

LIVEWIRE NEWS OF THE INAUGURAL CELEBRATION SPORTING NEWS OF CITY AND NATION

GOVERNOR BRUMBAUGH'S FIRST APPOINTEES

CYRUS K. WOODS, Secretary of State.

These three appointments were announced by Governor Brumbaugh last night within an hour after he reached the city.

The names will be sent to the Senate to-day and will be promptly confirmed. The appointment of Mr. Brown had been anticipated and that of Mr. Hiatt announced as probable by the Telegraph weeks ago.

New Attorney General Is Philadelphia Lawyer

Francis Shaunk Brown, who is to be the Attorney General during the Brumbaugh administration, was born in Philadelphia, June 9, 1858.

FRANCIS SHUNK BROWN, Attorney General.

His maternal great-grandfather, William Findlay, was a congressman four terms and also was Governor of Pennsylvania and later represented the State in the United States Senate.

Mr. Brown, after attending the public schools of Philadelphia, went to the Wilmington Conference Academy, in Dover, Del., from which he was graduated in 1876.

During his years of practice he has been connected with notable cases in the city, state and federal courts.

At one time he was a Democrat, but for nearly twenty years he has been a staunch Republican. He was regarded by politicians as his municipal candidates for the district attorneyship and the mayoralty.

Years ago he formed a law partnership with Alexander Simpson, Jr., and the firm now is Simpson, Brown & Williams, the third partner being Ira Jewell Williams.

He is a member of the board of directors of city trusts and chairman of its committee on city real estate, is a director of the Continental Equitable Title and Trust Company, president of the Lawyers' Club of Philadelphia and member of the Art Club, Law Association of Philadelphia, American Bar Association, Pennsylvania Bar Association, Philadelphia Yacht Club, Sons of Delaware, Scotch Irish Society of Pennsylvania, Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, Overbrook Golf Club, Overbrook Club, Philadelphia Country Club, Merion Cricket Club, Penn Club, American Academy of Political and Social Science, Pennsylvania Historical Society, Pennsylvania Society in New York, Academy of Political Science of New York and other organizations.

He married Miss Elizabeth Hamm, daughter of the late Pleasanton Hamm, of Dover, Del., and has a son and namesake in the law school of the University of Pennsylvania and a daughter, a senior in Bryn Mawr College. He lives in Overbrook.

JAMES S. HIATT, Private Secretary to the Governor.

Cyrus E. Woods Once Reporter on the Telegraph

Cyrus E. Woods, the new Secretary of the Commonwealth, was born in Clearfield, Pa., September 3, 1861. He was educated at Lafayette College and for several years following graduation he worked as a reporter on the Harrisburg Telegraph, later taking up the study of law.

He has been actively engaged in the practice of law since his admission to the bar in 1889. His home is in Greensburg. He was elected to the State Senate in 1900 and served until 1908. He was President pro tempore from 1905 to 1908.

In 1901 he was chairman of the committee on judicial apportionment and also was a member of the committee on appropriations, judiciary, general, corporations, finance, insurance, street passenger railways, railroads, game and fisheries and public buildings and grounds.

He entered on his second term in the Senate in 1905, having been re-elected in 1904 by a plurality of nearly 7,000.

In this session he was elected President pro tempore of the Senate and during his incumbency of that office he was elected as chief counsel of the Pittsburgh Coal Company at a salary of $15,000 a year. He resigned in 1908 from the Senate.

At the instance of Senators Penrose and Oliver, his name was suggested for the post of minister to Portugal, which carried a salary of $10,000 a year, and the appointment was made by President Taft during the incumbency of Philander C. Knox as Secretary of State. He served until the Wilson administration went into office.

He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, is a trustee of the Westmoreland Hospital Association, a member of the Pennsylvania State Bar Association, of the Delta Kappa Epsilon, Union League, Philadelphia, and Duquesne Club, Pittsburgh.

