

TO BRING 7,000 NEW CONVERTS IN CHURCH

who signed cards Saturday and Sunday. Of the cards already placed in the hands of the ministers, various percentages of new members are found. In some instances only 25 per cent of the confession cards are from persons already members of the church; in many cases the percentage is more than 50 per cent. No definite record has been kept by the committees and statistics are available only through the individual pastors.

To Organize Permanently

The complete organization of the Personal Service League which was begun by the Rev. F. T. Cartwright two weeks ago will be completed by him at an early date. He plans to make a special trip to Harrisburg some Sunday afternoon during the campaign at Altoona to instruct the men of the local workers along lines similar to those of the woman's branch already organized. The two branches of the League will direct their energies to the conversion of the results of the campaign among the converts and to extend its influence far and wide.

The Rev. Dr. Cartwright said just before he left the city yesterday that the full measure of an evangelistic campaign is not known until at least six months have passed. If, after this time the work is continued with an unabated vigor by the local forces of Christianity, he said Dr. Stough and himself consider the campaign a success; if the interest has waned and church people have lost the impulse for saving souls, then they feel the campaign has been somewhat of a failure.

Figures Do Not Gauge Success.

"It is not the numbers of trailblazers or the amount of money collected that gauge the success of one of our campaigns; it is the new aroused effects and better thought of a community that we always watch during the months succeeding a revival."

Dr. Cartwright left the city last night for his home in Delaware, Ohio, with the best wishes for the continuation of the evangelistic work in Harrisburg and the personal belief that the work is only commencing. He said the party were all highly pleased with the results in this city and desired to thank the community at large and the earnest church people in particular for their interest and support. He said the prospects for a big campaign in Altoona are very encouraging with everything in readiness for the opening next Sunday.

Plan Local Organizations

It is possible that local organizations of trailblazers will be formed for mutual help and for extension of the campaign work. Plans are being worked out for separate societies for the Hill and the down-town districts of the city.

Local revivals in individual churches are being considered by many pastors of the co-operating churches for the purpose of continuing the religious impulse given by the Stough campaign.

MORE SCANDALS IN POST OFFICE JOBS

Ugly Charges Made in Connection With the Democratic Machine's Apportionment

A dispatch to the Philadelphia Public Ledger from Washington, says: "Charges of collusion and corruption, the most astounding yet exposed in the distribution of post offices in Pennsylvania, were made yesterday by M. J. Ryan, of Susquehanna, in an affidavit submitted to Senator Penrose, of the post office and post roads committee. This affidavit directly charges that Joseph P. McMahon, recently appointed to the Susquehanna office, offered Ryan $2,000 to retire from the field as a candidate, and the same amount to Richard N. Brush for his influence in Democratic politics.

The salient features of the affidavit stripped of its verbiage are: "M. J. Ryan deposes that he was a candidate for the appointment of postmaster in the borough of Susquehanna; that on the 15th day of March, 1912, Joseph P. McMahon, one of the said candidates for the appointment to the same office, called upon him and suggested that deponent retire as a candidate for such office, suggesting that he, McMahon, would pay deponent $2,000 for so doing; that McMahon later on cared nothing for the income of the office, but sought the office because of the prestige accompanying the same; that on March 19, 1912, Richard N. Brush called upon deponent and, during the course of the conversation that ensued between deponent and Brush, the latter stated that he had received an offer of $2,000 for his (Brush's) endorsement for the post office and admitted to deponent that such offer was made by the above-mentioned Joseph McMahon; that said Richard N. Brush was the national delegate representing the Fourteenth Congressional District held in Baltimore, June, 1912."

Penrose Holds Up

"Senator Penrose held up the confirmation of McMahon, pending an investigation of the Senate committee. He also held up action on three other Pennsylvania confirmations. One was that of Albert E. Eckert, named for postmaster at Stroudsburg, in place of N. S. Brittain, Jr. The others were, P. G. Katz, to be postmaster at Verona, to succeed John McCurdy, and Walter J. McBeth, for postmaster at Braddock, succeeding C. H. Sheets. In the latter cases the protests came from members of the Democratic party in Allegheny county. In the case of Eckert, the protests were from Congressmen A. Mitchell Palmer and Eckert that his resignation would not be acted upon until the end of his term, February 17. He said Eckert had told him that Palmer would not disturb him in office until the end of his term.

"Senator Penrose, commenting upon the situation, said: "The appointment of postmasters at Braddock and Verona discloses the fact that in both cases persons nominated were supported by M. Clyde Kelly and received their nominations on his recommendation. It is said that neither of those men has the support of the local Democratic administration. Notwithstanding the oft-repeated protests of the Washington party men that they are free from any entanglement with either of the old parties, this would seem to be a clear case of business machine and some explanation of Kelly's vote on the Underwood free trade bill in betrayal of his constituency."

