STATE CROPS RUN INTO MILLIONS
Statistician Wible Presents Some Data About Tremendous Worth of Staples

CORN THE MOST VALUABLE
Apples Had Tremendous Crop, Which Was Second Only to New York State

Six of the staple crops of Pennsylvania for 1914 were valued at $112,450,620, according to figures issued by the Bureau of Statistics of the State Department of Agriculture. These crops included wheat, corn, rye, oats, buckwheat and potatoes. Figures on apples, in which the State stood second among the apple States of the Union, and hay not being complete.

The corn was the most valuable crop, 1,463,000 acres yielding 58,520,000 bushels, valued at $45,645,600. Wheat came next, 1,312,000 acres yielding 24,272,000 bushels worth $25,000,160. Potatoes were third, 28,408,000 bushels taken from 268,000 acres being valued at $17,612,960. The yield of oats was 32,190,000 bushels from 1,075,000 acres and valued at $16,095,000. The buckwheat yield was 5,600,000 bushels worth $4,256,000. Rye harvested amounted to 4,760,000 bushels worth $3,950,800.

Figures on value of land show that improved land averages about $75 per acre and unimproved land $50 per acre, with fluctuations according to location. Farm wages averaged $235 per year, with board, and $310 without board.

L. H. Wible, the chief of the bureau, worked out values and prices on the principal crops in fruits and vegetables and for livestock and poultry, the information being gathered from each county in the State.

NONETTE, "THE GYPSY VIOLINISTE," RETURNS TO THE ORPHEUM NEXT WEEK

Almost every local theatergoer will recall Nonette, the Gypsy violinist, as those who saw her when she appeared at the Orpheum will delight in the announcement that she is coming back to her Orpheum address again next week.

Nonette is said to have lost none of her charm, but is as winsome as ever, offering a very interesting repertoire of songs in voice and on her violin. Both Nonette and the Courtney Sisters, who are also great favorites here, come to the Orpheum next week supporting the unusual headliner, Florin and company, in a fine comedy sketch called "The Lady of the Press."

FAMINE AND COLD ARE RAISING DEATH ROLL

The need of the latter of whom there are thousands upon thousands homeless and generally penniless, is urgent and the people, from the king down are doing all possible to alleviate their condition. The cold weather, which continues adds to the terrible suffering and temporary buildings of wood are being erected as fast as possible to house the homeless.

The list of dead can still only be estimated but from what is known it is believed that at least 20,000 persons perished and that twice that number were injured. Avezzano, with probably ten thousand, and Sora, with 4,000 dead, were the heaviest sufferers. The other victims are credited to the three score or more of towns and villages that felt the effects of the shocks.

Just how severely the Marsica district suffered in which Avezzano is located, is best told in a terse telegram from Monsignor Bagnoli, bishop of the Marsica region, sent to Pope Benedict. The telegram reads:

"The Marsica diocese has been transformed into a great cemetery. Avezzano, Capelle and Paterno razed and almost all inhabitants dead.

"A few villages in the diocese are immune but generally desolation reigns. It is an immense and distressing catastrophe."

Pope Sends Reply
The Pope, in reply to this distressing information wired the following:

"Being the father of all the faithful, but first of the unfortunate, I am impelled with grief with this immense misfortune.

"I extend my arms to my unhappy children and am praying for peace for the dead and comfort for the survivors.

More wounded having been brought to Santa Marta Hospital which is close to the Vatican, the Pope again visited the patients there to comfort them. To each he gave a religious medal.

King Victor Emmanuel and the queen mother Marguerita made the rounds of the hospitals in Rome yesterday, visiting the injured, of whom numbers are arriving hourly.

The American ambassador Thomas Nelson Page will visit the earthquake district to-day or to-morrow. The ambassador has agreed with the mayor, Prince Colonna, that the best way for Americans to participate in the relief of the victims is to do so as private individuals.

The motor car with the staff from the American embassy, visited the earthquake district yesterday and witnessed the work of rescue. They saw some of the victims extricated alive from the ruins and also visited the camps where refugees are centered.

Col. Dunn Tells Story
Colonel George M. Dunn, the American military attaché, motored to Avezzano and returned from that place last night. In speaking of what he had seen he said:

"I never dreamed of such a horrible situation. The whole town is ruined as every house is down and only three stables remain intact. Churches, palaces and dwellings have crumbled to the ground. What once were streets are now full of debris to the height of six or seven feet.

"Within a short time the work of rescue will be useless as all those buried under the ruins will be dead. The entire population is extinguished, the people either being dead or wounded in hospitals.

"The dead in the ruins compose the greater percentage of the inhabitants. Over ten thousand were killed at Avezzano alone, while the remainder of the population, about one thousand persons, are practically all injured. Very few escaped without wounds because every house collapsed at once and nobody had any chance to run out.