His parents were Matthew and Katherine Spiese Woods. He married Mary Todd Marchand, of Greensburg, January 18, 1893.

Governor's Secretary Is Prominent Philadelphian

James S. Hiatt, the Governor's secretary, is a Philadelphian and lives at 5204 Morris street, Germantown. He is known chiefly by his work as secretary of the Public Education Association of Philadelphia. He was born in Indiana in 1877 and was educated at Earlham and Haverford Colleges and the Chicago University.

Gov. Brumbaugh Rose From Ranks

is the principal historian of the church; his investigations, which were pursued partially in Europe, fill a large volume.

Martin G. Brumbaugh was elected a preacher in 1891 in Philadelphia. He regularly attended the services in the First Church of the Brethren, in Dauphin street, just west of Broad street, a congregation which lately celebrated its centennial anniversary.

Fishing His Hobby It has been said that he leaves his business behind him when his day is done and when he goes away day is done and when he goes away day is done and when he goes away day is done.

He is a member of the board of directors of city trusts and chairman of its committee on city real estate, is a director of the Continental Equitable Title and Trust Company, president of the Lawyers' Club of Philadelphia and member of the Art Club, Law Association of Philadelphia, American Bar Association, Pennsylvania Bar Association, Philadelphia Yacht Club, Sons of Delaware, Scotch Irish Society of Pennsylvania, Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, Overbrook Golf Club, Overbrook Club, Philadelphia Country Club, Merion Cricket Club, Penn Club, American Academy of Political and Social Science, Pennsylvania Historical Society, Pennsylvania Society in New York, Academy of Political Science of New York and other organizations.

He is a member of the board of directors of city trusts and chairman of its committee on city real estate, is a director of the Continental Equitable Title and Trust Company, president of the Lawyers' Club of Philadelphia and member of the Art Club, Law Association of Philadelphia, American Bar Association, Pennsylvania Bar Association, Philadelphia Yacht Club, Sons of Delaware, Scotch Irish Society of Pennsylvania, Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, Overbrook Golf Club, Overbrook Club, Philadelphia Country Club, Merion Cricket Club, Penn Club, American Academy of Political and Social Science, Pennsylvania Historical Society, Pennsylvania Society in New York, Academy of Political Science of New York and other organizations.

He is a member of the board of directors of city trusts and chairman of its committee on city real estate, is a director of the Continental Equitable Title and Trust Company, president of the Lawyers' Club of Philadelphia and member of the Art Club, Law Association of Philadelphia, American Bar Association, Pennsylvania Bar Association, Philadelphia Yacht Club, Sons of Delaware, Scotch Irish Society of Pennsylvania, Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, Overbrook Golf Club, Overbrook Club, Philadelphia Country Club, Merion Cricket Club, Penn Club, American Academy of Political and Social Science, Pennsylvania Historical Society, Pennsylvania Society in New York, Academy of Political Science of New York and other organizations.

He is a member of the board of directors of city trusts and chairman of its committee on city real estate, is a director of the Continental Equitable Title and Trust Company, president of the Lawyers' Club of Philadelphia and member of the Art Club, Law Association of Philadelphia, American Bar Association, Pennsylvania Bar Association, Philadelphia Yacht Club, Sons of Delaware, Scotch Irish Society of Pennsylvania, Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, Overbrook Golf Club, Overbrook Club, Philadelphia Country Club, Merion Cricket Club, Penn Club, American Academy of Political and Social Science, Pennsylvania Historical Society, Pennsylvania Society in New York, Academy of Political Science of New York and other organizations.

Frank B. McClain Is New Lieutenant-Governor

LIET.-GOV. FRANK B. MCCLAIN

Frank B. McClain, who was inaugurated Lieutenant Governor to-day, was born in Lancaster, April 14, 1854, and has lived there ever since. He attended the public schools and graduated from the high school in 1881.