60 SMALL FOLKS TO BE CENTRAL GUESTS

School. Of course, there's to be a tree. Take it from the student committee, the municipal Christmas-tree won't have anything on the tree that is to be raised on the chapel platform.

$150 Raised by Santa "Subs"

More than $150 has already been subscribed by the student body to provide a real, old-fashioned, No. 1 Christmas for the sixty tiny guests and the thousand-odd pupils have planned to demonstrate by trimming the tree, candies, and so forth, that Central High School when it wishes to do so can arrange a Christmas celebration what is a Christmas celebration.

And Santa himself?

Bless you, the old gentleman is too busy seeing to it that thirty-two hoofs are properly shod, that the runners of a famous sleigh are smooth and shiny, that eight sets of bells are jinglingly enough, that the extra work entailed by the war in Europe in the making of ship and doll soldiers is finished—to get away personally. So he's arranged for a "sub."

David Burns, class of '15, is to be the "sub" Santa.

As for the tree and what it will bear: That's some of the "inside stuff" that can't be published because it might spoil the surprise. Suffice it to say that there'll be such a Christmas, beginning at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, as will make an extra page in high school history.

Autos For the Youngsters

Automobiles, of course—regular autos, mind you, with big, puffy, cushiony seats, and robes made of bearskins and things—will be provided to haul the youngsters to and from the High School.

All of which is enough about the celebration. There are some little tales about the persons who are to be the guests. There are some of those for whom families of eager, enthusiastic, whispering, spelling papas and mamma and sisters and brothers, and aunts and uncles and grandfathers and grandmothers, are NOT extending such a wealth of energy and currency.

So here goes:

Lest Santa Find Silver Threads Among the Gold

Everything's very Christmasy up at the Nursery Home; it's in the air.

In one of the wards the age problem and its possibilities with relation to the "big day" was recently at issue. Some mere grown-up, it seems, had raised the question of Santa's probable difficulty in distinguishing the ages of the rows of heads. Upon his ability to do so, it was pointed out, hinged the solution of whether or not for instance the age that can find satisfaction in a train of cars, might not be presented with a rattle. Weight or discrepancy of hair alone would be determining factors. Now there are just a half dozen small boys at the home who perhaps can't boast of as luxuriant growths as their fellows. Therein lurked tragedy.

So the six put it up to Mrs. Stewart, the matron. She gravely suggested a hair tonic. The six agreed. Every night at bedtime it was to be applied and to prove it really a tonic, it was to be "scentily stuff." And Mrs. Stewart was at her wits' end for a time and find something suitable is neither here nor there. She found it. So, every night, six fannel-"nighted" wee folks thingly her room at single file just before bedtime, gravely bow their heads, have'em rubbed, and then they file out to bed.

Everything's very Christmasy up at the Nursery Home; it's in the air.

Social Life Adds to Whirl; Orpheum Party

The social whirl is making Christmas time a terrible busy season at the Nursery Home, doncha know.

The kids of the home together with youngsters from the Children's Industrial Home and some other homes, not industrial, whose occupants are under the eye of the Children's Aid Society, all went to the Orpheum this afternoon. They were guests of C. Floyd Hopkins, the manager. Mr. Hopkins was host last year at a similar party, if you'll remember.

When the Nursery Folks Just Sit and Listen

Some day after Christmas perhaps you'll visit the long playroom of the Nursery Home and you'll naturally be astonished at the unusual quiet that prevails among the long benches of small men and women. They will be listening.

The young woman attendant will be there. But she won't be singing nor reading nor telling a story.

Up in a cage near the window will be the solution. And after the embarrassment of your sudden appearance has worn off perhaps the enter-tainer, one of the Home's Christmas

Gentlemen;-

I want to thank you on behalf of the Party and Myself for the use of the Chickering Piano during our recent Campaign in this city. In years of experience with various good makes of Pianos, I have never had one which so fully measured up to my ideals of Pianoforte. Its immense volume and perfect vibration coupled with its rare carrying quality for the most delicate work, makes it in my opinion, the Ideal Piano for either Concert or Parlor work.

The fact that it has stood up under the strain of a seven weeks Campaign, meeting the heaviest requirements two and three times a day without a moments attention at any time speaks louder for the Chickering than any words. In the future the Chickering Piano will be used exclusively in the Stough Campaigns.

Thanking you again, I am

Yours truly,

Return Engagement of "A Pair of Sixes"

CHRISTMAS ATTRACTION AT MAJESTIC

Like all things which succeed, the title, "A Pair of Sixes," seems to be just the exact name to fit the supremely funny farce which will play a return engagement at the Majestic Christmas matinee and night. It refers merely to the incident in the play which caused two partners to disagree and start a whirl of fun which is now being enjoyed the country over. Beyond that, the title has nothing to do with what has been termed our great American indoor card game. There is, of course, a queen of hearts in the cast. She is a mighty big card and is probably the only instance where a lone queen beat a pair of sixes.—Advertisement.