WHEAT SHIPMENTS INCREASE
Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 16.—Railroad freight officials here were concerned because of the heavy arrivals of grain from the west and the congestion at export points in the East. It was said that 1379 cars of which the export were being held on side tracks between here and Altoona, awaiting shipping orders to points on the seaboard while arrivals from the primary markets were increasing every day.

Colonel Dunn said that Avezzano was now provided with all kinds of supplies and that the attention of relief parties must be turned to the smaller and less accessible villages.

The railway service is now running regularly to the earthquake districts and on their return each train is filled with wounded. Most of whom are being transported to Rome where they are being cared for in a most admirable manner. Prince Colonna, the mayor, is doing all in his power for the injured. He has been on his feet for over fifty hours and is giving splendid example of tireless activity. The ladies of the aristocracy, including some Americans by birth, have taken their places in the hospitals and are helping to nurse the injured.

and then Scott, it is alleged, drew his revolver and fired. Banks died a short time later at the Harrisburg hospital.

During the examination of the evidence the replies of those who were reluctant to serve, edited in the crowded courtroom now and then, Solomon Parmer, a Jackson township farm hand, didn't wait for the preliminary questions to test his qualifications for a place on the jury.

"Now I want to be excused," he blurted out as soon as he had been sworn, "because I've got to go to work Monday. This case'll go over until Monday I know and my boss wants me back on the job."

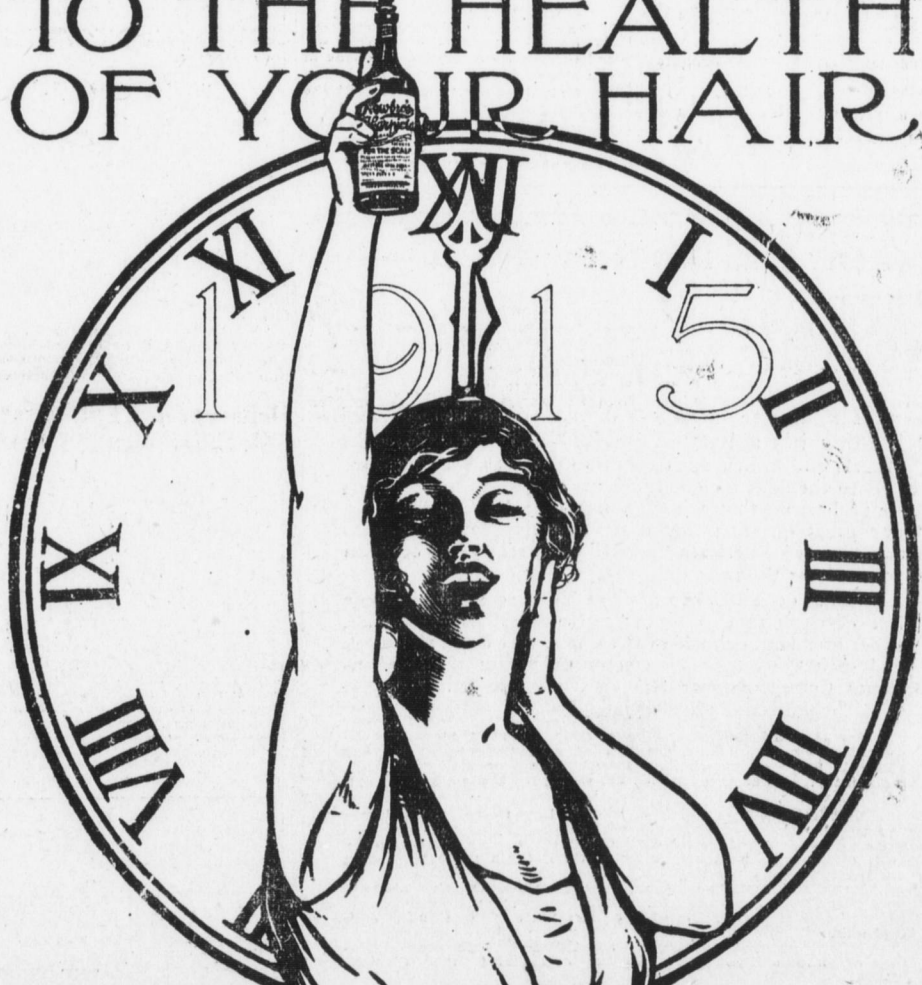

Why They're Biased
John J. Newbaker, a foreman, Secord ward, Steelton, declared he didn't believe he could return an unbiased verdict because he "would enter the jury box in a prejudiced frame of mind."

In answer to a query Newbaker frankly admitted that he "was prejudiced because he believed there had been flagrant abuse by the police of the city during the past year." And that's all he would say about it.

While Richard L. Dare, a Ninth ward shoe manufacturer, admitted smilingly that he "didn't suppose all that appeared in the newspapers all the time could be considered as 'gospel truth.'" He had read a whole lot about it, he declared, but felt that his previously formed opinion in the case could be changed. "Provided," he added, "that the evidence could outweigh what I'd read in the newspapers."