He then engaged in the livestock business in 1884 and has since followed the same. He was a member of the House of Representatives, sessions of 1885, 1897, 1899, 1901, 1903 and 1905. He was elected in November 1906, and was elected Speaker of the House of Representatives on January 1, 1907.

McClain resigned as Mayor of Lancaster to take charge of the lieutenant-governorship. In Maine, where in the lakes perch, bass and trout abound.

Author of School Books Dr. Brumbaugh has devoted himself to teaching and executive work rather than to legislative work. Still he has found time to write a number of school books. He has also published the "History of the German Empire in Europe and America," "The Life and Works of Charles W. Teacher," and the "Maker of a Teacher." Another of his works, written in collaboration with Joseph Walton, is called "Stories of Pennsylvania."

The real man is known only to his friends and coworkers. Governor Brumbaugh is popular with those he meets occasionally. He is loved by those who know him. He has been the friend of the teachers, and stories of his devotion and kindness to the men and women grown old in the service have been told to a man of deep sympathy. One of these has to do with a woman, who, because of the infirmity of age and mental derangement, had to be dropped from the office. She visited the office of Dr. Brumbaugh, almost haunted by seeking reinstatement. This he could not grant her, but he listened patiently to her appeals and recital of her troubles. She was a great aid to her husband, encouraging him in his work, and spurring him on to highest things.

BURIED AT NEWPORT Funeral services for Mrs. Sadie C. Yeager, wife of A. J. Yeager, who died Saturday, were held from the home of her mother, at Newport, this afternoon. Burial was made at Newport. The body was taken there by Undertaker Charles Mauk.

MRS. POMRANING DIES Mrs. Elizabeth A. Pomraining, aged 77, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Walker, 207 North 12th street. She is survived by seven sons and two daughters. Funeral services will be held to-morrow evening, at 7 o'clock, at the home, Thursday morning. The body will be taken by Undertaker Sourbier to Delta, York county, for burial.

Seeks Personal Touch There is another dog that occupies the same place in the heart of the Governor. He is called "Fritz," and rides on the front seat of the Doctor's motor. He has come to Harrisburg and will romp and play with the front street children who play in the park fronting the Executive Mansion. Fritz has a good time of it in the motor. He is always for the good of the country. He is a great help to the Governor, or rather his dessert, with the family. As the coffee is served Fritz appears, and is asked: "To which college will you go when you grow up—Haverford, Yale, or Cornell, Lafayette, Pennsylvania?" Instantly, at the last word, Fritz leaps up and seizes the cake the Doctor has held in his hand, and he treats the young man with a big gift.

Dr. Brumbaugh on the School Code Commission, has given this appreciation of the Governor: "Brumbaugh is no 'desk administrator.' He believes too much in people to be content to push buttons and handle rubber stamps! Always, he is seeking the personal touch with the many who are working with him. No unexpected 'orders' go out from his office. If a big thing is to be done, he gathers his staff about him and 'talks it over.' The idea is never 'small one' is it ever a 'big one.' In a short time he will have the reluctant opponent on his side as an enthusiastic supporter. He has large vision, a sure insight into the movement of events and an intense conviction—amounting almost to religious fervor—of the sacred task of educating all the children of all the people. It is always for the good of the coming generation that he speaks, of those who are now children, but who soon will be the men and women in whose hands our destinies lie. Small-minded people become great by the contact of his presence—their partake of his own greatness and gather strength from him.

So in his dealings with the community he is the same frank, tireless advocate of right things. Brumbaugh always works in the open. When he wants playgrounds for the children, he tells the whole town about it, and as good men and women go down into their pockets to pay the bills; when he wants high schools for the outlying districts, he takes everybody into his confidence and meetings spring up spontaneously, demanding as a right what perhaps a few months before they had not thought of at all; when he wants to interfere with his plans for a better start in life, he visits the schools of Bavaria and comes back with his message to everybody.

