Wall Street looks with some hope to the reopening of the London Exchange next week and to the pronounced betterment in the Paris banking situation. The outlook in the steel industry is more encouraging with some expansion in general trade. The first week of the new year is expected to witness the actual inauguration of the $135,000,000 cotton pool, applications for loans being aiready under consideration.

Monetary conditions hold out much promise in their greater ease, but railroad returns offer. little comfort, some of the leading roads having sight fered severely in the past month.

a close the dullest year since 1878.
This condition was directly due to the European war, which necessitated a suspension of market operations for ever four months and caused an enormous shrinkage in the value of American securities.

Trading in the four business days preceding the new year was reduced to minimum proportions, with some firmness in leading stocks and a few specialties. These, however, were decidedly under the price level attained a little more than a fortnight ago when open trading in the entire list was resumed.

A few more stocks, most of them unimportant, were added to the list of issues which fell to minimum quotations, while U. S. Sieel, Southern Pacific and Baltimore and Ohio made partial recovery from their low prices of the preceding week. Acute weakness was shown by some of the Gould stocks, Missouri Pacific falling abruptly to a new low record. Western Maryland issues also were waters as a result of the company's announcement of its intention to default on the interest of its outstanding notes.
