Mudge is very deeply interested in the evangelistic campaign and is sparing no effort to help it to bring a rich blessing not only to the church of which he is the pastor but to the whole city as well.

A STORY THAT MAKES ONE THINK BETTER OF LIFE

Published late in August, Mrs. Norris' Saturday Child has already gone into six editions, with promise of many more to come. The content and quality of the novel are well indicated in the following extract from the Outlook's notice: "Mrs. Norris is not afraid of normal human life. She has not lost faith in the power of wholesome experience to supply all the material essential for dramatic interest. She has more than once proved her case and has invested very simple situations with deep and beautiful meaning. It isn't even necessary to make a career in order to fulfill the possibilities of life. It is quite possible to be respectable and entertaining, to keep out of the newspapers and make life impressively and strikingly successful. In Saturday's Child Mrs. Norris deals with normal people in normal conditions. There is nothing esoteric about her work. Its interest is the interest of life clearly seen and faithfully reported. This story of a working girl in San Francisco is realistic in detail and romantic in temper. No one can read one of Mrs. Norris' stories without thinking better of life."

CRADLE SONG

Lord Gabriel, wilt thou not rejoice When at last a little boy's Cheek lies heavy as a rose, And his eyelids close?

Gabriel, when that hush may be, This sweet hand all heedfully I'll undo, for thee alone, From his mother's own.

Then the far blue highways paven With the burning stars of heaven He shall gladden with the sweet Hasting of his feet-- Feet so brightly bare and cool, Leaping, as from pool to pool; From a little laughing boy Splashing rainbow joy!

Gabriel, wilt thou understand How to keep his hovering hand? Never shut, as in a bond From the bright beyond?-- Nay, but though it cling and close Tightly as a climbing rose, Clasp it only so--a right, Let his heart take flight.

(Dormi, dormi, tu! The dusk is hung with blue.) From a "Cradle Song," by Josephine Preston Peabody, in the Christmas (December) Scribner.