Strength as Administrator "Brumbaugh's strength as an administrator in Philadelphia has been his ability to make a conservative community see with his eyes and feel with his own great heart. This has been his only 'big stick.' When Brumbaugh has spoken there is no argument left on the other side. He is always persuading you to do the best thing for yourself and giving you abundant reasons therefor. No one has dared attack successfully his school program, no one has dared to interfere with his plans for school betterment. The whole community has been kept in touch with every movement, and with the whole community convinced of the civic righteousness of the superintendent's stand, who would have the temerity to stand in the way? 'Secret influence is the strongest enemy of our republic,' said Charles W. Eliot, and on this rock nearly every superintendent in the country has at one time or another found himself.

The great sadness of Governor Brumbaugh's life came to him before his ambition was realized. This was the death of his wife directly following the primary. She had been his companion from early life, a participant in his early struggles—a woman of simplest tastes and rare charm. Mrs. Brumbaugh was a great aid to her husband, encouraging him in his work, and spurring him on to highest things.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sadie C. Yeager, wife of A. J. Yeager, who died Saturday, were held from the home of her mother, at Newport, this afternoon. Burial was made at Newport. The body was taken there by Undertaker Charles Mauk.

MRS. POMRANING DIES Mrs. Elizabeth A. Pomraining, aged 77, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Walker, 207 North 12th street. She is survived by seven sons and two daughters. Funeral services will be held to-morrow evening, at 7 o'clock, at the home, Thursday morning. The body will be taken by Undertaker Sourbier to Delta, York county, for burial.

Seeks Personal Touch There is another dog that occupies the same place in the heart of the Governor. He is called "Fritz," and rides on the front seat of the Doctor's motor. He has come to Harrisburg and will romp and play with the front street children who play in the park fronting the Executive Mansion. Fritz has a good time of it in the motor. He is always for the good of the country. He is a great help to the Governor, or rather his dessert, with the family. As the coffee is served Fritz appears, and is asked: "To which college will you go when you grow up—Haverford, Yale, or Cornell, Lafayette, Pennsylvania?" Instantly, at the last word, Fritz leaps up and seizes the cake the Doctor has held in his hand, and he treats the young man with a big gift.

Dr. Brumbaugh on the School Code Commission, has given this appreciation of the Governor: "Brumbaugh is no 'desk administrator.' He believes too much in people to be content to push buttons and handle rubber stamps! Always, he is seeking the personal touch with the many who are working with him. No unexpected 'orders' go out from his office. If a big thing is to be done, he gathers his staff about him and 'talks it over.' The idea is never 'small one' is it ever a 'big one.' In a short time he will have the reluctant opponent on his side as an enthusiastic supporter. He has large vision, a sure insight into the movement of events and an intense conviction—amounting almost to religious fervor—of the sacred task of educating all the children of all the people. It is always for the good of the coming generation that he speaks, of those who are now children, but who soon will be the men and women in whose hands our destinies lie. Small-minded people become great by the contact of his presence—their partake of his own greatness and gather strength from him.

So in his dealings with the community he is the same frank, tireless advocate of right things. Brumbaugh always works in the open. When he wants playgrounds for the children, he tells the whole town about it, and as good men and women go down into their pockets to pay the bills; when he wants high schools for the outlying districts, he takes everybody into his confidence and meetings spring up spontaneously, demanding as a right what perhaps a few months before they had not thought of at all; when he wants to interfere with his plans for a better start in life, he visits the schools of Bavaria and comes back with his message to everybody.

Strength as Administrator "Brumbaugh's strength as an administrator in Philadelphia has been his ability to make a conservative community see with his eyes and feel with his own great heart. This has been his only 'big stick.' When Brumbaugh has spoken there is no argument left on the other side. He is always persuading you to do the best thing for yourself and giving you abundant reasons therefor. No one has dared attack successfully his school program, no one has dared to interfere with his plans for school betterment. The whole community has been kept in touch with every movement, and with the whole community convinced of the civic righteousness of the superintendent's stand, who would have the temerity to stand in the way? 'Secret influence is the strongest enemy of our republic,' said Charles W. Eliot, and on this rock nearly every superintendent in the country has at one time or another found himself.

