WEDNESDAY CLUB IN A GENERAL CONCERT

Christmas Numbers Comprise Program; Appreciation of Working Musicals

The Wednesday Club will give one of its attractive general concerts on Thursday evening, December 17, in Fahnstock Hall, at 8.15 o'clock.

The program will be given by the club members and will consist of selections appropriate to the Christmas season.

Each member may bring a guest to the concert. This is an innovation, as heretofore only to the closing concert of the season were guests invited.

Fine Working Musicals

The Wednesday Club never had a more out-of-the-ordinary and interesting program than the one given at its recent working musical. The subject for the morning was "Music of the North American Indian" and its influence upon American composers. The original songs in their native simplicity have been transcribed by Natalie Curtis, Cadman and Troyer, with harmonized piano accompaniments that furnish the necessary background of sound, at times imitating the roll of the drums, the plaintive notes of the eagle-bone whistle and the rattle used by the "medicine man." The Indian's whole life is epitomized in his songs and dances. Work, play and ceremony, each has its own vocal and instrumental expression. Looms in his "Lyrics of the Men" has woven into one of these compositions for the piano the melody which is sung when the calumet, the peace pipe, is dedicated, the pipe which, when offered and smoked, seals the bond of friendship. In another is heard the prayer to Wakonda, the thunder god. Then there is the tune which is sung in detestation of the chattering squaw. Its inharmonious consecutive fourths and fifths and its jumble of melodies sung by different voices regardless of time and unison of pitch typifies vividly the garrulous woman.

The Tyroler yodel has a mate in the motion songs of the Indian maiden as she grinds a corn for her tribe.

The papoose of the Zuni tribe are sung to sleep with the tenderest lullaby, while in marked contrast is the tragic music of the "Ghost Dance." This has been arranged for solo by Carlos Troyer and it portrays in musical color the crouching dance of the naked painted savage, round and in and out among the flaming bonfires, while he endeavors to call the spirit of his beloved back to earth to join him in this commemorative fire dance.

The day has its "Sunrise Call," when every village hastens to a nearby plateau and with uplifted hands greets and thanks the life-giving Mother.

The great warriors' deeds are remembered in song and the spirit of the greatest of them all has been immortalized by Arthur Farwell in "Ichibussih," Ichibussih, he who was slow to answer the war drum, but whose prowess in battle was talked of by children of the fourth and fifth generation.

No program could be complete without Cadman's exquisite Indian songs; the song of the captive maid homesick for the land of the sky-blue water.

"Far Off I Hear a Lover's Flute," "The White Dove is Singing" and "The Moon Drops Low," that noble sorrow for the passing of the red man's glory.

VALUABLE STATE ATLAS COMPLETED

Secretary Houck Finishes a Work That Will Be Much Sought For in Pennsylvania

Under authority of an act of Assembly approved June 13, 1907, the Department of Internal Affairs has been engaged in making warrantee tract maps of several counties of the Commonwealth, and has just received from the lithographers the printed copies of the atlas of Allegheny county, by townships. All the lines of the townships, cities and boroughs are given, showing their relative locations, with the original tracts on which they are situated. Also shown are such data as each tract as name warrantee, date of warrant, survey and patent, to whom patented, and the unappropriated land.

To secure this information required much search work among the records of the Land Office and to collate and bring together these many irregular shaped drafts, in connected form as shown in this atlas, requires the best skill and practical knowledge of the experienced surveyors of the department and the unsurpassed handiwork of the expert draftsmen of the Land Office Bureau.

The entire edition of 200 copies, was erected September 24, 1788, out of parts of Westmoreland and Washington counties, and many of the warrants were taken out before that date, and consequently are of record in those counties. Also many of the warrants were issued when this territory was part either of Bedford or Cumberland, showing the many avenues from whence came the data now consolidated in the pages of this atlas.

A copy of this atlas has been deposited in the public offices of each of the counties of the Commonwealth, and one copy in the office of the recorder of deeds in Pittsburgh, which may be consulted at any time by those interested in the land titles of Allegheny county. Two copies are also on file in the office of the Land Office, where interested in titles or historical data may have free access to them. Copies will also be furnished to the Department of Internal Affairs, as required by the act, will be sent to the Librarian of Congress, at Washington.

The atlas consists of 200 copies, except those above referred to, are directed to be sold to such persons as may desire them at the cost of publication.

These maps furnish data useful not only to those who make their business to abstract and guarantee titles to real estate, but they also contain much of historical and biographical information.

The atlas reflects great credit upon the Secretary of Internal Affairs and his employes, who by their skill and workmanship have contributed their talents to bring this commendable and useful work to such a successful conclusion.

"Yesterday submarine B-11, in charge of Lieutenant-Commander Norman B. Hobbrook, entered the Dardanelles and in spite of the difficult current dived under five rows of mines and torpedoed the Turkish battleship Messudieh, which was guarding the mine fields.

Although pursued by gun fire and torpedoed, the B-11 returned safely after being submerged, on one occasion for nine hours.

"When last seen the Messudieh was sinking at the stern."

What the Shops Are Showing

Have you ever noticed how somber and dull some rooms are when the color scheme is brown, while others, also done in brown tones, are so delightful? Every color has three qualities, value, hue and intensity, and the right proportioning of these qualities makes the success or failure of any decorative scheme. The ordinary buyer of wall paper knows very little about the proportions which must be selected from the splendid assortment shown at the A. B. Tack Wall Paper Shop, 1216 North Third street, one may be sure that color values will be proportioned with absolute accuracy.

A SURPRISE BASKET

A surprise basket is a clever gift suggestion offered at the Studebaker Grocery Store, State and Second streets, for just $1.00. The basket is one of the exquisite Bellefonte baskets in rich green tones, daintily tied with Christmas ribbons, and topped with a spray of scarlet berries. Inside the basket is—ah, but that's the surprise. However, it is no violation of confidence to say that the treat inside is sure to delight the invalid. The Studebaker Store is making a special offering of Christmas goodies, such as fine preserves, fruits, nuts, raisins, plum puddings, mince meat and all the materials for making Christmas cakes.

A DISTINCTIVE SHOE

Shoes of suede, of soft leather, or patent leather and of cloth may be had in many excellent models, but the well-dressed woman who likes the touch of distinction in everything she wears will find that special attraction in a shoe of satin de laine, offered at the Walk Over Boot Shop, 226 Market street. It is dainty in its graceful lines, dignified in its unobtrusive black, elegant in its excellent workmanship and smart from the topmost button to the sole of its high Cuban heel. It may most appropriately be worn for either dress or street wear, with tailored or evening costumes, and the price of this model is $6.00.

CONVENIENCE

Does your family find it convenient to eat breakfast each at a different time? If so, the question of keeping the coffee hot and conveniently at hand is a problem best solved by the use of a thermos carafe. Thermos bottles and carafes are useful in so many different ways that only those who have used them realize how often they can be used for individual comfort and convenience. For invalids motorists, nurses or travelers they make an ideal gift, while there is hardly anyone from school boy or girl to the grand mother who would not find one of these a most acceptable gift. The Gorgas Drug Store, 16 North Third street, has a complete line of thermos bottles and carafes and the prices are very moderate.