Cockill, Harrisburg's Manager Made National League "Ump"

Landed Two Pennants While Here; Will Go South With Spring Training Crews

George Cockill's appointment as a National League umpire was the one topic discussed in baseball circles last night. The popular manager was warmly congratulated by a host of friends, who also expressed regrets of his departure from the Tri-State. Manager Cockill notified the Harrisburg officials last evening that he had quit the Tri-State.

At a meeting to be held this week, local officials will take action on George Cockill's departure. There will also be other important matters regarding next season. None of the officials would intimate the result of the meeting, which will be called by the directors.

Manager Cockill announced last night that he would in all probability move to Harrisburg early in the Spring. He expects to go south with some of the big league teams, and will try his hand at umpiring in practice games.

George Cockill is known throughout baseball land. He has mingled with the magnates at their annual meetings, and is known for his good judgment. Cockill first became acquainted with Harrisburg when he played on the famous Y. M. C. A. football team at Steelton. He was also a member of the old Williamsport Tri-State team, with Detroit and Montreal and was signed by Connie Mack.

When he joined hands with "Bill" Coughlin to manage the Reading Tri-State team, Manager Cockill secured has been kept in touch with every movement, and with the whole community convinced of the civic righteousness of the superintendent's stand, who would have the temerity to stand in the way? 'Secret influence is the strongest enemy of our republic,' said Charles W. Eliot, and on this rock nearly every superintendent in the country has at one time or another found himself.

The great sadness of Governor Brumbaugh's life came to him before his ambition was realized. This was the death of his wife directly following the primary. She had been his companion from early life, a participant in his early struggles—a woman of simplest tastes and rare charm. Mrs. Brumbaugh was a great aid to her husband, encouraging him in his work, and spurring him on to highest things.

BURIED AT NEWPORT Funeral services for Mrs. Sadie C. Yeager, wife of A. J. Yeager, who died Saturday, were held from the home of her mother, at Newport, this afternoon. Burial was made at Newport. The body was taken there by Undertaker Charles Mauk.

MRS. POMRANING DIES Mrs. Elizabeth A. Pomraining, aged 77, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Walker, 207 North 12th street. She is survived by seven sons and two daughters. Funeral services will be held to-morrow evening, at 7 o'clock, at the home, Thursday morning. The body will be taken by Undertaker Sourbier to Delta, York county, for burial.

Seeks Personal Touch There is another dog that occupies the same place in the heart of the Governor. He is called "Fritz," and rides on the front seat of the Doctor's motor. He has come to Harrisburg and will romp and play with the front street children who play in the park fronting the Executive Mansion. Fritz has a good time of it in the motor. He is always for the good of the country. He is a great help to the Governor, or rather his dessert, with the family. As the coffee is served Fritz appears, and is asked: "To which college will you go when you grow up—Haverford, Yale, or Cornell, Lafayette, Pennsylvania?" Instantly, at the last word, Fritz leaps up and seizes the cake the Doctor has held in his hand, and he treats the young man with a big gift.

Dr. Brumbaugh on the School Code Commission, has given this appreciation of the Governor: "Brumbaugh is no 'desk administrator.' He believes too much in people to be content to push buttons and handle rubber stamps! Always, he is seeking the personal touch with the many who are working with him. No unexpected 'orders' go out from his office. If a big thing is to be done, he gathers his staff about him and 'talks it over.' The idea is never 'small one' is it ever a 'big one.' In a short time he will have the reluctant opponent on his side as an enthusiastic supporter. He has large vision, a sure insight into the movement of events and an intense conviction—amounting almost to religious fervor—of the sacred task of educating all the children of all the people. It is always for the good of the coming generation that he speaks, of those who are now children, but who soon will be the men and women in whose hands our destinies lie. Small-minded people become great by the contact of his presence—their partake of his own greatness and gather strength from him.

So in his dealings with the community he is the same frank, tireless advocate of right things. Brumbaugh always works in the open. When he wants playgrounds for the children, he tells the whole town about it, and as good men and women go down into their pockets to pay the bills; when he wants high schools for the outlying districts, he takes everybody into his confidence and meetings spring up spontaneously, demanding as a right what perhaps a few months before they had not thought of at all; when he wants to interfere with his plans for a better start in life, he visits the schools of Bavaria and comes back with his message to everybody.

Strength as Administrator "Brumbaugh's strength as an administrator in Philadelphia has been his ability to make a conservative community see with his eyes and feel with his own great heart. This has been his only 'big stick.' When Brumbaugh has spoken there is no argument left on the other side. He is always persuading you to do the best thing for yourself and giving you abundant reasons therefor. No one has dared attack successfully his school program, no one has dared to interfere with his plans for school betterment. The whole community has been kept in touch with every movement, and with the whole community convinced of the civic righteousness of the superintendent's stand, who would have the temerity to stand in the way? 'Secret influence is the strongest enemy of our republic,' said Charles W. Eliot, and on this rock nearly every superintendent in the country has at one time or another found himself.

The great sadness of Governor Brumbaugh's life came to him before his ambition was realized. This was the death of his wife directly following the primary. She had been his companion from early life, a participant in his early struggles—a woman of simplest tastes and rare charm. Mrs. Brumbaugh was a great aid to her husband, encouraging him in his work, and spurring him on to highest things.

BURIED AT NEWPORT Funeral services for Mrs. Sadie C. Yeager, wife of A. J. Yeager, who died Saturday, were held from the home of her mother, at Newport, this afternoon. Burial was made at Newport. The body was taken there by Undertaker Charles Mauk.

MRS. POMRANING DIES Mrs. Elizabeth A. Pomraining, aged 77, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Walker, 207 North 12th street. She is survived by seven sons and two daughters. Funeral services will be held to-morrow evening, at 7 o'clock, at the home, Thursday morning. The body will be taken by Undertaker Sourbier to Delta, York county, for burial.

Seeks Personal Touch There is another dog that occupies the same place in the heart of the Governor. He is called "Fritz," and rides on the front seat of the Doctor's motor. He has come to Harrisburg and will romp and play with the front street children who play in the park fronting the Executive Mansion. Fritz has a good time of it in the motor. He is always for the good of the country. He is a great help to the Governor, or rather his dessert, with the family. As the coffee is served Fritz appears, and is asked: "To which college will you go when you grow up—Haverford, Yale, or Cornell, Lafayette, Pennsylvania?" Instantly, at the last word, Fritz leaps up and seizes the cake the Doctor has held in his hand, and he treats the young man with a big gift.

Dr. Brumbaugh on the School Code Commission, has given this appreciation of the Governor: "Brumbaugh is no 'desk administrator.' He believes too much in people to be content to push buttons and handle rubber stamps! Always, he is seeking the personal touch with the many who are working with him. No unexpected 'orders' go out from his office. If a big thing is to be done, he gathers his staff about him and 'talks it over.' The idea is never 'small one' is it ever a 'big one.' In a short time he will have the reluctant opponent on his side as an enthusiastic supporter. He has large vision, a sure insight into the movement of events and an intense conviction—amounting almost to religious fervor—of the sacred task of educating all the children of all the people. It is always for the good of the coming generation that he speaks, of those who are now children, but who soon will be the men and women in whose hands our destinies lie. Small-minded people become great by the contact of his presence—their partake of his own greatness and gather strength from him.

So in his dealings with the community he is the same frank, tireless advocate of right things. Brumbaugh always works in the open. When he wants playgrounds for the children, he tells the whole town about it, and as good men and women go down into their pockets to pay the bills; when he wants high schools for the outlying districts, he takes everybody into his confidence and meetings spring up spontaneously, demanding as a right what perhaps a few months before they had not thought of at all; when he wants to interfere with his plans for a better start in life, he visits the schools of Bavaria and comes back with his message to everybody.

Strength as Administrator "Brumbaugh's strength as an administrator in Philadelphia has been his ability to make a conservative community see with his eyes and feel with his own great heart. This has been his only 'big stick.' When Brumbaugh has spoken there is no argument left on the other side. He is always persuading you to do the best thing for yourself and giving you abundant reasons therefor. No one has dared attack successfully his school program, no one has dared to interfere with his plans for school betterment. The whole community has been kept in touch with every movement, and with the whole community convinced of the civic righteousness of the superintendent's stand, who would have the temerity to stand in the way? 'Secret influence is the strongest enemy of our republic,' said Charles W. Eliot, and on this rock nearly every superintendent in the country has at one time or another found himself.

The great sadness of Governor Brumbaugh's life came to him before his ambition was realized. This was the death of his wife directly following the primary. She had been his companion from early life, a participant in his early struggles—a woman of simplest tastes and rare charm. Mrs. Brumbaugh was a great aid to her husband, encouraging him in his work, and spurring him on to highest things.

BURIED AT NEWPORT Funeral services for Mrs. Sadie C. Yeager, wife of A. J. Yeager, who died Saturday, were held from the home of her mother, at Newport, this afternoon. Burial was made at Newport. The body was taken there by Undertaker Charles Mauk.

MRS. POMRANING DIES Mrs. Elizabeth A. Pomraining, aged 77, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Walker, 207 North 12th street. She is survived by seven sons and two daughters. Funeral services will be held to-morrow evening, at 7 o'clock, at the home, Thursday morning. The body will be taken by Undertaker Sourbier to Delta, York county, for burial.

Seeks Personal Touch There is another dog that occupies the same place in the heart of the Governor. He is called "Fritz," and rides on the front seat of the Doctor's motor. He has come to Harrisburg and will romp and play with the front street children who play in the park fronting the Executive Mansion. Fritz has a good time of it in the motor. He is always for the good of the country. He is a great help to the Governor, or rather his dessert, with the family. As the coffee is served Fritz appears, and is asked: "To which college will you go when you grow up—Haverford, Yale, or Cornell, Lafayette, Pennsylvania?" Instantly, at the last word, Fritz leaps up and seizes the cake the Doctor has held in his hand, and he treats the young man with a big gift.

Dr. Brumbaugh on the School Code Commission, has given this appreciation of the Governor: "Brumbaugh is no 'desk administrator.' He believes too much in people to be content to push buttons and handle rubber stamps! Always, he is seeking the personal touch with the many who are working with him. No unexpected 'orders' go out from his office. If a big thing is to be done, he gathers his staff about him and 'talks it over.' The idea is never 'small one' is it ever a 'big one.' In a short time he will have the reluctant opponent on his side as an enthusiastic supporter. He has large vision, a sure insight into the movement of events and an intense conviction—amounting almost to religious fervor—of the sacred task of educating all the children of all the people. It is always for the good of the coming generation that he speaks, of those who are now children, but who soon will be the men and women in whose hands our destinies lie. Small-minded people become great by the contact of his presence—their partake of his own greatness and gather strength from him.

So in his dealings with the community he is the same frank, tireless advocate of right things. Brumbaugh always works in the open. When he wants playgrounds for the children, he tells the whole town about it, and as good men and women go down into their pockets to pay the bills; when he wants high schools for the outlying districts, he takes everybody into his confidence and meetings spring up spontaneously, demanding as a right what perhaps a few months before they had not thought of at all; when he wants to interfere with his plans for a better start in life, he visits the schools of Bavaria and comes back with his message to everybody.

GEORGE COCKILL

his release from Manager Mack. He was a big factor in winning the pennant for Reading. Manager Cockill came to Harrisburg in 1912, and won Harrisburg's first pennant. The following year he finished second, tying with two other teams. Last season he landed the second pennant.

George Cockill is a graduate of Bucknell University where he is now a coach. He played with independent teams before breaking into the professional game and has played on the Scranton New York State League team.

SERVICES FOR JAMES MILLER

Funeral services for James Miller, aged 28, who died yesterday morning at his home, 1204 Capital street, will be held in the Bethel A. M. E. Church to-morrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock. The Rev. U. G. Leeper officiating. Burial will be made in Lincoln Cemetery.

P. R. R. LEAGUE REDUCES TEAMS

Number Cut From Eight to Four; Each Team to Play One Game a Week

Officials of the P. R. R. Y. M. C. A. league met last night and cut the number of teams from eight to four. Each team will play once a week. The teams are:

Athletics, S. Crane, L. L. Yoder, E. L. Crane, O. E. Moltz, Robert Ellis and George Smith, captain. Giants—Paul Bowman, Robert Thomas, G. Bell, R. Dauch, J. E. Hall and William L. Yoder, captain. Tigers—Frank Peters, Edward Wallower, L. Chard, F. Frank, Joseph Knohl, P. Rapp, captain. Cardinals—E. J. Flickinger, Robert Mack, J. Yoder, S. Resling, J. C. Gaugh and T. Colestock, captain.

WILL APPLY FOR RECEIVER

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Application for a receiver for the M. Rumely Company, the $30,000,000 agricultural machinery concern, will be made in the United States Court in Indianapolis. This action is being taken by company interests to conserve the corporation's assets pending a reorganization.

CENTRAL IS WORKING HARD FOR LEBANON

High School's Victory Over Penn-State Freshmen Brings New "Pep"

Central is practicing hard for the game Friday night with Lebanon high at Chestnut Street Auditorium. This contest is a feature of the Central Pennsylvania scholastic series and will be counted when the season's work is summed up. An added attraction Friday night will be the Central Scrubs and Palmyra high.

Since Chestnut street auditorium will be used to-night for the inaugural ball, the decorators were busy yesterday and practice was out of the question. Central had a little warming up exercise, but may not get down to hard work before to-morrow.

Central's victory over Penn-State Freshmen on Saturday brought new inspiration to the team. The two defeats of the past have been forgotten and the slogan is "win every game from now until the end of the season." Captain Kote will be in the line-up and will have back of him a fast team. Lebanon high has been showing form this season and is a factor in the scholastic race. The extra game Friday night promises much interest.

BASEBALL SQUAD OUT

Twenty Candidates Answer Call of Coach Snyder at Lebanon Valley College

Special to The Telegraph Anville, Pa., Jan. 19.—Coach Guyer yesterday issued a call for candidates for the baseball team at Lebanon Valley College and twenty players responded. An hour's practice was given the men, bunting and throwing the ball in the gymnasium. Manager Snavely has arranged a good schedule for his team. Ten of the candidates are members of last year's team and eight of these men played on representative nines of the east during the summer.

Bits of Sports

John L. Sullivan of the Toronto team, has been declared a free agent by the National Board of Arbitration. Central high fans will start plans early to put a baseball team in the field.

Arthur Irwin, scout for the New York Yankees, is said to be slated for the management of the Newark Federal League team.

In the fifth game in the Tech high interclass series, the freshmen yesterday trimmed the sophomores, 41 to 18. Joe Kelley will scout for the Giants. Mrs. H. B. Bull's class was winner in the Pine Street Presbyterian Sunday school league games last night, defeating the Mrs. H. B. McCormick class, margin 9 pins.

Three games were played in the Triple-Town League last night at Hershey. The Bull Dogs defeated the Palmyra Olivets, score 82 to 29. The Crescents won from the Gritz, score 28 to 13, and the Hummelstown five downed the Ex-high, score 31 to 21.

In the Frothingham duckpin league the Federals last night won by a margin of 17 pins. The Orpheus lost to the Nationals in the Casino League last night, margin 10 pins.</